The New-York Times.

VOL. XX.....NO. 6774. NEW-YORK, WEDNESDAY, JULY 5, 1871. PRICE FOUR CENTS.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH

A Fine Day and an Enthusiastic Celebration.

How the Holiday was Observed in City and Country.

Grand Pow-Wow of the Sachems at Tammany Hall.

Brilliant and Imposing Parade of the National Guard.

Celebrations by the Germans, Colored Men and Societies.

The Excursions, Fires, Accidents and Affrays of the Day.

Beautiful Display of Fire-Works Throughout the City.

The ninety-fifth anniversary of our national independence was celebrated, in public and private, yesterday. Although the observance was general, it by no means equalled the enormity and magnitude of some former years. Then the processions embraced not only all of the military, but many of the civic societies. They filled the streets proportionally as much as did the recent grand German Peace demonstration. Not only were the exercises confined to the simple march and review, as is now the case during a few hours, but the entire day and evening was exhausted with social, military and political reunions, balls and parties, at which any quantity and every variety of patriotic sentiments were expressed. The land, the fear and the forefathers were the themes of jubilant discussion, to which there seemed no limit of extravagance and enthusiasm.

The procession yesterday assumed quite mongre proportions, and no very extensive or enthusiastic county or other celebration took place. The display of flags, bunting and fireworks was exceedingly magnificent, and with the exception of the great daily morning newspaper establishments, all the large business houses in the lower portion of the City were closed. The municipal, national and foreign Government offices were only open for a brief time in the morning.

The weather was, upon the whole, propitious. Just before dawn a gentle shower of rain fell. At sunrise the clouds broke away, and for a time the early morning sunbeams flooded the City, gilding the tall spires and towers with a yellow sheen, gleaming over roofs and cornices, and falling upon the green foliage and lawns of the parks and court-yards with beautiful effect. Clouds and sunshine alternated throughout the remainder of the day. A delicious sea-breeze swept the streets, and not only tempered the air to a comfortable degree, but carried away vol-umes of the smoke and fumes of fire-works.

The preceding night had been unusually quiet for such an occasion. Occasionally a heavy explosion would vary the monotonous crackle and rattle of small-arm discharges, but the din was not sufficient to materially interfere with slumber. Bricks and early the rising generation were on the alert for the noisy pleasures of the anniversary, and at once were "up and at it." The bang of pistols and toy cannon, the whirr, splutter and snap of fire-crackers, the loud explosions of bombs and other pyrotechnic devices for noise made the welkin ring from sunrise until midnight. There was no escape from the rocket. From garret to cellar the smoke flew and rent the air with noisy concussions. All the juvenile portion of the City population, from three to sixty year-old boys, were more or less thus engaged. The amount of nudity and excitement they displayed in the wholesale and retail destruction of every dangerous pyrotechnic compound was wonderful. The older the boys were the more frantically did they throw themselves into the sport. The whiz, bang, pop, whirr-r, crash, fizzle, hiss, and hurrah at times was ear-splitting. The air was full of sulphurous and saltpetre fumes, and the flash and puff of explosions were incessant. Scores of thousands of proud fathers had all more than they bargained for. Johnny and Tommy and all the other-named urchins rushed to and fro with packs of the red pellets in hand, shouting with glee, or occasionally crying out with the pain of scorched fingers. Jennie and Julia and all the little fair ones, meanwhile, keep up a fire of torpedoes, and the fond parents, between the duty of punk-holders and watchers, had neither rest nor peace until the tired and sleepy hour came. Excited eyes, ears, appetites, voices, toilettes and agile movements ruled the hours from beginning to end. If the quantity decides the quality of patriotic fervor, then the juveniles carried off the palm yesterday, for they exploded more fire-works than all their elders. But the total amount consumed must have been far below the usual average, if we believe the dealers, who complained of having sold a very small proportion of their wares. This may be accounted for, because of the present scarcity of money and dullness of business.

The deep boomings of the cannon, at sunrise, noon and sunset, from the Battery and all the forts, men of war, and at the Navy-yard, shook the windows and seemed to rock the waters. The Stars and Stripes never were more numerously displayed. Miles and miles of these glorious colors fluttered everywhere. The public buildings floated mammoth State and national colors, and the flags of every nation were lavishly displayed. Prominent among these were the Prussian flags. The shipping at the wharves along the water-front were gaily decked from bulwark to topmast; in fact the rigging was almost entirely hidden by flags. As far as the eye could reach along the Long Island and New-Jersey shores the same brilliant display was observable. In the harbor, down the Bay and Narrows, and toward the far out sea, every vessel was gorgeously arrayed in flags and bunting. Up the Hudson, the Sound, and the other waters, fleets of steamers, excursion barges and other craft were brilliantly dressed from stem to stern, and colors floated from every flag-staff along the country shores in the dimdistance. In the City all the railroad cars, the stages, carts, carriages and horses were elegantly decked with miniature flags.

All the lines of travel were thronged. People were going from ferry to ferry, park to park, or to all places of sight and sound attractiveness. Large numbers of persons came from the country, and rambled hither and thither in search of pleasure. The streets presented a very animated appearance. Ladies and children dressed in the gayest of colors, and men and boys in full costume, were in endless motion. Everything was pleasant and full of interest. By and evening the throng was greatly increased. Everybody seemed to come out of the houses to witness the fire-works. All the avenues leading to the Parks and Squares where these displays were made, poured out immense streams of humanity, until every place was packed. The night was more noisy and exciting. The reserve of noises and rumors seemed to have been called out, until the very heavens seemed to resound.

Altogether, if the observance was not as extensive, it was as hearty as ever, and not even the unpleasant moistness of the evening seemed to dampen the ardor of the thousands of delighted and shouting spectators.

The Military Display.

The Fourth of July has gradually come to be the great parade day in New-York City. On that occasion one can always see at its best the magnificent body of men known as the First Division of the New-York State National Guard, which is at once the flower and fruit of our American militia system. Since the war the popular interest in the militia which the actual business of fighting had effectually quenched, has sprung up again. The people turn out in crowds, which increase every year, to see the parade of the citizen soldiery, and the latter are thereby stimulated to redouble their attention to the particulars of drill and discipline. The plain uniforms which were so much in vogue among the real soldiers of eight years ago are gradually giving way, and the old gorgeous play-soldier apparel is gradually coming up again, though with the exception of Mr. Fink's Erie band, nothing has yet made its appearance which is absolutely "loud."

Great previous preparation had been made for the pageant of yesterday, and there has been a good deal of rivalry among the "crack" regiments as to which should make the best show on the glorious day. The result was a turn-out magnificent in point of numbers, appearance, and, on the whole, in discipline. It was the verdict of all experienced men that the regiments had not appeared with such full ranks for many years. Even the least regiments mustered in respectable numbers, and some companies of the Seventh ran as high as thirty-eight files in front. Many little novalties have been introduced into uniforms, especially among the German regiments, whose hussar jackets and spiked helmets are a happy inspiration of the recent war in Europe. The white pants, which were an order of the day, were also specially effective yesterday in setting off the brilliant uniforms and equipments, so that the column presented a splendidly uniform appearance throughout.

A slight rain had fallen early in the morning, and at 8 o'clock, when the regiments began to assemble, a heavy fog overhung the City, and the lowering sky, added to the extremely muddy state of the streets, gave rather dismal promise for the day. The sun, however, soon broke through, so that no brave warrior was deterred from parading by the fear of rain.

The troops formed in the side streets off the Bowery in close column of companies, right in front, the head of each column resting on the Bowery. On Second-street, the Third Brigade, under Gen. J. M. VARIAN, formed; on Third-street the Second Brigade, under Col. S. A. CONKLING, and on Fourth-street the First Brigade, under Gen. WARD. The other organizations formed as follows: Separate troop cavalry, on Fifth-street, east of Bowery; First Brigade on Fourth-street, east of Bowery; Batteries C and G on Fourth-street, west of Bowery; Second Brigade on Third-street; Batteries B and K on Great Jones-street. The cavalry was formed and paraded in the rear of the infantry of each brigade. It was ordered that all be in place and ready at 9½ o'clock, but one or two dilatory regiments—Fire. Jr's. Ninth being, as usual, one of the last—delayed the column some time.

At about 9¾ o'clock, the procession started in the following line of march: Down the Bowery, through Canal-street, up Broadway to Waverly-place, up Fifth-avenue to Fourteenth-street, across the latter to Sixth-avenue, up to Thirty-fourth-street, through Thirty-fourth-street to Fifth-avenue, and down Fifth-avenue to the Worth Monument. The column comprised between 7,000 and 8,000 men, and was more than a mile long. When the head of the line passed the corner of Bond-street, going up Broadway, having gone round through Canal-street, the rear was but just starting from the corner of Bond-street and the Bowery.

The line of march was four miles long, and throughout the whole distance the sidewalks were thronged, and every window and door were crowded with fair spectators. On Broadway, in particular, the jam was tremendous. Comments were frequent and various along the route, running from general to personal. The Seventh, of course, received the usual meed of praise on the avenue, and the Seventy-first and Twenty-second were not without applause. The troops were in high feather, and the marching was generally good throughout. On some occasions, when the orders "halt" and "mark time" were given, the struggling was conspicuous all through the line. The Twenty-second Regiment marched specially well, and the Fifty-fifth, if truth must be told, marched specially ill. The drum corps of the Seventy-first Regiment attracts universal attention from their splendid time and style in playing. Mr. FINK's two-hundred thousand-dollar band, led by the ten-thousand a year LEVY, with his fifteen hundred dollar cornet, was also much noticed for its splendid music, and for its excessively conspicuous "lobster-back" uniform.

At the intersection of Broadway and Fifth-avenue, where the Division was to be reviewed, a platform-baddison erected just in front of the Worth monument, upon which, at about 8½ o'clock, notabilities began to muster in force. There were Mayor HALL, with a swarm of Irish Aldermen at his back, Major-Gen. SCHUYLER HAMILTON and Major-Gen. JEFF. C. DAVIS, Brig.-Gen. MOUNTAIN of Texas State Guard; Admiral LE FEVRE and other officers, of the French Frigate Magicienne, which lies off the Battery; Capt. COLCHECK, of the Russian frigate Vsadnick; Gen. JOHN B. COCHRANE, Police Commissioner MANIERRE, Judge DALY, Judge WHITE and many others. At 9 o'clock the head of the procession came in sight, and the troops passed rapidly in review.

As Battery E, of the heavy artillery, was passing down Broadway, just after the line was dismissed, a horse slipped as the corner of Houston-street, and brought the other three horses and all the men on the carriage to the ground in a heap. A squad of policemen luckily happened to be by, and they promptly seized the reins of the struggling horses, rescuing the riders, with only a few bruises, from their very dangerous position.

The only part taken by the Veterans of 1812 in the celebration yesterday was to proceed in a body to the Battery at sunrise, and participate in giving a salute. Subsequently they partook of a dinner at a hotel in the Bowery, provided at the expense of Mr. JOSEPH WATSON. But fifteen Veterans were present, the remainder being incapacitated from attending by age. Brig.-Gen. RAYMOND stated that their pensions certificates, granted under the late act of Congress, would probably be ready for them some time during the present month.

At Central Park.

Where one crowd enjoys the military, another the pleasures, a third dances and lager-beer, there is always a monstrous bigness left which takes the opportunity of every holiday to rush off to Central Park, there to make a festival in the quiet enjoyment of the beauties of nature. There is a monotony in their manner of enjoying themselves which renders it less pleasant to read of than to see. Looking at the animals, listening to the music, rowing on the lakes and strolling through the walks are not particularly exciting matters to read about, but they are particularly pleasant things to do, especially for persons who habitually exist on less than their just and due allowance of fresh air. And they are the things that a great crowd of people—forty thousand or more—spent yesterday in doing.

Excursions.

That element of humanity in New-York which finds the zenith of a Summer day's recreation amid the beauties of suburban scenery, celebrated "the Fourth" with marked spirit, and returned home at night with all the concomitants of over-indulgence, in the shape of wearied limbs, cross children, empty, yet heavy baskets, and general exhaustion. The somewhat threatening aspect of the weather early in the morning caused many to be afterward sorry that they had allowed it to interrupt their pleasure—many remained at home, fearing a stormy day, and others risked it and had a very jolly time. All along the water-front on both sides of the river extreme activity was noticeable from the advent of early dawn. The bustle and excitement were intensified as the hours passed, and crowds of excursionists grew greater. There was a Babel of strange voices on all the piers, steamers were gaily decorated with bunting, bands were playing national airs suitable to the day, and the shrill whistle of steamers kept up the excitement to its highest pitch. The bright sunshine which struggled through the clouds shortly before 9 o'clock augmented the interest of the day, and it was passed with unqualified enjoyment.

Chief among the excursions of the day was that made by a large party of citizens on board the immense steamer State of New-York to West Point. If there is anything outside of New-York seductive to its people, it is a sail up the Hudson on such a day as was yesterday. West Point is a place of decided interest, as manifested yesterday by the throng of people who took advantage of the opportunity to ramble over the historical grounds and inspect the many trophies of war, the mementoes of dead heroes, and the manifold objects of attraction at the celebrated military school. The excursion was a decided success. The accommodations on the great steamer were ample and admirably conducted. There was a vast crowd of people on board, but the spacious boat afforded room for all, and there was no crowding. The steamer left Pier No. 24 East River, shortly after 9 o'clock, A. M., and swung majestically into the stream, and with colors flying and band playing, took up its position among the hundreds of others just starting on pleasure trips. The State of New-York followed in the wake of the Presidencia, just arriving from Fall River and Newport, around the Battery and up the North River to Thirty-fourth-street, where more passengers were taken on board. Conner's Fourteenth Regiment Band was on board, and none of the excursionists could find fault either with the quality or the quantity of the music. The players took up their position on the starboard side of the wheel-house, and remained there during the trip, with the exception of occasional dodges they made into the mysterious depths of "down stairs" to lubricate their whistles. Early on the trip the scenes along the shore, among the shipping, the departure of pleasure boats, and the distant explosions of pyrotechnics on shore excited the interest of the people on board. Then, as the confines of the City were passed and Yonkers reached, and on up to Peekskill, the charming scenery along the banks of the river demanded admiration. Every mile after the curve at Peekskill revealed new beauties, and exclamations of delight were frequent as the boat sped along the serpentine windings of the river at that point. The people of the little villages were enjoying themselves. Cannon and processions, flags and music, could be seen and heard in the distance. The long sail, though very enjoyable, rather wearied the excursionists, and when they reached their destination they were heartily glad to reach terra firma, and clamber up the dusty road leading to the sloping ground, which was amply provided with shade-trees, and was by general consent accepted as a desirable spot for luncheons. Baskets were emptied of their choice dainties, and these were soon demolished. Many persons lunched on the boat before going ashore. After being fortified with food the excursionists separated and roamed over the grounds at will, some strolling through the grove, others along the beautiful drive to the hotel, more among the war-trophies and monuments in the park, in the library, among the pennings of old warriors, and here, there and everywhere. Affairs were very quiet, and nothing was seen of the military life which has made the place celebrated. The time sped quickly, and the shrill whistle sounded the note of warning for departure. Then the people came hurrying back to the boat—some down the winding carriage-way, others over the rocks, while not a few clambered down the steep declivities of the cliff which rises to a considerable height just at the landing, and is profusely covered with a thick growth of gnarled, odd-shaped trees and stunted underbrush. "All aboard" soon sounded, and the excursionists were off again and homeward bound. Music swelled out on the breeze, and when it ceased impromptu vocal entertainments were provided here and there by the ladies and gentlemen. Everything was harmonious, and the officers of the boat were indefatigable in their exertions to please the excursionists. The voyage homeward was devoid of special interest. Darkness overtook them before they reached the neighborhood of the City. The landing at Thirty-fourth-street interrupted the monotony of the trip, and it was but a short while after that the State of New-York swung around to her landing at Peck-slip and discharged what remained of her living freight. The excursion was one replete with lively interest, and was heartily enjoyed by all who participated therein.

Rockaway-beach came in for its share of patronage, yesterday. Fishing, clam-eating and surf-bathing were largely indulged in. There was a variety of conveyances thereto, and every one who entered within the boundaries of Rockaway enjoyed himself to his heart's content.

An extended excursion to Bridgeport, per steamer Bridgeport, from Catharine-street, at 8 o'clock A. M., took many pleasure-seekers from the City. The excursionists left Bridgeport at 11 o'clock P. M., reaching here after midnight, at which time cloaks and shawls were in great demand.

A grand sail around Staten Island on the steamer America was enjoyed by a large number of persons. Departures were taken from Thirty-seventh-street, North River, Market-street, Fulton Ferry, Brooklyn, Thirty-fourth-street and Christopher-street. Among the objects viewed from the boat were the fortifications in the Lower Bay. Starrs' Band accompanied the party, and dancing and singing were indulged in.

The steamer Nelly White took a large party from Thirty-seventh-street and other adjacent points to Rockaway Beach. Music beguiled the hours and made the excursionists happy.

The Arrowsmith left Peck's-slip at 9 o'clock, with an immense crowd of people, destined to suburban places on Long Island. Glen Cove, Roslyn, Whitestone, Fort Schuyler, and other points were touched, and the party returned at 6 P. M.

An excursion to New-burg, Cold Spring, Iona Island, and Yonkers, was made by the steamer Sleepy Hollow. A large party enjoyed the trip, leaving from Fulton Ferry, Brooklyn, at 8 A. M. Under charge of Capt. SHERMAN, everybody felt happy.

Coney Island came in for a share of visitors. The various steamers which ply daily between that place and points on the North and East Rivers took down crowds during the day.

The steamer Antelope conveyed a large gathering of people, who wished to escape the bustle and excitement of the City, to Peekskill, Dobb's Ferry, Sing Sing and other places in that immediate line.

The Seawanhaka, Capt. CHARLES POST, took a large party to West Point and Newburg from Pier No. 24 East River.

The "City of Elmo" was visited by quite a large party on board the Continental, which made her regular trip to New-Haven. The Mary Powell steamed down the bay and around Staten Island, leaving the foot of Thirty-fourth-street at 10½; the Piermont Valley and Fort Lee made excursion trips to Fort Lee, and the Thomas Powell followed in the wake of the Mary Powell down the bay and around Staten Island.

All these excursions were liberally patronized, and seemed to have been productive of intense amusement.

The Day Along the Continental.

The festival of the New-York Allgemeine Saengerbund, at Jones' Wood, yesterday, which formed the main feature of the celebration among the Germans, was a success, as far as the number of participants is concerned, especially when it is considered that the Saengerfest, last week, has been rather exhausting. The New-York Turnverein and several other local organizations, not belonging to the Saengerbund corporation, turned out in a body, to assist in the festival, and early in the morning formed with the Saengerbund soldiers, eighteen in number, a procession in front of the Germania Assembly Rooms, which on the line of march through Houston-street and other streets on the east side of the City to the banks at the foot of Eighth-street, with numerous banners flying and accompanied by several music corps, attracted general attention. Numerous private and public buildings on the line of march were tastefully decorated with the German and American colors in honor of the occasion.

The picnic and Summer night's festival of the Fifth Regiment Drum Corps, at Hamilton Park, was a well-patronized affair, and attended by several military men, representing different militia organizations. The performances of the well-trained drum corps, under the direction of Drum-Major BECHET were fully enjoyed by all. The Fifth Regiment were in attendance to discourse "dance music," and in the evening the festivities were wound up by an illumination and a display of fire-works.

The celebration of the German Democratic Union General Committee, at the Teutonia Assembly Rooms, was universally attended by the members of the different ward organizations, who, after the reading of the Declaration of Independence in German by Dr. SCHNITZER, listened to addresses delivered by prominent leaders of the German Democracy.

At Randall's Island.

At an early hour of the morning the inhabitants of Randall's Island were all astir. A shower of rain heralded the commencement of the day, and it was feared by many a wakeful one that the weather was going to be unfavorable. Such thoughts happily vanished when, at sunrise, the rain ceased, and the rejoicings commenced with the ringing of the bells and the hoisting of the Star-Spangled Banner, which was followed by a grand feu de joie with small arms. Soon after 9 o'clock there was a parade of the Randall's Island Guard, composed of 250 boys from the charity school, under the command of Col. LAMOREAUX, and a long retinue of staff officers. These mimic soldiers marched round the island headed by their drum and fife band, playing "Yankee Doodle" and other popular airs, and accompanied by several officers of the institution and their friends. At various points the regiment was halted, and cheers were given, accompanied by the Randall's Island war-whoop, in honor of the day.

At 11 o'clock the children, to the number of 600, assembled in the large hall, where the "Declaration of Independence" was read to them by Mr. W. M. STEPHENS. After which the following programme was gone through:

Song, "Flag of the Free," by all the children; poem, "I'd Like to be a Bullfrog," Master FOX MEGAN; song, "The Water Lilies," large girls; oration, Miss WILMOT GIBLIN; song, "Home of the Brave," 400 children; dialogue, comique, Masters WALSH and GRAHAM; song, "When You and I Were Young," 100 small boys; song, "Birdie, Well Mimed Was Watson," large girls; song, "Motto for Every Man," 200 large boys; song, finale, "Battle Cry of Freedom," all the children.

The poem, "I'd Like to be a Bullfrog," caused considerable amusement. The little boy who recited it evidently realised what he was saying. Miss WILMOT GIBLIN's oration, setting forth the history of the rebellion which led to American independence, was fairly delivered. The comic dialogue between two little boys from the infant school, Messrs. WALSH and GRAHAM, was an excellent production, describing the events which take place at a yacht-race, while "The Motto for Every Man," by 200 of the large boys, was sung with great precision. During an interval one of the friends of the institution, Miss WARNMAN, read an original story in verse, entitled "John's Visit to York." The story was very good of itself, but was totally unfit for the occasion, and for her class of hearers. The entertainment closed with the song of "The Battle Cry of Freedom," by all the children.

In the afternoon the children were treated to ice-cream and Summer beverages, provided by the Commissioners of Public Charities and Correction, after which they were dismissed to enjoy themselves the remainder of the day in the lawns connected with the institution. They did in a right hearty manner, the voices of the "little six hundred" re-echoing throughout the length and breadth of the Island. In the evening a grand display of fire-works took place.

Police Reports—A Remarkably Quiet Day.

In affrays, accidents and fires, the day was a remarkable exception to the general rule. There were a number of young men and boys injured from the careless handling of firearms, but there were no fatal or even serious accidents during the entire day, up to 7 o'clock in the evening, from causes peculiar to the day. During the same time the labors of the Fire Department were merely nominal, as there were few alarms, and the entire damage done by fire was less than $1,500. The horses were kept hitched to the apparatus in every engine-house throughout the day, but very few of them were called into active service. The Police reserves were kept prisoners in the Station-houses to as little purpose, as the event proved, as there was not the slightest approach to serious disorder anywhere, and unusually little drunkenness, and few breaches of the peace by individuals. Superintendent KELSO had, however, determined that the ounce of prevention was worth more than any number of pounds of cure, and not only kept the reserves in the Station-houses, ready for any emergency, but had the entire Sanitary Squad, under Capt. LULL, at Police Head-quarters, where he remained himself, ready to move to any threatened point. These precautions proved to be unnecessary, for nothing occurred calling for Police action beyond the ordinary events of every-day life. It was, indeed, remarked that the City was unusually orderly, and the few affrays which occurred were not only less than the late daily average, but those reported during the day all occurred early in the morning, and were plainly due to the debauches of the previous night.

The following is the list of casualties, affrays and fires for the day:

JOHN O'BRIEN, aged twelve years, of No. 221 Mulberry-street, had the fore-finger of his left hand badly lacerated by the premature discharge of a pistol.

JAMES STEVENS, aged fourteen years, of No. 62 James-street, was shot in both legs with buckshot, by JOHN BROWN, a sailor, who was firing at a target in the yard of No. 45 Oliver-street. The boy was taken to Park Hospital, and BROWN was locked up in the Fourth Precinct Station-house.

JAMES PETTS, aged fifteen years, of No. 60 East Tenth-street, was severely wounded in the hand by the premature discharge of a pistol he was firing. He was attended by Police Surgeon HUTCHINSON, at the Seventeenth Precinct Station-house, and then taken home.

WILLIAM PETTS, a trigger in the Third Cavalry Regiment, N. Y. S. N. G., was severely injured during the parade by a blow from a horse on the knee. He was taken to his home, No. 201 Mott-street.

LOUISA MILLER, eight years, was severely cut by the discharge of a pistol in the hands of an unknown boy breaking a pane of window-glass, the fragments of which fell upon her. She was taken to her home, No. 220 East Twenty-fifth-street, near which the singular accident occurred.

THOMAS HARWARD, aged eleven years, of No. 454 West Forty-second-street, accidentally shot himself through the right hand with a pistol. He was sent to St. Luke's Hospital.

JACOB HAUSER, of No. 22 Jackson-street, received a severe flesh wound in the right arm from the wad of a pistol discharged near him.

CARL HAGEN, a member of Battery C, while on parade was overcome by the heat and taken to the Eighth Precinct Station-house, where he was attended by Police Surgeon FERLIGH, after which he was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

JOHN HIGGINS, of No. 80 East Twenty-eighth-street, was shot through the hand while handling a pistol. He was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

JOSEPH HEDDEN, who lives in Ninety-third-street, near Third-avenue, had his left hand shattered by the premature discharge of a gun.

JOHN MANNING, of No. 318 Water-street, was shot through the left hand by the accidental discharge of a pistol he was handling.

THOMAS DUNN, aged fourteen years, of No. 413 East Twenty-third-street, had one of his hands badly injured and his face disfigured with powder by the premature discharge of a small cannon.

MICHAEL WOMBATZEL, of No. 186 Eldridge-street, had a finger of his left hand blown off by the premature discharge of a pistol.

MARGARET FITZPATRICK, aged thirteen years, of No. 439 East Seventeenth-street, was severely wounded in the groin by a small stone fired from a pistol by some unknown person.

CHERNOTOREES KOSS, of No. 317 First-avenue, was shot in the hand and had to have two of his fingers amputated.

JOHN WELSH, aged eleven years, of No. 439 Washington-street, while playing with a pistol had one of his hands partially blown off by a premature discharge of the weapon. He was taken to Park Hospital.

WM. HOFFMAN, of No. 448 West Fifty-second-street, when in Eleventh-avenue, near Fifty-second-street, shot himself through the left hand with a pistol, causing a serious wound.

ACCIDENTS.

JOHN KELLY, aged five years, of No. 36 Park-street, was severely injured by the premature discharge of a pistol.

ALEXANDER PURCELL, aged five years, while standing in front of his residence, No. 6 Abingdon-square, was struck behind the ear by a spent pistol-ball, which entered and lodged in the scalp. The ball was extracted, and the wound is not considered dangerous.

AFFRAYS.

JOHN KELLY, of No. 270 Spring-street, began to celebrate the day shortly after midnight, by savagely beating his wife, ALICE, and pouring hot tea upon her, scalding her arms and shoulders. He was arrested, and ended his celebration in the Jefferson Market Prison.

ANTHONY ALBERTON was assaulted at an early hour, when at the corner of First-avenue and Twenty-sixth-street, by THOMAS MCCHERRY, who struck him on the shoulder with a butcher's cleaver, causing a severe wound. The assailant escaped, and the injured man, who lives at No. 457 First-avenue, was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

CHRISTIAN COKE and THOMAS DONNUS had a fight at 3 o'clock in the morning in Avenue A, during which the latter was struck on the breast with an axe and slightly wounded. Both men arrested and locked up in the Eighteenth Precinct Station-house.

TIMOTHY MAHONEY, a keeper on Blackwell's Island, who lives at No. 260 East Sixtieth-street, at an early hour in the morning was attacked in Hester-street, near Elizabeth, by several unknown ruffians, who beat him badly about the head and face. He was sent home after his wounds had been dressed by Surgeon MCDONALD at Police Head-quarters.

WM. MCMANUS, of No. 52 South Fifth-avenue when near the corner of Houston and Thompson streets, at 4 o'clock in the morning, was shot in the thigh and severely wounded by EDWARD G. SMITH, of No. 178 Thompson-street, who was a few feet distant. When arraigned at the Eighth Precinct Station-house, SMITH had no better excuse than that he did not intend to shoot MCMANUS, but was merely firing at some boys who had been firing stones at him. He was locked up at the Jefferson Market Police Prison, and a murder prevented.

JOSEPH TRUM, of No. 42 Bleecker-street, falling among the thieves infesting the corner of Crosby and Houston streets, and getting into a quarrel, came out of the affair with one of his ears bitten off. Nobody was arrested.

CHARLES FREDERICK, of No. 389 East Forty-eighth-street, being in a beer-beer saloon, got into a quarrel with one JOHN RIGHTER, but got out of it with only a slight scalp wound. The assailant was not captured.

ALBERT WHITNEY, of No. 37 Monroe-street, in an affray with WILLIAM CONWAY, of No. 30 Cherry-street, was stabbed twice in the gluteal region, twice in the thigh, and once in the groin, but none of the wounds are serious. The assailant was arrested and locked up.

ANN CLIFFORD was assaulted, late last evening, by her husband, at their residence, No. 242 East Thirtieth-street, and received two severe wounds in the face from being struck with a pitcher. She was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

FIRES.

At 8¼ A. M., the rubbish under the grating at No. 12 Thompson-street, was found to have been ignited by fire-crackers, but the flames were extinguished before any damage was done.

At 9 A. M., fire-works set fire to the candy-store of ELIZA GALOON, No. 3 Christopher-street, but only slight damage was done before the flames were extinguished.

At 10:35 A. M., the awning in front of Nos. 56 and 57 First-avenue, was ignited by fire-crackers.

At 12:40 P. M. the fire-works in the store of J. A. MOLIANA, No. 78 Essex-street, were ignited, and a damage of $150 done.

At 12:50 P. M. the tenement No. 99 Pitt-street was fired by fire-crackers, but very little damage was caused.

At 1:40 P. M., fire-crackers being thrown in a second-story window, ignited the premises of BUNNOT & FLINN, No. 80 Frankfort-street, used for the storage of old paper, and the flames were not extinguished until a damage of $1,000 had been done to their stock, and of $50 to the premises of C. POLETT, barber, on the first floor.

At 7¼ P. M., the roof of No. 330 West Fifty-second-street was ignited by fire-crackers. The building is occupied by C. KELLY as a morocco factory, whose loss is $1,500 to stock and tools. The unoccupied building next door, No. 326, was damaged to the amount of $100.

At 8¼ P. M. the awning in front of No. 122 Prince-street took fire from fire-works, and was destroyed.

At 8:25 P. M. the doorway of the drug-store No. 22 Tompkins-street was ignited by fire-crackers, but the flames were extinguished before any damage was done.

At 9 P. M. the roof of No. 120 Charlton-street was ignited by fire-works, and was considerably damaged.

At 9:30 P. M. the roof of No. 130 Charlton-street was ignited by fire-works, and was considerably damaged.

[illegible] Blackwell's Island, with all its concomitant woes of crime and misery, and suffering, had its Fourth of July celebration. Nearly, the Commissioners of Charities and Correction have made it a point that the poor denizens of those granite walls should have something which might remind even them that there was such a thing as a national holiday in the calendar.

In the Penitentiary, which is just now unusually full of prisoners on short terms, and where Warden FINCH entertains with a seventy feast which makes hogsheads tremble, the festive fast first-class festival. In the morning there was a sort of general parade, in which all the men joined. The prisoners then went to their cells, and passed the morning amid dinner time pretty much as they pleased, and as much as stone walls would permit them. The dinner was the grand event of the day, and the grand event of the dinner was chicken fricassee, a dish peculiarly grateful to the palates of prisoners by reason of being so exceedingly rare. There was abundance of it, and the men did it full justice, it being remarked that Messrs. COLLINS and EDWARDS, of fistic fame, were particularly voracious over the dish. With this exception the dinner was very much like same as usual, and afterward the men returned to their cells to digest it.

In the Work-house, the inmates were also entertained with the same palatable dish.

In the Lunatic Asylum, the most important of the Blackwell's Island institutions, as well from interest as from numbers, the exercises were of a more interesting description. The number of visitors was very large, and seemed to be mainly relatives of the unfortunate inmates. The rules, in consequence of the day, were somewhat relaxed in severity by Warden SMITH, and the harmless prisoners had pretty much the entire range of the institution. The dinner was in every respect excellent, the main dishes being chicken fricasseed and roast beef in profusion. All was of the best description, and seemed to be generally very heartily enjoyed. After dinner the inmates were conducted to Pavilion B, the largest of the outside buildings, where the epileptic patients are kept, and dancing and music were inaugurated, diversified by ice-cream. This was kept up until dusk.

At Bellevue Hospital.

The national anniversary was well observed at Bellevue Hospital. Owing to the exertions of Warden BERRIAN, an amount was raised by subscription among the medical faculty sufficient to provide a grand entertainment for the patients and employes. In the centre of the lawn a large platform was erected, and a band of music discoursed choice musical selections until the opening exercises. Warden BERRIAN, who has been preparing himself for the occasion, delivered the oration, which was a masterly effort. The Declaration of Independence, and a poem composed for the occasion, were read, after which a grand pyrotechnic display took place.

The Colored Parade.

Our colored citizens entered heartily into the celebration of the nation's natal day, showing as enthusiasm only second to that manifested by them in their celebration of the second birthday of freedom, the anniversary of the Fifteenth Amendment. Numerous festivities of a private character were held by them; their dusky, progeny fired off crackers with as much zest as white children, and crowds of them promenaded the streets, intent upon seeing and enjoying all that could be seen. The principal event in their own observance of the day was the parade of the newly-formed Excelsior Guard, New-York State National Guard, and the celebration at the regimental armory, corner of Twenty-seventh-street and Ninth-avenue. The command, under Col. JAMES TAYLOR, mustering forty-five muskets, and a drum-corps of twenty, headed by a German band, left the armory at about 12 o'clock, and, taking up a line of march to Fifth-avenue, marched down that aristocratic thoroughfare to the neighborhood of Twentieth-street, where the regiment passed in review before Gen. WM. M. TWEED, Jr., and the members of the Blossom Club, eliciting favorable comments from those gentlemen upon their soldierly bearing. Col. TAYLOR then led his troops to Union-square, and, marching them around the statues of WASHINGTON and LINCOLN, marched them through some of the main avenues, and finally reached the armory about 2 P. M.

The armory was thronged with a large gathering of the friends of the regiment, male and female, and the platform was crowded with the invited guests, the clergy, military gentlemen, members of the Press and other citizens. The meeting was opened by Col. TAYLOR, who said that owing to the fatigues of the day's march, he was not prepared to make a speech, but proceeded immediately to make one.

Mr. HIRAM HYDE, a white gentleman and one of the guests, was then introduced by Mr. GARRETT, and addressed the audience at some length upon the history of the abolition of slavery in the United States, eulogized the memory of LINCOLN and of colored men who had fought and struggled for the cause of the Union.

Those who desired then partook of the refreshments that had been prepared, and the pleased assemblage slowly dispersed to their homes.

Trinity Church Chimes.

At 7½ in the morning, the sweet chimes of Trinity bells sounded out clear and far over the City. Fifty or a hundred people gathered in the church-yard among the grassy tombs to listen, but their number was as nothing to the thousands who heard the clang of the monstrous bells which, though it sounded so deafening to those below, stole through their distant windows in mellow modulations, stealing deliciously in the half-sleeping half-waking ear. Many a dozing patriot, no doubt, murmured as the soft sound of "Let the Merry Church Bells Ring" penetrated his inner consciousness, "Yes, let 'em ring," and, as the operatic strains died away, asked in an obfuscated sort of way for more. Nothing could be more appropriate than "The Bould Soger Boy" for the seven thousand and odd of that article who, at one time, simultaneously splashing their white pantaloons in the mud of Madison-square, nor than the "Child of the Regiment" for the boys and girls of the said transmogrified citizens who were running about the sidewalks or popping crackers at the same hour. "Hail Columbia" struck the fancy of the time for a population pregnant to spend the next eighteen hours in doing precisely that thing. "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean" was a sentiment which aroused no controverting discussion. "Yankee Doodle" was appropriately played twice, inebriating, no doubt, that there would be twice as much fun as solemnity in the national rejoicings. The same programme was repeated at noon.

Staten Island.

At Port Richmond the day was celebrated with antique spirit, and it was generally admitted that a finer celebration had not occurred in the annals of the Island. At 10 o'clock there was a procession of stalwart firemen in full dress, under the superintendence of WILLIAM JOHNSON, Esq., a crowd of citizens then assembled in a spacious tent. CORNELIUS R. DEGOWAY, Esq., of New-York, was called to the chair, and after an opening prayer (by Rev. Dr. CAYLE) the Declaration of Independence was read by Rev.

(Continued on Fifth Page.)

EUROPEAN AFFAIRS.

Returns of the Supplementary Elections in France.

Irreconcilable Divisions in the Assembly Apprehended.

A Strong Working Majority Regarded as Impossible.

Demand on the Germans to Evacuate Three Departments.

Difficulty Between France and the Egyptian Government.

Review of the Italian Troops in Rome by Victor Emmanuel.

The American Knights Templar Visit Alton Towers.

FRANCE.

Result of the Supplementary Elections—The Vote of Paris—Composition of the Assembly—The German Occupation—Trouble with Egypt.

PARIS, July 4.—The general estimate of the supplementary elections shows that the result will be about as follows: Of the 140 Deputies elected, 120 are Republicans, 8 Legitimists, and 12 Bonapartists. The official returns will differ little from this estimate. The following is the vote of Paris, with a few sections to hear from:

Wolowski	132,000	Ernest	99,000
Abbe	110,000	Le Malaye	91,000
Pascolon	106,000	Lefebvre	91,000
Lauvet	104,000	Schoel	87,000
Bietzmonin	100,000	Pichat	81,000
Prevenac	98,000	Prunier	80,000
Marin	97,000	Marone	79,000
Vermorelle	94,000	Brasley	78,000
Corbon	92,000	Perrin	76,000
Garnobette	94,000	Flurkray	74,000
Picone	93,000	Pierrard	73,000
Chisey	91,000	Rassouville	71,000
Kestner

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

TOM PIPPIN'S WEDDING. A Novel. By the author of "Tony Pastor in Dance Europe's School." Philadelphia: J. B. LIPPINCOTT & CO.

That a writer has produced a clever brochure, like The Fight in Dame Europe's School, which has taken the popular fancy for a time, is no reason for supposing that he would be successful as a novelist. He has the great advantage of having already attracted the attention of the public, and stands a good chance of having his next effort, whatever it may be, read and criticised, rather than allowed to fall at once into oblivion, in case it has not merit enough in itself to find readers. If the author of Tom Pippin's Wedding had not written the successful brochure alluded to, it is not probable that his novel would have met with any great amount of favor. It is not without merit, but on the other hand it is in no sense a remarkable book. It is nothing if not satirical, and the objects of its ridicule have already been the target for quite as skillful and much more effective marksmen. The private boarding-schools of England, especially those that profess to be partly charitable in their purposes, are the special objects of attack; while the clergy, the aristocracy and the world in general come in for many sharp thrusts. As a story, Tom Pippin's Wedding is not very attractive. The plot is rather bald, and is clumsily wrought out in the details. The materials are suggestive of what are called sensational incidents and situations, but no very great sensation is produced by their perusal. Tom Pippin is the nephew of the Earl of Appletree and heir of his titles and estate, if he does not have any other heir. The Earl is a coarse boor, but owns half the county. The other half is owned by the Duke of Dumplingshire, who has one hideous daughter, and no more, to inherit his wealth. It is the desire of the Duke and the Earl to unite the estates by uniting the handsome and rakish Tom with the ugly and idiotic Lady Maria; but Tom won't consent, and so the Earl incontinently weds his cook, and proceeds to cut off Tom's hope of the estate by begetting a direct heir. Having thus lost the chances of paying his debts, the young man is pounced upon by his creditor and driven to make love to the repulsive heiress, whom he has once refused, for the sake of getting her fortune, wherewith to pay off old scores and keep up his expensive habits. After an awkward declaration of love, in which he altogether fails to conceal his disgust, he engages to marry the Lady Maria, who, it appears, for no reason in particular, is deeply and very unselfishly in love with him. No sooner has he committed himself to this extent than the infant son of the noble Earl is spirited away by one of Tom's creditors in disguise, who makes a remarkable bargain with a policeman to keep the child away. Tom, who is, of course, really in love with somebody else, goes to church with his affianced, but then and there refuses to marry her, and flees to the Continent, arriving in Switzerland just in time to find the policeman drowned, and to pick up his uncle's infant, and return home with all speed. Meantime his beloved Edith has given her hand to a poor curate, but the Duke of Dumplingshire has conveniently died, and his daughter soon follows, leaving the vast estate to Tom, which is the first real evidence of her idiocy. Aside from all this, and having but very slight connection with it, is the school of Rev. Mr. Gogga, who practices the most abominable barbarities upon a company of boys confided to his charge to be educated. Of course Gogga is everything a school-master ought not to be, and his wife is worse than himself. In fact, nearly every one in this story is exactly what one in his or her position ought not to be, and therein is supposed to lie the satire. But it is not so much satire as caricature, because it is frequently too much exaggerated to be credible. Any one who has had much experience in the world is not prepared to declare any degree of meanness, cruelty, or badness of any kind, altogether improbable in individual cases, but when sweeping charges are made against whole classes, in whose vocation itself there is nothing disreputable, he knows that the tirade is sheer nonsense. For instance, everybody knows that the clergy as a class, whatever errors and weaknesses may be common among them, are respectable, high-minded and well-meaning men, and satire loses its force when it makes such charges as this: "Decency demands that a vail should be drawn over the conversation which then ensued. There are some subjects too solemn to be played with; and the levity, the coarse, flippant impudence with which our two friends handled sacred things, may not be characterized in these pages, even to point a moral or adorn a tale. One has heard drunkards blaspheme and madmen rave; but for downright cool profanity, for simple prostitution of all that men and angels reverence, give me a couple of Evangelical ministers talking scripture during a six-mile drive." Much of the satire or attempt at satire in this book shows the same lack of discretion. It is coarse and clumsy. The whole book seems like a mass of material but half worked over. Either the author was in a hurry to get his book before the public, while his factitious reputation lasted, or is incompetent to work out clearly, and finish off skillfully, the task which he has laid out with some judgment. He has shown considerable power in his conceptions, and unusual talent for cynical observation, but has yet to learn the importance of thorough and careful workmanship in the use of these qualities.

THE WIFE OF A VAIN MAN. By MARIE SOPHIE SCHWARTZ. Translated from the Swedish by Selma Borg and Marie A. Brown. Boston: LEE & SHEPARD.

The publishing firm of LEE & SHEPARD is engaged in issuing in rapid succession the novels of Mme. SCHWARTZ, which have a very high reputation in Sweden. Those which have already appeared in the English dress are Gold and Name, Birth and Education, Guilt and Innocence, and the volume before us. These works display an extensive knowledge of human life, and accurate study and observation of character. They are not characterized, however, so much by a lifelike representation of ordinary scenes and common experiences of life as by the portrayal of those which are tragical. This is particularly the case with the Wife of a Vain Man. Ellen Kahn, the wife, is a highly-gifted creature in every respect, talented, beautiful, admired and beloved and surrounded with all the circumstances of wealth and high social position. The man she marries, but never loves, is vain and selfish. Her sensitive and modest nature is continually shocked by his fondness for display and his cold-hearted disregard of her feelings and wishes. With him she lives and endures for years, but comes passionately to love another whom she had known before her marriage, but had regarded with indifference, almost with dislike. Many sad scenes in this unhappy life are depicted with a good deal of power. The subordinate incidents are such as bear directly on the general purpose of the story. The greatest fault is a want of cheerful scenes to relieve the somewhat sombre and tragic cast of the life of the principal characters. Evart of Ochard, the wife's husband, goes on increasing in selfishness and vanity, and torturing the heart of his wife, who tried always to do her duty and struggle against her passion for another, until on his death-bed, his last wish was for a splendid funeral, and his last act a despairing look at his emaciated face in a mirror. Then comes, in the closing chapter, a scene five years later than that at the death-bed, in which Ellen and the real lover appear as husband and wife living happily on their fine estate. The story verges on the sensational, but is written with genuine ability and power. There is little that is deadenly Swedish about it, but it deals with those traits and feelings that are general, and experiences that are as likely to exist in one part of the world as another. The work of the translators is well done, and it was a work well worth doing.

SKETCHES OF MEN OF PROGRESS IN THE AMERICAN REPUBLIC. New-York and Hartford: Phelps Publishing Company.

In no department of literature do our people take a greater interest than in that of biography, especially the biography of their own contemporaries. In the case of any man eminently successful, whether in literature, science, politics, or in business and the practical arts, there is a laudable curiosity to know the facts of his life, and be able to trace the steps by which he has risen to eminence. The present volume is intended to satisfy this curiosity, and contains sketches of nearly one hundred Americans who can lay claim to being men of progress. Among them are E. H. Chapin, William Cullen Bryant, John T. Hoffman, E. D. Morgan, J. W. Gerard, Edwards Pierrepont, Daniel Drew, John B. Gough, Thurlow Weed, Henry Clews, Geo. H. Hepworth, John A. Griswold, James Watson Webb, Henry Wilson, and scores of others whose names are well known, and whose lives ought to be known by all American citizens. The sketches are generally very well written, and in most cases are accompanied by fine steel portraits, which will add greatly to the interest of the volume. The paper and print are of the very best, and the general mechanical execution of the volume is such as to make it in itself a fine work of art and an ornament to any library or centre-table. A less expensive edition is issued simultaneously with this, containing all the sketches and portraits in less rich and elegant attire.

LITTLE SUNSHINE'S HOLIDAY. A Picture from Life. By the author of "John Halifax, Gentleman." New-York: HARPER & BROTHERS.

There is need of more good books for girls, and it is very gratifying that a writer with the talent and experience of Mrs. CRAIK, better known as Miss DINAH MULOCK, should undertake the task of supplying the want. This task she has undertaken, and the HARPERS have made arrangements to publish the results of her labor in neat volumes, handsomely printed and uniformly bound in very pretty muslin covers. Many writers of the best ability have devoted a large share of their time to preparing books for boys, but little has been done for the girls. The reception which Miss ALCOTT's books have met with shew how ready a welcome there will be for the best kind of literature for this class of readers. Although the present volume is the work of Mrs. CRAIK's own pen, some of those that are to follow, we judge, are to be selected, for in a preliminary address she says: "I leave myself the widest range of selection, both as to subjects and authors; but they will be morally and artistically the best books I can find, and will contain the experience of the best women of all countries, used for the benefit of the generation to come." This is a good work, and we trust will meet with the appreciation it deserves. Little Sunshine's Holiday is a very charming "picture from life," representing, as it does, the experiences and observations of a little girl who is taken out to enjoy a holiday trip. It certainly forms an appropriate beginning of the series of books for girls. The language is simple, and the style such as the young will delight in.

A COPIOUS AND CRITICAL ENGLISH-LATIN DICTIONARY. By WM. SMITH, LL.D., and THEOPHILUS D. HALL. New-York: HARPER & BROTHERS.

A full and accurate English-Latin dictionary has long been a desideratum, especially for students at our higher institutions of learning. Latin-English dictionaries of the highest excellence have long been in use, but only those who have been condemned to the decidedly vigorous exercise of turning large quantities of English into the words and idioms of the dead language of the Romans, know how deficient all the lexicons have been which profess to aid them in that process. The name of Dr. SMITH is a sufficient guarantee that in the preparation of this volume both learning and care have been bestowed without stint, and everything done to make it both complete and correct. From a close examination of many of the words explained, we are satisfied that the guarantee will be fully sustained. One of the best features of the book is the constant reference that is made to passages in the classical authors, where the words will be found in their appropriate use. At the end of the volume is an ample index of Roman proper names, and the Latin form of modern names.

AT LAST: A CHRISTMAS IN THE WEST INDIES. By CHARLES KINGSLEY. London and New-York: MACMILLAN & CO.

For forty years, it appears from the opening sentences of this book, it had been the dream of the author to cross the Atlantic and visit the West Indies and the Spanish Main. He had studied their history, their scenery and their society, and with the aid of a lively imagination had transferred to his own pages many pictures from their tropical life. Now, at last, his dream has been fulfilled, and he has published a record of his visit to the West Indies and the Spanish Main. His book contains an account of his experience and observations on the trip, descriptions of tropical scenery, natural history, condition of society, and all the incidents likely to befall an intelligent traveler in such a region. There will be found in its pages a large amount of valuable information, and many interesting reflections. There is much to make a book of travels in the West Indies interesting, and when it is written by a man of the ability and reputation of CHARLES KINGSLEY, there is every reason to suppose that it would be specially attractive. The present volume satisfies every reasonable expectation in this regard.

CAMEOS FROM ENGLISH HISTORY. The Wars in France. By the author of the "Heir of Redclyffe." Second Series. London and New-York: MACMILLAN & CO.

In the volume Miss YONGE continues her pictures from English story. There are thirteen of the sketches connected with the English contests in France between 1330 and 1428. In her preface the author says "these cameos do not aim at being anything like original history. All they attempt is to collect from the best authorities such details as may present scenes and personages to the eye in some fullness—to be, in fact, a collection of historical scenes and portraits such as the young might find it difficult to form for themselves without access to a very complete library." A work of this kind, it will [illegible] very welcome. The [illegible] in readability, looks for the [illegible] has carved solid reputation and [illegible] attractive guise.

July Magazines.

Lagging considerably behind the ordinary monthlies, and, therefore, sometimes escaping due notice, are two magazines from the two extremes of the country, the Overland Monthly, from San Francisco, and Old and New, from Boston. The first thing the reader will notice about the Overland is, what it compels its readers to notice first, a hideous pictorial advertisement of a San Francisco hotel. Skipping this, for which the magazine has the example of at least one older and better monthly, we come upon a paper by THOMAS TAILYOUR, (Viscountess Avonmore,) who gives us a thoroughly sardonical account of the Sisters of Charity in the French Hospital at Stamboul. With much that is worthless, the writer gives us occasional glimpses of the life of the Sisters and their qualifications for the work. Here is a striking instance of the spirit in which one of them regarded old linen:

"We each do the duty allotted us, and mending linen is my portion. We have no time to do it in vain; perfect cleanliness, not our salvation is secured. It is not what we bestow that is good for us, but what it costs us. I was always quick at my needle. My parents died within a few weeks of each other, calmly as they had lived. My spiritual father took their place toward me. 'My child,' he said, 'you have come into possession of worldly goods; as your first act be sure you show to others your contempt for them.' I knew what, in obedience, I followed the will of Him whose minister on earth he was: so the farm and stock were realized and converted into cash, and, under the care of Père LEMAITRE, I quitted, for the first time and forever, the paternal roof. I need not say, further, that to which my submission to imperfect and my obedience voluntary. My faith was strong that he would lead me in the way of true salvation, and I made no idle inquiries."

The upshot of this career was continual mending of linen in a land where she could not understand a word that was spoken, nor speak one that could be understood. "Arcachon" are the subject of a paper by a Western traveler, who believes them to result from the return to earth of masses consolidated from minute particles caught up by eddies and whirlwinds. He is very sharp on other theories, and positive regarding his own. F. H. SHEPPARD contributes a readable, though certainly nonsensical, account of his emotions and thoughts on a certain "middle watch" on the deck of a man-of-war. "The Macries" (Mouries) are described in a very well-written article by JOHN MANNING. "The Haunted Valley," by A. G. BRENCK, and "Brutus," in an editorial portion of the magazine, are respectively the most objectionable pieces of California slang in prose and verse that we have yet seen. And yet it is evident that Mr. BRENCK has capacity, acute observation, and descriptive powers of very unusual simplicity, grace and effectiveness.

—Old and New begins the fourth volume with a characteristic, and, on the whole, excellent, number. At least five of the articles will enlist attention and repay perusal. Of these EDWARD EVERETT's College Life is one. It relates to his experience at Harvard in 1800 and 1807, and shows that as a boy of thirteen, he had his own ideas, and pretty clear ones, of the character of those above him, and of the nature and extent of their capacity as teachers and leaders. His opinion of the course of study was very low, but was apparently justified by its narrowness, crudity and poverty. In those days, as in these, however, the earnest student grew by the way he studied rather than by what he studied, and Mr. EVERETT certainly gained as much as could be gained. Another good article is that on "Examinations for Women in Cambridge," setting forth the purpose of these examinations, viz., to afford to all wishing for an opportunity to be examined by the tests employed in the University, and, if successful, to receive from the Board a certificate to that effect. The value of these certificates in obtaining employment as teachers furnishes the main motive for the necessary study. The other noteworthy articles are: "The Cambridge Union"—an account of the Combined Debating and Reading Society of Cambridge, England; "Recollections of Mexico and Buena Vista," and "A Theological Seminary."

Other Books Received.

—Holbrook's Newark City Directory, for the year ending April 1, 1871. Newark, N. J.: A. STEPHEN HOLBROOK.

—Manual of the Railroads of the United States for 1871-2, showing their mileage, stocks, bonds, cost, traffic, earnings, expenses, and organizations; with a sketch of their rise and progress, influence, &c. By HENRY V. POOR. New-York: H. V. & H. W. Poor.

—Selected Fruits; from DOWNING'S Fruits and Fruit Trees of America: Their culture, propagation and management in the garden and orchard. New-York: JOHN WILEY & SON. This is a valuable book for those interested in fruit culture. It contains descriptions of choice varieties, with illustrations, and much valuable information with regard to raising them.

—How dem Frenchmen Tell dat Berlin Vants. A Hexadorikel Rumous. By JOHANN SCHLAMMEL. New-York: American News Company. A humorous account of the French and German war in an imitation of the style of the Hans Breitmann Ballads.

—Philips' Scriptures Atlas. By WILLIAM HUGHES, F. R. G. S. New-York: JOHN WILEY & SON. Here we have in small compass and convenient form very clear and neat maps of the countries alluded to in the Bible. It can easily be carried in the pocket, and will be found a very useful companion for those who wish to read the historical portions of the Scriptures intelligently.

—The Posthumous Papers of the Pickwick Club. By CHARLES DICKENS. New-York: D. APPLETON & CO. At last the Pickwick Papers are given to us in a single, handy volume, of which the print, though small, is clear and good. It has neat, flexible covers, and contains a portrait of the author and several of the original illustrations of CRUIKSHANK.

—Lucile and other Poems. By OWEN MEREDITH. Boston: JAMES R. OSGOOD & Co. This is a cheap edition, in paper covers, of the popular poems of OWEN MEREDITH. The volume contains a portrait and sixteen illustrations of very ordinary merit.

—Twice Told Tales. By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE. Two volumes in one. Boston: JAS. R. OSGOOD & Co.

—Mosses from an Old Manse. By NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE. Two volumes in one. Boston: JAMES R. OSGOOD & Co. These volumes are the first of an "Illustrated Library Edition" of HAWTHORNE's works. The edition is the most satisfactory one which has yet appeared. The volumes are comely and convenient, their mechanical execution of the very best, and the illustrations good.

—Her Lord and Master. A tale. By FLORENCE MARRYAT, (Mrs. Ross CHURCH.) New-York: HARPER & BROTHERS.

—Reminiscences of Fifty Years. By MARK BOYD. New-York: D. APPLETON & Co. These reminiscences include many curious and interesting anecdotes of eminent men, public events and odd incidents in society, and form a very entertaining volume.

—Marquis and Merchant. A novel. By MORTIMER COLLINS. New-York: D. APPLETON & Co. This is a new and valuable addition to APPLETON's "Library of Choice Novels," which is issued in uniform octavo volumes with paper covers.

—Journal of a Young Lady of Virginia, 1782. Baltimore: JOHN MURPHY & Co. This journal [illegible] recently discovered and published for the [illegible] Historical Association. [illegible] and, the editor remarks, "is [illegible] Lady [illegible] acquaintance with [illegible] commences from [illegible] was good for a bill [illegible] dated [illegible] that the bill would be paid. Shortly afterward the debtor failed; the Portland merchant called upon the deacon to pay the bill, and the deacon wrote back in reply that it was unjust and unscriptural for him to ask him to fulfill his guarantee, and tendering back the percentage he had exacted. Legal steps have not been taken, but the latter is in the way to be lithographed, and copies will be liberally distributed, to show the difference between the deacon's sharp business scent, and his sense of Christian obligation.

There were 126 delegates in attendance at the recent State Temperance Convention in Oregon, representing lodges of Good Templars, temperance organizations, churches and Sunday-schools, from nearly every county of the State west of the Cascade Mountains. They declared in favor of the passage of a State law submitting to the vote of the people of the several towns the question whether liquors shall be sold within their limits, appointed Committees to procure signatures to a petition to the Legislature for the enactment of such a law, and promised to act with any political party which will incorporate the position into its platform. In case neither party will do this they threaten to organize a distinct party.

A scolding editor in Pennsylvania, the man of the Erie Dispatch, is astonished at the discomfort a certain college Professor suffers from "the air." He alleges that years ago when he used to "pony out" his Latin (he owns up to this) at Dartmouth, under that very Professor, the latter was compelled, by the harsh New-Hampshire air, to accept a higher salary at Princeton. A little later the Jersey air so disagreed with him, that he was compelled to accept more pay and less work in New-York; and quite recently, his health has so broken down under the uncongenial climate, that he has gone to give quarterly receipts for a still higher salary in an Eastern college. The scoffer fears that if college trustees do not cease tendering more ducats, they will speedily be the death of that Professor.

A resident of Concord, N. H., has written to the Boston Transcript a brief defense of State Senator ALVAN SMITH against the unjust and outrageous assaults upon his character made by prominent Democratic politicians and papers. The writer says that a more pure-minded, honorable and incorruptible man does not live. He is no longer young, having reached seventy-four years, but his mind is as clear and his judgment as sound as at any time of his life. He has been one of the most consistent men in New-Hampshire, and always acted conscientiously in the discharge of his political as well as all other duties. He became a member of the Free-soil Party when it was too small to attract soldiers of fortune, having joined it entirely through the force of his convictions many years before it had honors to bestow; indeed, while it was so small as hardly to disturb his old Whig and Democratic predilections. Mr. SMITH, be it remembered, was chosen to his present place by the Democrats of the Legislature to supply the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. TREADWELL, soon after the March election. And they selected him because they were compelled, by the requirements of the Constitution, to elect one of two Republicans, and preferred to "stick" him rather than the regular Republican Party candidate.

ILLINOIS.

A Tour of Observation—Condition of the Harvests—Education Matters—Miscellaneous.

From Our Own Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Friday, June 30, 1871.

I have just returned from a tour of between three and four hundred miles through this State, and can report to the bread-consuming people of the East that the Lord of the harvest is dealing most bountifully with His people this year. The crops of all kinds look well, with the exception of wheat, in some localities, they show the effect of the destructive appetites of the insects. But, with all these drawbacks, the prospects are that there will again be plenty in the land when another harvest is gathered in. The recent rains, which have prevailed over a large extent of country, have done a "world of good," and their cash value to the farmers is past calculation.

If we—that is, our producers—were not so far from market, and consequently at the mercy of the railroads, the wealth of the West would increase rapidly. As it is, the lion's share gets into the hands of transportation men, warehousemen, and other parties who interpose between the producers and the buyers. But even with all these drawbacks, the wealth of the agricultural West is increasing year by year, to which condition of things a succession of good crops has contributed. Two poor years, like 1868 and '69, would produce a crash; the foundation of our business would be gone, and all classes would suffer, as a matter of course. Old mother earth, after all, has to supply the means to keep the machinery of society in motion.

EDUCATIONAL.

This has been "Commencement Week" in Chicago, an event which in smaller towns is one of great interest, but with us it is almost overshadowed in the whirl and noise of business. Chicago University, which is a favorite with our citizens, graduated thirty-eight young men on Thursday—a majority of them from the Law Department. The Theological Department, graduating twelve, closed some weeks ago. The exercises of the Graduating Class were of a high order, and the Collegiate Department drew forth the high praise from a distinguished Eastern educator that it "was equal to any in the country, and superior to most." The course of instruction is thorough, and the Faculty is composed of men who understand their business and do it well. There have been over three hundred students on the register during the past year. The University, like all young institutions, is short of permanent funds, and consequently its usefulness is less than it would be with an adequate endowment. Here is a rare opportunity for some of your millionaires to hand their names down through untold generations as benefactors of their race by the endowment of chairs, to which their names should be given. The name of Senator DOUGLAS will be connected with the University long after all his other honors have perished. It is the most enduring monument that could have been raised in his honor. He it was who laid the foundation by the donation of the ten acres upon which it is located—then, sixteen years ago, outside the city—now, the centre of a large population, which is rapidly increasing. But it will also forever remain as a monument of the energy, perseverance and self-sacrifice of its President, Rev. J. C. BURROUGHS, to whom we are all indebted that it exists at all. The usual honorary degrees were conferred after the closing of the exercises of the Graduating Classes; that of D. D. upon Rev. N. M. WILLIAMS, of Methuen, Mass., the venerable S. M. OSGOOD, of this city, who served as missionary for twelve years in Asia, and has been for several years past the Western District Secretary of the Missionary Union; Rev. M. G. STONE, of Milwaukee, and Rev. J. R. HIBBARD, of this city. The Alumni had their usual reunion, oration by Rev. ROBERT SHEPPARD, and a poem of rare merit from that erratic child of genius, B. F. TAYLOR.

The North-western University at the suburban town of Evanston, also had its Commencement last week, graduating a class of fourteen. The only noticeable fact connected with the event was the conferring of the honorary degree of LL.D. upon PHIL. SHERIDAN for his notable ride in the Shenandoah Valley, or for his "pushing things" after Petersburg—I don't know which. But it was not, I am quite sure, for his superior or extended knowledge of any kind of laws that our Methodist friends thus honored him.

The High School Commencement took place this afternoon. This is a great day in Chicago, especially with the parents and friends of the three or four hundred young gentlemen and ladies who are in attendance upon that institution, about one hundred of whom graduated. The course of instruction in the High School runs through four years, and is about equal to that of the ordinary colleges. Its scholarships are obtained through a competitive examination of the students who present themselves from the grammar schools. It is a great stimulus to study, and creates a vast amount of emulation to obtain the coveted places which are made vacant yearly by the going out of the Graduating Class. This enables the Board of Education to keep the standard high, and I have noticed for a large number of years that in the list of the successful applicants—as well as in the Graduating Class—the girls generally lead.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The excitement on the Sunday Liquor law still continues in a quiet sort of a way. Both sides are organizing for the Fall campaign, and we have promise of lively times. Last Sabbath we had a beginning of the new order of things. The German military were out parading the streets, and a "Dutch Justice" opened and held his Court—doing criminal business. I don't know how long our people will stand this sort of thing—this utter disregard and wholesale violation of the laws of the State; but the indications now are that we shall have in office after next November men who will enforce the laws.

Our Common Council is just now the especial objects of attention from the daily Press. That body is engaged upon the "budget" for the coming fiscal year, and of course have, as usual on such occasions, put into it a large amount of "steals." You know how that is yourself in New-York. The members are receiving the endearing epithets of "thieves," "rascals," "robbers," and so forth, from the papers which helped elect them, irrespective of party. People are getting discouraged by the heavy taxation, and are removing into the suburban towns. I saw it stated in one of our papers the other day, that one hundred families have left lately for a single town on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad. No wonder people get tired working for the tax-eaters. There will be a tremendous effort next Fall to rid the city of this new lot of "barnacles," which are nearly or quite as bad as those choked off two years ago.

The general current of events in this city presents no new aspects. Business is fair, though not on the high-pressure principle of some former years. The passage of the park bills has renewed land speculation to such an extent that the sales reached $2,000,000 last week—the highest figure ever touched. Money is plenty in the hands of capitalists, and the tendency of the rate of interest is still downward. Large sums are constantly coming here from the East for investment, and this keeps up the speculating mania. There have been no failures of importance recently—none, in fact, since the crash among the dry-goods men last Winter. Building is going on extensively, the low price of materials and labor being in favor of property-owners. Brick-makers and laborers, however, complain grievously of hard times.

THE ADIRONDACKS.

The Scenery and the Climate—The Best of Invalids Who Should Go There—The Means to the Wilderness—The Mountains and the Lakes—Hunting and Fishing.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LAKE PLACID,
NORTH ELBA, N. Y., Saturday, July 1.

The Adirondack Wilderness has always been famous for its good society in Summer—for quiet groups of scholars, artists, clergymen and such people of simple tastes for nature, as were attracted year by year to its solitary lakes and wild mountains—but this year it must have contained the crême de la crême of American society.

As a frequenter and lover of these fastnesses during the last thirteen years I have always been prepared for the time when a rush of travel should move through these lakes and mountains, and have frequently amused myself with locating future hotels and fashionable resorts in lonely points and near unfrequented sheets of water. For the grand attractions which will continue long after the sporting has ceased, is the wonderful and unequaled air and scenery of this wild region. The Summer atmosphere is like that of California or the High Alps, with a milder temperature than that of the latter; clear, stimulating, genial, full of life and beauty, and yet reposing to overstrung nerves. The climate seems to me to excel that of the White Mountains or the Alleghanies; seldom having the extremes of heat to which those regions are subject, and escaping, in a degree, the belt of rain which lines our coast. Thus during the past month the temperature near the Adirondack Mountains ranged low down among the seventies, falling perhaps ten degrees during the night, and now and then getting much lower. Last year and the year before, while even the Catskills were afflicted by incessant rain, these mountains suffered under a drouth, which, though injurious to the farmers, was delightful to townspeople. This year, however, has been exceptionably rainy. The principal inconvenience during Summer is the cold, the thermometer having fallen repeatedly to 42° and once to 29°. The explanation of this fact I suppose to be the considerable height of many of the resorts here, (from 1,500 to 2,500 feet,) the neighborhood of so many high mountains, the evaporation from numerous lakes, and the radiation every night from the vast body of forest which constitutes "The Wilderness." It is this phenomenon which renders this region so injurious to the majority of consumptive invalids; and if Mr. MURRAY has led any of them here he has made a serious mistake. Moreover, owing to this powerful radiation, it is not a dry region. Every night the dews are very heavy. There are but few localities where "the dry air of pines" surrounds one away from the influence of bodies of water; and in them, the air is heavy and the invalid is infested with insects. The patients who ought to come here are those suffering from some form of nervous prostration and from the universal curse of overwork. For many of these the Adirondack air lifts "in the open" is a renewal of youth and health. But even they must remember that the fare in most of the houses or in camp is not as nourishing as they enjoy at home. Beef they can seldom have; venison they may enjoy occasionally, and trout frequently, but mutton will be the stand-by. The bread is usually bad. Wild berries are abundant, and maple-sugar (a healthful mountain tidbit) and good crackers can always be obtained, with fresh milk.

All those depending on luxuries and comforts had better keep away, but those who desire to renew worn-out bodies and nerves by a little wild life and nature should not fail to make the experiment. For children, many of the farm-houses (where board can be obtained for from five to seven dollars a week for young and old,) are perfect paradises. Here they "berry" and boat and fish, and play in the bright sunshine all the day long, without the restraint of fashionable dresses and the poison of rich hotel food. Every one is kind to them, and they pass a Summer of perfect health and enjoyment. My own observation is that ladies are extremely benefited by the camping trips, if they are managed by experienced persons. The entire change of habits, diet and mode of life seems often to remake the constitution and restore lost tone to the nervous system. The mere fatigue on these trips is not generally great, and the exercise hardly enough for vigorous men, if they make the guides do the work.

THE ROUTE.

What is now needed for this region is a thorough guide-book. Mr. MURRAY's book was not intended for that, and, if it had been, is very inadequate. He seems acquainted with but one access, and only a few turns through it. There are really two separate and distinct portions of the Adirondack Wilderness—the mountain scenery and the lake country. The former contains the most beautiful scenery, and the latter the game and the arrangements for sporting. The most attractive part of the mountain country is reached from Westport, on Lake Champlain and Elizabethtown, and the best points to enjoy it are Keene Flats, Scott's, at North Elba, and Nash's, on Lake Placid. The most beautiful point in the whole wilderness is the view near Lake Placid, whence White Face (some five thousand feet high) fills one end of this lovely piece of water, and the broken outline of the pine peaks of the Adirondacks forms the southern horizon, with Mount Marcy, (over a mile high,) McIntyre and other fine summits, and the deep passes—the Indian and Avalanche Pass—making dark openings through them, while in the foreground is a picturesque line of wooded hills and an exquisite little lake, reflecting every outline on its quiet surface. The view changes with every change of morning and evening light, and altogether is the most beautiful landscape I know of in the Eastern States. The farm-house near the lake, where stranders stop, is a very pleasant, plain, comfortable house, and kept by honest, obliging people. Excursions can be made from this point to all the high mountains. Board can be obtained in this region at from $5 to $7 a week, or at $1 50 a day. Another portion of the mountains can also be visited from Crown Point, and Mount Marcy be climbed from the Adirondack Iron-works. The easiest of the high mountains to ascend is White Face.

THE LAKE COUNTRY.

If the tourist is after game, he must avoid the traveled routes on the lakes. Every one this Summer seems to have gone right in Mr. MURRAY'S trail, and accordingly many have had less venison in the Wilderness than they would at the Fifth-avenue Hotel. The best sporting-ground is new, without doubt, the Fulton "Chain of Lakes," which terminates with Moose River, Arnold's, and Sixberry's, for the Black River and Utica Railroad. Or the small ponds near Little Trappers Lake may be visited for deer, or the lower Raquette River, below Piercefield Falls, on the road out toward Colton and the St. Lawrence. Some of the out-of-the-way lakes, like Bull Lake, Sesame, Still also, at times, be good hunting-grounds. But the day for deer-shooting has probably passed. If the law forbidding "hounding" is observed, deer will only be killed on the few warm nights, under a "jack," or light on the boat, or will occasionally be shot feeding, on a mild afternoon, at the edges of the ponds. The slaughtering for skins, and the murdering the does with fawns, are rapidly exterminating them.

As for fishing, fly-fishers have long understood that the best sport is to be found elsewhere than in the Adirondacks—still, each party can commonly supply its table with trout, and now and then a splendid strike is made, but when we hear of "fifty pounds of trout caught at a spring-hole in an hour," (as was reported recently,) we may bet it down very probably as a "fish story." The truth is, the fishing in October, over the spawning-beds, is also gradually exterminating the trout. Still there is yet an immense quantity of them in these waters; and whoever would come here in the Spring, would soon be surfeited with them. August is the worst month of the year for trout-fishing. The mountain region seems at present a better fishing-place than the Lakes. Besides the well-known route by Plattsburg and the Ausable Forks to the Lower Saranac, there is a cheaper and, to travelers from the South, a shorter, by Westport and Elizabethtown via North Elba to Martin's, the road carrying the tourist through very grand mountain scenery. The objection to it is the overcrowded state of Elizabethtown. Another very interesting route is by the new Adirondack Railroad from Saratoga to a point near Warrensburg, and then by stage or wagon, via Minerva, to Long Lake. Still others are from Boonsville to Arnold's, by horse, there taking boats, or from Potsdam and Colton up the Raquette River. However the traveler enter, he or she should bring no luggage but India-rubber mackintosh and plenty of heavy blankets, with some select articles of provision for camping.

The trip will necessarily be an expensive one. If the party be camping, the expenses will probably mount up to six dollars a day each, and perhaps higher. If they stay in houses, the board is usually two dollars to two dollars and a half per day, and any movements must cost, for guides, portages, &c., some five dollars more. Many have been already disappointed this Summer in finding the journey in the lake country so expensive. The lakes, it should be remembered, are not remarkable for any grand scenery; but have a quiet, lonely beauty which is very attractive to the frequenters of them. The finest are Long Lake and "Big Tupper's." The mountain division of the region is much superior in scenery, and affords very cheap places for a Summer residence. Whatever hotel-keeper would make his fortune should choose some striking point of view like the borders of Lake Placid, or a promontory in Long Lake, and put up a first-class hotel. It would be crowded the whole season. We are grateful that we saw the "Wilderness" first from the opening of the solitary tent and the guide's boat, and tried hemlock boughs for beds, and venison on forked sticks, before such luxuries as mattresses, or cook-ranges, or hotels, were introduced. Still now, with all its drawbacks, it can be pronounced, if in the one grand health-restoring spot of the Eastern States, and we only wish it could be preserved as a public park or reservation for the American people forever.

The Sale of Lager in the Bay State.

At the special election, on Saturday, Boston gave a majority of 5,398 votes in favor of permitting the sale of lager, ale and strong beer, the vote standing 7,431 to 1,433. Cambridge went the same way also on a light vote, though the contest there was close enough to afford excitement. New-Bedford, where, it is asserted, prohibition has been better enforced than anywhere else in the State, likes the way it works, and the people men met another defeat, the vote standing, yeas 949, nays 3,193. Charlestown, Lawrence and some other cities in the eastern part of the State did not vote.

The returns of towns in Western Massachusetts voting on the question was quite small, but of those voting, almost exclusively the larger towns, the result is pretty generally one way, and that sanctioning the sale. The Hampden County towns which held meetings all voted that way—Westfield 190 to 109, Palmer 128 to 106, and Palmer 52 to 25. Northampton went the same way, 90 to 87, and is perhaps the only town in Hampshire that voted that way. Ware voting so in a large and enthusiastic meeting, and few, if any, of the other towns voting as all. Greenfield voted beer, 128 to 64; Pittsfield, by 66 to 170; Stockbridge, 60 to 54, and Great Barrington, 127 to 120; North Adams, by some unexplained mystery, voted no by dissolving the meeting without action, and Lee by 263 to 119. None of the towns in Southern Berkshire other than those already mentioned held meetings. In Worcester, the excitement was greater than ever before known by any previous vote. Both parties were hard at work throughout the week, and money was spent freely. The polls were open only from 11 o'clock until 2, and were surrounded throughout by an eager and excited crowd. In one ward five tickets were distributed at one ballot-box throughout the day. Teams and carriages were kept running, and the result was a larger vote than was ever before polled there in the same space of time, the final result being a victory for the sellers and their friends by the close vote of 1,100 to 1,086. Worcester voted beer, 794 to 140; Milbury no beer, 103 to 74; Leicester recorded no beer, 99 to 75. In addition to the towns already mentioned, Ludlow, Brimfield, Granby, Westhampton, Cummington, Goshen, Plainfield, Lenox and Hampden held no meetings.

The Inconvenience of Obliging One's Friends by Playing Idol.

In connection with the recent annual celebration of the "Voudois," which is always attended with many eccentricities, the New-Orleans Picayune tells the following:

"Their strange superstition is capable of as many vagaries as the mind has ideas. One of the essential requisites of their saturnalia is an idol. It represents some fetish divinity. Not having one at hand on Saturday at their demonstration at the Lake, they persuaded a well-known citizen to personate it. For this purpose he mounted a pedestal prepared for the purpose, and was soon invested with the robes of office. It was somewhat inconvenient to sit out in the heating sun and receive the positions of his worshipers all day long; but he did so it. But when night closed in he was somewhat surprised to learn that it was the custom of the Voudous to sacrifice their idols. That one of the least bit alarming. On one side of him MARIA LAURE was preparing the sacrificial robe, while on the other, Dr. ANTOINE was whetting the knife that was designed to kill him. Manuse looked serious. The citizen looked around to appeal for help. Every where he met the upturned faces of the Voudous. It was more than could endure. And with a yell of affright and a wild jump for liberty, he cleared the circle at a bound and made for the woods, the whole yelling pack at his heels. But terror lent him fleetness, and the ravine toward the west, he soon found himself ingloriously traversing Bienville-street in the direction of Washington-square. Here he encountered a policeman who took him in. Arrested before Judge LEGENDRE, he attempted an explanation of his unhappy condition; but his interpretation of his language so confused, that he was so recent and his ideas so confused, that he could say nothing intelligibly. Under these circumstance he was very properly sent to the asylum as insane.

EUORPEAN NEWS BY MAIL.

AFFAIRS IN ENGLAND.

Fate of the Army Bill—Matters in Ireland —Nationalism and Ultramontanism—A Boston Amnesty—The Tichborne Trial —A Moving Mass and a Question of Identity.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LONDON, Tuesday, June 20, 1871.

Practically the Army bill of the Government is lost for the present year. It has, indeed, been passed through Committee in the House of Commons, but only by the sacrifice of some of the most important clauses—those relating to the reconstitution of the militia as a real reserve of military force; and it is announced that the House of Lords intend to take advantage of this, and of the late period of the session at which the measure will come up to them, to reject it on the second reading. At a meeting of conservative Peers, at the Duke of RICHMOND'S, yesterday, this course was decided upon, and I have no doubt it will be carried out. The object of the Opposition will now be to keep back the Ballot bill, so that it may founder too, and in that case the Government will have absolutely nothing to show for the whole session but a sixpence income tax. For my own part I see no particular reason to mourn over the Army bill, which was an extremely imperfect and insufficient measure. It went no doubt quite as far as public opinion was ready to go, and the Government were, if anything, rather ahead of the people. But still it fell far short of what is really required to put the defences of England in a proper position. The people have, I think, quite made up their mind about the purchase of commissions, which must now be regarded as knocked on the head. The only question is as to the terms on which the officers shall be brought out, and I suspect that in rejecting the present offer of the Government they have done a very bad stroke of business for themselves, for it is very doubtful whether they will ever get such a good price for their rights again. But where the people are backward as regards their own share of military obligations, they are horrified at the idea of compulsory service in any shape; but it is certain that this is what we are coming to and must soon come to, and if there were any new European difficulties I dare say England would get it at once. It is a pity for the country's sake that things have so completely quieted down, and that the panic of last Winter has subsided. A writer in the Cologne Gazette very truly remarks that if Germany wanted to make England a respectable military State, she would do it at once by pretending to get up a fleet for the conquest of England, studying English maps, distributing English phrase-books among the troops, ordering water-proof clothing, (a hit at our rainy climate,) and making similar preparations for a few months. England would at once take the hint and see to her army directly. "Anything else or less," says the German journalist, "will hardly ever do it," and I believe he is right. But it is not from Germany that there is any reason to fear at all, but from a much nearer neighbor. France is the real danger. The character of a nation is not changed in a day, and not even the fiery furnace of affliction through which France has just passed, has been able to purge her of the old swaggering vanity which so often beguiled her to disaster. The more desperate and degraded France becomes, the more virulently and recklessly will the pulse for military "glory" be displayed. I should not be in the least surprised if before another year is over England found itself in collision with France, about Belgium or some other question. The sons of the French Freat, within the last few days, has been very bitter toward England, and there is not wanting a suspicion that it is countenanced, if not stimulated, by some of the leaders, in the hope that the distraction of a foreign quarrel might help to settle things at home, and favor the advancement of their own intrigues for power. Of course France is too crippled for immediate action of any kind, but we may depend upon it, she will never rest till she has tried to get some little show of military prowess as a set-off against the incessant and humiliating defeats of the late war.

MATTERS IN IRELAND.

Another "Nationalist" (as the advocates of the repeal of the union between England and Ireland are now called) has just been returned to Parliament by an Irish constituency to keep Mr. MARTIN company. Westmeath, for which Mr. P. J. SMYTH has just been elected, is the county for which a Coercion act has just been passed in consequence of the reign of the Ribbonmen, who are Irish Kaxtaxes all over the region. There is, therefore, nothing in the wondered at in anything Westmeath might do; but there is one circumstance connected with this election which is regarded as of more alarming significance than the result. That another Nationalist should have been sent to Parliament is of little consequence; indeed, it may be said that Parliament is the best place for them; but the alliance now disclosed between the priesthood and the repealers, and the evident readiness of the former to bid for popular support at any price, is indeed an evidence of serious danger. Dr. MULTY, the Roman Catholic Bishop of Meath, in a public proclamation, cordially indorsed Mr. SMYTH'S candidature, and thus sealed the union between Nationalism and Ultramontanism. What the priests want is absolute command over the education of the people, and though they doubtless have no desire to see the triumph of the repealers, they are quite ready to use them for their own purposes, and to frighten the English Government into a surrender.

A FENIAN RAID.

On Saturday night the militia barracks at Mallow (Ireland) were broken into by a party of men supposed to be Fenians. They seized a large number of Snider rifles, but were surprised in the act of carrying them off and left a lot of them in a field, packed in flour bags ready for transport. About forty rifles are still missing. It is suspected that this attack was part of a concerted movement, including simultaneous assaults on Kinsale and Brandon militia barracks. The latest particulars are contained in the following telegram which has just been published:

The North Cork Rifle Regiment is 600 strong. The barrack is situated at the west end of the mall. From two to three hundred stand of arms were the object of the attack contain 400 converted Enfield breech-loading rifles. The guard at the barrack by night numbers eight men, with a Corporal and a Sergeant, and there are 300 of the regiment accommodated on the premises. The remaining 400 are billeted about the town. About 2 o'clock on Sunday morning the Sergeant of the guard heard a noise in a field that surrounds the western end of the barrack. He procured a ladder, and on looking over the wall he saw about twenty men with a number of arms. He immediately gave alarm, and had the assembly sounded. A force of men having been collected, they marched into the field, and they saw the plunderers running in the direction of the railway embankment. They gave chase, and by three officers, who had just come up, and in the pursuit some of the militia fired, the fugitives scanning the fire. It was noticed that as they retreated the thieves were throwing away rifles. The militia continued the pursuit for nearly half a mile, until the Fenians crossed the railway embankment, when they were lost to view. At every step rifles were picked up, and near the railway embankment a large bag of bayonets was found. Two immense holes, large enough to admit a man, had been punched in the wall of the arms and bedding store. It is supposed that the plunderers bored the bedding store first, and discovering their mistake, then forced an entrance into the arms depot. The ground near the openings was very much trampled, and was scattered with bayonets and rifles. A dark lantern was also found. The stove into which an entrance was made contains the rifles and bayonets of four companies, numbering about two hundred. The official return shows that 106 were removed, of which sixty-six were recovered, thirty-nine rifles and twenty bayonets being still missing."

THE TICHBORNE TRIAL.

The counsel for the claimant in this case today made an alarming statement as to the proceedings, which made the Judge and jury look aghast. He said that in consequence of the amount of time already consumed he had had a consultation with the other side. By not or Parliament the Court had no power to sit beyond the 10th of August, and no power to renew the sittings until the 3d of November. The question was whether before the 10th of August the plaintiff's case could be finished, and his learned friend enabled to make his speech for the defense. This, however, was found to be perfectly impossible. The plaintiff had said that he had 12 witnesses still to examine, and that was only a trifling exaggeration, for there were certainly nearly 100 whom the emergencies of the case would require should be examined. Many of these, no doubt, would be short witnesses, but many must take a considerable time in their examination in chief. There was also a great body of evidence from Australia on commission, which he must lay before the jury, and possibly he would in the end have to call rebutting evidence. Under these circumstances, they had agreed to apply to his Lordship that he would allow an adjournment about the 10th of July, as that would be a great convenience to everybody, and would not be was sure, cause unnecessary delay. The Solicitor-General concurred in this application, to which the Chief-Justice gave a provisional assent. The question will doubtless be raised in Parliament whether judicial proceedings of so important and critical a nature should be suspended for several months in order that the Judge, jury and advocate should take a holiday. The question at issue is whether the claimant is or is not an impostor; and, of course, if he is, he will have plenty of time in the vacation to prepare for the rehearal of the case and school himself for the part he is playing.

A ROVING BARL.

Meanwhile, another case of a very similar character, except that there is no question of personation and no conflict of claims, has come before one of the Scotch Courts. On the 27th of January, last year, the second mate of the Hoss, bound from Boston to Melbourne, fell overboard and was drowned, and afterward there appeared reason to believe that the second mate was no other than the Earl of ABERDEEN, grandson of the well-known statesman, who, seized with a sudden distaste for fashionable life, and eager for adventure, had left England in 1866, and was known to have devoted himself to a sea-faring life. In May, 1868, he arrived at Boston, in company with Lord GOSFORD and Mr. PETERKIN; but on parting from his companions shortly after this date, he appears to have adopted the pseudonym of Osborne; and, excepting an occasional letters home, he was never afterward known by his own name. Toward the end of the year his mother received some letters from him. In one of these, dated Boston, Oct. 21, he wrote:

"You will be glad to hear that I really think that my lungs are permanently cured by the long spell of warm weather and sea air, yet I think it would be foolish to make a return to England just at this season. * * No, much as I should enjoy once more to taste the sweet pleasures of family life, I cannot yet leave this land of freedom and common sense. * * * I think I will agree to the proposals of the missionaries, and join them in their beautiful little vessel which sails about the 1st of November for Honolulu and the Friendly Islands."

In another letter, dated Dec. 5, 1869, the following passage occurred:

"I never told you my adventures on the African voyage, or about loading salt in the West Indies, or about the mysterious man, or about the wounded cook turned sailor, or the amorous mate, or the mate who fell asleep on the wheel, or about the cook drunk, a Frenchman erying, the second mate bullying, or about the Captain drunk; the mate three-quarters drunk, the second mate drunk, and the ship running on George's Shoal, and being saved by the undisguised, who was not drunk; about the Italian sailor overboard, and the good one saved; about the honest soldier, about the heavy island, the Arcadia of the Atlantic—about the French cook—good times now for the shell-backs, plenty to eat, and good at that—or 'A shark! A shark!' pork the hook—he is caught, haul him aboard; frantic terror of the passengers—cries of consul—suicide—the shark is killed—the sharks, steaks for breakfast—or about the undersigned sick with cholera; he gets well; he gets his toe crushed; he knocks off at 4 P. M.; he turns-to again at 8 A. M. next day—Spanish pilots; or about the undersigned painting yards—tired and hot, lets bucket fall—topsail sheet—white boat with paint—spattered—Captain swears—Captain swears—mate runs—mate runs—undersigned tries to look serious—gets soap and hot water and cleans boat—no more painting for undersigned—just what he wanted."

Among the witnesses produced last week at Edinburgh, to prove the identity of CROCKER and the Earl, were SEWELL SHAILS, residing in the State of Maine, who was with GEORGE H. CROCKER when the latter commanded the schooner Walton, of Richmond, Me.; JAMES ERASTUS GREEN, a carpenter by trade, who knew GEORGE H. CROCKER, of the schooner Walton, for about two years, having been mate under him for about three months in that vessel; and JOHN PALMER WILSON, sea Captain, who took OSBORNE as a passenger to New-York, on board the brig William Mallory, in February, 1867, bound for Galveston, Texas. While on this passage, OSBORNE volunteered to act as a sailor, and showed great knowledge of navigation, which he said he had studied at Boston. A series of photographs was also produced, some taken in England and some in America, and these were spoken to as portraits of the same person by numerous witnesses, including the Earl's own mother. Next there was a similarity of appearance, manners and habits. Lord ABERDEEN had a peculiarity in his walking, as had GEORGE OSBORNE. Lord ABERDEEN was an excellent shot, and GEORGE OSBORNE had sold to a gentleman in Richmond a rifle which, it is said, can be proved to have belonged to the late Earl. GEORGE OSBORNE, it is proved, had a great liking for the sea, for mechanics, mathematics, pictures, drawing, music and children; and these, say the witnesses, "were exactly the characteristics of Lord ABERDEEN when in this country." Furthermore, it seems that both these persons were extremely religious and well-conducted, and never missed an opportunity of attending church. All these circumstances point conclusively to the Earl and the sailor being the same man, and, as I said, there is no challenge of identity on the part of any one. The proceedings are taken merely to set any doubts at rest and prevent the occurrence at some future period of such a suit as has been raised in the Tichborne case. The Sheriff has not, however, yet given his judgment, as he is waiting for some further evidence on one or two raised points. F. J. H.

GERMANY AND ENGLAND.

A Suggested Annexation of the United Kingdom.

From the London Times, June 19.

The Allgemeine Zeitung, of the 3d inst., contains a letter, in the somewhat heavy style of German irony, purporting to be addressed by a German naturalized in England to the Emperor WILLIAM, with the view of urging the invasion and absorption of this country by Germany. The writer, premising that his description of the political condition of England is confirmed by many intelligent natives of undoubted patriotism, who feel that "the time is out of joint," states that the loyalty which formerly pervaded all classes no longer exists, while reverent and chivalrous loyalty toward the Crown, gradation of classes, and natural confidence and reliance among them, have given place to contempt and disregard of all authority and rank, jealousy of the power and rights of the Throne, envy of the privileges of the nobility, defiance and arrogance and harshness among the great, morose discontent among the masses, greedy thirst for wealth, and a not less greedy thirst for luxury. He does not question the daring of our sailors or the bravery of our soldiers, but the capacity which once equipped fleet and armies, and the spirit which sustained them in the face of victorious enemies, domestic rebellions and exhausted finances, are extinct. The electors, as the result of two Reform acts, consist of hard-handed, hard-headed cotton, woollen and iron workers, with little education and with no historical knowledge or love for ancestral institutions. Even the better informed derive their information only from some wretched hand-book, apparently intended to show that the object of all the historical personages of England was the intellectual and material degradation of the artisans. "Let your ear," he remarks parenthetically, "compare this state of education with that of your Prussian subjects!" English statesmanship has condded to such ignorant, prejudiced, embittered, sullen, and beer-drinking people an almost exclusive power in the representation, which, being the absolute majority in all the large towns, and able, if only united, to elect whom they would, while as it is nobody can be elected in direct opposition to them. As are the electors so are the elected—a few superior in point of birth and of education, and many in point of wealth, they combine with nearly all the prejudices of their constituents the apprehensions inspired by newly acquired property, know equally little of the history of England, delude themselves with one-sided doctrines and narrow-minded traditions, and are narrowly sensitive as regards the surest means of securing the continued cleanliness of that highway in all seasons and in all weather. The work was commenced in 1867 by Mr. R. A. SMITH, and continued until 1869, when Col. D. E. DELAVAN, the then City Inspector, relieved the merchants from further charge by assuming the duty himself. No change was made, however, in the execution of the work until 1861. The condition of this main thoroughfare of our City when the work commenced may be inferred when we state that over eight hundred loads of dirt were collected and removed on its first cleaning. Subsequently the average quantity collected by the sweeping-machines was eight loads per night. The entire cost of the whole work—Winter and Summer—was but $300 per week. The superior degree of cleanliness maintained on Broadway during this whole period has not been excelled or even equaled since.

In 1859 the City Inspector, desirous of a further test of the sweeping-machines, on other streets than Broadway, employed Mr. SMITH to clean all the leading streets in the lower Wards twice on each week. This was so effectually done that the work was further extended, by the concurrence of the Mayor and Controller, to all the avenues and main streets in the City. The salutary effects of this measure received the commendation of the entire public and Press. The average cost of the work, if applied to the whole City, would not have exceeded the sum of $300,000 per annum.

In 1860 the Common Council, refusing to order a contract for cleaning the streets, in compliance with the City charter, the Mayor, Controller and City Inspector entered into a temporary arrangement with Mr. SMITH, whereby the whole City was to be cleaned, and kept clean, at the rate of $300,000 per annum—the work to be done by the day. This arrangement met with the opposition of Councils, and notwithstanding petitions from our citizens of all classes, praying that the street-sweeping machines might be allowed to continue their work, poured into both branches of Councils, (one of these documents embraced over six thousand names of the leading merchants and business men of New-York,) Mr. SMITH was compelled to suspend his operations—this arrangement not giving him such legal standing as to insure success. The energy with which the work was forwarded, while the arrangement lasted, showed conclusively what the result would be if it had been continued. Subsequently the contract with A. J. HAGMEY was executed. In 1863 this contract was rescinded by the City Inspector, F. I. A. BOOLE—when the work of cleaning the streets was done under his own direction—until the present contract was executed. In the first year of Mr. BOOLE'S administration, the work was done at a cost of over $900,000 per annum. In the second year it amounted to $1,200,000; but it must be acknowledged that Mr. BOOLE really did endeavor to sweep the streets once per week in a thorough manner, and confession will show that, to do this by manual labor, would cost that amount. We will even concede, to say that he continued this laudable effort for any lengthened period, but that he did attempt it we know. In 1866 an act of the Legislature, constituting a Commission to make a contract for cleaning the streets, was passed. This Commission, in the original bill, consisted of three members, to wit: the Mayor, Controller and City Recorder. There was a clause also in the bill requiring each bidder for the job to state, in writing, how often in each week he or they would clean the streets for the sum named, and in what manner the work would be performed. The bill however, in the Committee of Conference, was amended so as to include the City Inspector and Corporation Counsel. The specification clause was likewise omitted. This bill compelled the work to be done by contract.

In the bids received for the work under this law there were three from the "New-York Sanitary and Chemical Compost Manufacturing Company," organized under the laws of the State of New-York for the manufacture of chemical compounds and manures from the waste and offal of this City. The first of these bids was upon the specifications of the Commission, the price named being $300,000. These specifications are those under which the present contract is executed. The second bid included an increased grade of service, over and above the advertised specifications, the price named was $600,000. The third bid included the daily cleaning of all the leading streets in the City—the sum named, $2,000,000 per annum. JAMES R. WHITING and D. D. BADGER were the sureties on each of these bids, all of which were strictly in form, and in accordance with the spirit and intent of the act. The Commission rejected these bids, alleging "that the Company being incorporated under the general manufacturing laws of the State, could not execute a contract to clean the streets." This was certainly a new doctrine, that a manufacturing company could not contract for the raw material used in its business. The contract was therefore awarded to BROWN, DE VOE & EMERY, the grade of service being the lowest of the Company's bids, while the contract price was the highest. Without following the details of this contract since its execution, we have no hesitation in saying that the terms of its specifications were not in the accomplished with at any time after it was awarded, as the elements did more than the contractors. The present method of cleaning the streets of New-York are nearly the same, and with as little result, though of late years the Board of Health have taken steps to secure a proper cleanliness in the lower part of the City; not always with success, however.

A Complaint That Too Much Coal is Mined.

From the Scranton (Penn.) Republican, July 1.

We think it is a fact beyond question that there are at present sent to market not less than 800,000 tons of coal per week. At this rate there would be 36,000,000 of tons shipped per year. As there have not been here before, and will not during the next twelve months, to consumed more than about 16,000,000 of tons—at most not more than 18,000,000—it does not require a very competent accountant to see what the result must inevitably be. Either the present rate of production must be reduced or there must be months of idleness at some time within twelve months. At least every fifth ton of coal mined is in excess of the demand for actual consumption. This state of affairs may continue for some months, but it will finally end in a shutted market first, speedily followed by a still further reduction in the price of coal, and then a reduction in the miners' and laborers' wages, or suspension. We premise that to the operators of coal mines it will be a matter of comparatively little moment when the market does become overstocked, for by a combination they can simply retain their stocks for a few months, when the retailers will be run short and the price go up. The large corporations need not sell their coal for months, though they have millions of tons on hand. The usual history of the coal trade bears evidence of the truth of this assertion. Perhaps not in ten years was the market so thoroughly exhausted as it was at the close of the last suspension, and yet coal is selling almost as low to-day—after only a few weeks of work—as it did in November last. To illustrate: In November, at the auction sales in New-York, some of the coal sold for $4.55 per ton, and at the last sales—on Wednesday—120,000 tons were disposed of at an average of $4.72. It is more than likely that at the July sales it will be fully as low as in November, and, if the present immense production continue, it may go even below those figures.

It is evident that at some time, sooner or later, the production must be reduced very greatly. But instead of the number of coal works being diminished, they are multiplying rapidly in the entire coal-fields of Pennsylvania, bituminous as well as anthracite. All over-production cannot but result in a great length of time to either the operators or miners. The people, of course, demand cheap fuel; but they cannot get it and the miners receive large wages, and the operators make large fortunes at the same time. Unless the miners receive good wages, they will not work; and when the operators come to make a fortune out of the capital invested, they will turn it into other and more profitable channels. The only way in which it is possible to keep the prices of coal as a standard that will give the miners good wages and the operators a satisfactory return on their invested capital, is to approximate the production of coal more nearly with the consumption.

The Sad Drowning Accident in Avondale (well Key.

The following particulars of the drowning of a young man and two young ladies, one of the latter a resident of this City, in Irondequoit Bay, on Monday morning, are given by the Rochester Union:

A party composed of about thirty persons, belonging to families who are intimate, went to the Bay for a pic nic. They reached the Newport House safely, and embarked in boats for fishing and rowing. In one boat were Mr. KELLAR B. DYLAM, Miss BELLA LELAND and Miss CARRIE ABELL, of New-York, the latter visiting in the family of Mr. JOHN SOUTHALL, on Ambits-street. In getting on board the boat the party were not properly seated, the load was too near one end, a sail coming part way over the bay. Mr. FREDERICK TURPIN, who was in another boat, had his attention called to the manner in which this boat was loaded, and advised those on board to keep still till the shore was reached, when a change could be made. Mr. TURPIN was then some distance away and ahead. A moment after, as the boat got on a wave, Mr. DYLAM, one of the other boats was overturned, and the inmates were struggling in the water. When he got to the boat not a soul was to be seen. All had sunk to rise no more. The water is sixty feet deep at this place, and any attempt at diving for the bodies would have been useless.

Mr. BYLAM was a man of twenty-two years of age, son of JOHN G. BYLAM, baggage-master on the New-York Central Railroad, residing at No. 19 Elizabeth-street. He had been five years employed as a book-keeper by Messrs. NEWELL & TURPIN. He is spoken of as a young man of unexceptionable character, esteemed by all who knew him. His sudden death will carry deep sorrow to the family and friends. Miss BELLA LELAND was a young lady about twenty-two years of age and a daughter of BENJAMIN W. LELAND, leather dealer. She was a teacher employed in Public School No. 13. She graduated at the Free Academy with honor, and took a place as a teacher, with the promise of rising to high rank in the profession. She was a most amiable lady, and justly enjoyed a high place in the affection of her family and the regard of her acquaintances. Miss CARRIE ABELL was a resident of New-York, and on a visit to the family of Mr. SOUTHALL. She was aged about fifteen years.

Tide-Water Receipts.

The quantity of flour, wheat, corn and barley left at tide-water during the fourth week in June, in the years 1870 and 1871, was as follows:

	Flour. Bbls.	Wheat. Bushels.	Corn. Bushels.	Barley. Bushels.
1870	30,800	832,800	169,200	400
1871	10,900	683,800	1,084,700	400
Dec.,	9,900	Dec. 150,300	Inc. 915,500	...

The aggregate quantity of the same articles left at tide-water from the commencement of navigation to the 30th ult., inclusive, during the years 1870 and 1871, was as follows:

	Flour. Bbls.	Wheat. Bushels.	Corn. Bushels.	Barley. Bushels.
1870	97,100	4,569,800	427,400	62,400
1871	78,700	4,826,200	4,358,400	40,100
Dec.,	8,400	Dec. 176,500	Inc. 3,930,900	Dec. 22,300

By reducing the wheat to flour, the quantity of the latter left at tide-water this year, compared with the corresponding period last year, shows a decrease equal to 43,440 barrels flour.

The following comparative table shows the quantity of some of the principal articles of produce left at tide-water from the commencement of navigation to and including the 30th of June in the years indicated:

Canal opened	May 6.	May 10.	April 24.
Flour, barrels	78,900	67,100	78,700
Wheat, bushels	4,108,400	4,608,500	4,228,300
Corn, bushels	1,403,100	407,600	4,399,400
Barley, bushels	11,800	52,400	40,100
Oats, bushels	900,400	622,100	598,600
Rye, bushels	182,100	228,900	48,200
Malt, bushels	174,600	154,000	225,000
Feed, pounds	1,280,600	2,477,400	1,679,800

Female Justices of the Peace in Massachusetts—Adverse Decision.

The following is the opinion of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts on the eligibility of women to the office of Justice of the Peace in that State. When the appointments of Mrs. JULIA WARD HOWE and Mrs. STEVENS, of Cambridge, were recommended by the Governor, exceptions were taken in the Executive Council, which led to the reference of the question to the Court.

The Justices of the Supreme Court having considered the questions upon which their opinion was required by His Excellency the Governor and the Honorable Council, in their communication herein, respectfully submit the following opinion:

By the Constitution of the Commonwealth the office of Justice of the Peace is a judicial office, and must be exercised by the office "power, and a woman, whether married or unmarried, cannot be appointed to such an office. The law of Massachusetts at the time of the adoption of the Constitution, the whole tribe and purport of the instrument itself, and the universal understanding and unbroken practical construction for the greater part of a century afterward, all support this conclusion, and are inconsistent with any other. It is known that if a woman should be formally appointed and commissioned as a Justice of the Peace, she would have no Constitutional or legal authority to exercise any of the functions appertaining to that office.

Each of the questions proposed must therefore be answered in the negative. Reuben A. Chapman, Horace Gray, Jr., John Wells, James D. Colt, Seth Ames, Marcus Morton.

BOSTON, June 29, 1871.

An Adroit Operation in Land.

On the 15th of August last WALTER MITCHELL, who is a native of England, thirty-five years of age, calls himself an agent, and lives at No. 17 St. Luke's-place, succeeded in convincing AUGUST DOMMEIN, of No. 150 East Twenty-sixth-street, that he was the owner of 1,296 acres of land in Pike County, Pennsylvania, which, being in a high state of cultivation, and having on it 4,000 bushels of potatoes and 200 apple-trees, would be a great bargain at $10,000. The matter was accordingly consummated by DOHRMAN becoming the purchaser of the farm, for which he gave MITCHELL $1,000 cash, a mortgage for $2,000 on Harlem property, and $7,000 in promissory notes. Going to take a view of his new possessions he repairs for them in vain, and finally discovered that MITCHELL had neither the difficult feat of selling what he had never owned. DOHRMAN making a complaint before Justice LUDWIGH at the Essex Market Police Court, a warrant was issued for the arrest of MITCHELL, which was executed yesterday by Detective REINER, of the Central Police, and the prisoner locked up at Police Head-quarters.

Cricket—Manhattan vs. St. George.

There was quite a number of cricketers at the cricket ground, foot of Ninth-street, Hoboken, yesterday, the occasion being the first game of the season between the Manhattan and St. George Clubs of this City. The weather was very favorable, the grounds in excellent order, and everything was propitious for a fine contest. Both clubs mustered in force, and the game opened early, with the Manhattans at the bat, a score of 70 marking their first innings play.

St. George then went in, but they had only scored 15 with five wickets down by SUCKER and EMERSLEY being nicely supported in bowling by excellent fielding, when by the bad judgment displayed in managing the field, all the advantage gained was thrown away, and before the last wicket of the inning had fallen, the score had been run up to 152. This retrieved moralised the Manhattans, and in their second innings they were easily disposed of for 87 runs, thus failing in their two innings play to equal the single inning score on the other side. The following is the score of the last inning on each side:

MANHATTAN.		ST. GEORGE.
Hosking, c Orr, b Talbot	1	Bance, run out	1
Livesey, c and b Wright	5	Bawtree, b H. Tucker	1
Jackson, b S. Wright	16	Orr, b H. Tucker	1
H. Tucker, b S. Wright	5	Morgan, c Oakley, b Kerr	9
Byron, b ———	0	Osborne, b ———	0
Jones, c Orr, b Talbot	20	Osborne, b W. Kenley	0
Kenley, c Orr, b Bance	17	S. Wright, b Withers	13
Dayton, run out	5	Jones, c and b Byron	1
Oakley, run out	0	Talbot, b H. Tucker	3
Tyler, c Orr, b Bance	1	Bowden, b Kenley	0
Withers, not out	4	Van Buren, c Tyler, b Byron	1
Sucker, b Bance	0	Byron	7
Byes 8, leg-byes 2, wides 1	4	Green, not out	5
Total	79	Byes 2, leg-byes 2, wides 1, no balls 1	6
		Total	110

Court Calendars—This Day.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Held by Cardozo, J.—Calendar called at 11 A. M.

Nos. 11—Edwards vs. Brown. 12—Winkler vs. Close.

Nos. 14—Winkler vs. Close.

Call No. 21—Noble vs. Battersby.

OYER AND TERMINER AND SUPREME COURT—CIRCUIT.

Part 1.—Held by Cardozo, J.

Criminal business.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

Held by Bedford, J.

1—The People vs. Michael Crowley; robbery.
2—The People vs. George Flanagan; burglary.
3—The People vs. Patrick Doyle; burglary.
4—The People vs. Edward Johnson, Thos. Murphy and Fred. Brick; assault and battery.
5—The People vs. Roby Marston; forgery.
6—The People vs. Joseph Hall; grand larceny.
7—The People vs. Henry Keenan; grand larceny.
8—The People vs. Mary McDermott; felonious assault and battery.
9—The People vs. John McDougal; larceny from the person.
10—The People vs. Lucy Feathers; arson.
11—The People vs. Peter Wood; felonious assault and battery.
12—The People vs. Thomas M. Fletcher; felonious assault and battery.
13—The People vs. Felix Winne; burglary.
14—The People vs. George Wallace, and Wm. Mooney; burglary.
15—The People vs. James Cavanagh, James Mooney and John Moffatt; burglary.
16—The People vs. Mary McAleer; grand larceny.
17—The People vs. Alexander Matthews and Timothy O'Brien; grand larceny.
18—The People vs. John Kelly; grand larceny.
19—The People vs. Robert Carter; grand larceny.
20—The People vs. Mary Mills; grand larceny.
21—The People vs. John H. Carson; grand larceny.
22—The People vs. Wm. Graham; grand larceny.
23—The People vs. Christopher Anderson; grand larceny.
24—The People vs. Henry Gould; grand larceny.
25—The People vs. Hugh Rice; grand larceny.
26—The People vs. Frank Smith; grand larceny.
27—The People vs. Wm. Murray; assault and battery with intent to commit rape.
28—The People vs. Hiram Wilkins; larceny from the person.

LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

TOTAL RECEIPTS OF LIVE STOCK AND COMPARATIVE STATEMENTS FOR THE WEEK ENDING TUESDAY, JULY 4, 1871:

	Beeves.	Cows.	Veals.	Lambs.	Swine.
This week	7,202	172	1,400	20,000	20,000
Previous week	6,927	43	1,250	22,000	20,000
Two weeks ago	6,511	43	1,247	22,000	21,972
Weekly average 1868	6,645	94	1,104	16,000	13,516
Weekly average 1869	6,870	90	1,769	20,000	17,941
Weekly average 1870	6,691	69	2,139	20,770	15,653
Weekly average of all kinds in 1868					41,277
Weekly average of all kinds in 1869					48,710
Weekly average of all kinds in 1870					45,252
Total of all kinds in 1868					2,776,491
Total of all kinds in 1869					2,501,309
Total of all kinds in 1870					2,300,759

	Beeves.	Cows.	Veals.	Lambs.	Sheep & Swine.
One Hundred th. at	1,961	33	700	800	...
W. Forty-eighth-st. at	1,151	13	577	10,197	...
Wells & Mercein-st. at	...	...	...	4,776	12,000
Communipaw Yards	3,975	...	...	6,794	13,705
Weehawken Yards	2,201	21	...	232	...
Chamberlin's Yards	13	36	700	1,200	...

Since our last weekly report trade in horned Cattle has been small and dull; prices have fallen a fraction, but it has been only on the inferior grades, for which description of Cattle there was scarce any demand. One herd of Texan Steers stood over, as no sales could be effected. The markets are quite overstocked, and generally the quality is fair. On Thursday last, at Weehawken Yards, there was a donation among salesmen, caused by the arrival of 22 head of short-horns, imported from England for J. PERL, of Kentucky. They were not offered for sale. Prices on that day ranged from 10½c. @12½c., weights from 5½ @7¼ cwt., on the 7th inst. at the same yards, 20 head of Texans sold at 10½c. @12c. ₱ lb., weight from 6@7¼ cwt., on the 8

The New-York Times.

NEW-YORK, WEDNESDAY, JULY 5, 1871.

Amusements this Evening.

WALLACK'S THEATRE. Broadway, corner 13th-st. THE LONG STRIKE. Leading characters by Messrs. Charles Fisher, Stoddart, Williamson, Miss Ella Barnett and Miss Fanny Clayton.

FIFTH-AVENUE THEATRE. 24th-st., near Broadway. DELMONICO'S; OR, LARKS UP THE REDSON. Leading characters by Messrs. D. H. Harkins, Davidge, Lewis, and Miss Fanny Davenport and Miss Clara Morris.

BOOTH'S THEATRE. 24th-st. corner Sixth-av. THE MAN O'ARRLIE. Leading characters by Messrs. Lawrence Barrett, Sheridan, and Miss Seldon.

NIBLO'S GARDEN. Broadway, near Prince-st. THE COLLEEN BAWN. Leading characters by Messrs. John Collins, C. Wheatleigh, and Miss Rose Howson.

OLYMPIC THEATRE. Broadway, near Houston-st. UNDER TWO FLAGS. Leading characters by Mr. and Mrs. Morris Watkins.

WOOD'S MUSEUM. Broadway, near 30th-st. DRAMATIC PERFORMANCE. Afternoon and evening. Large collection of curiosities on exhibition.

CENTRAL PARK GARDEN. 7th-av., corner 59th-st. SUMMER NIGHT CONCERT. By Theodore Thomas' Orchestra.

Terms of the New-York Times.

MAIL SUBSCRIBERS.

The DAILY TIMES, per annum, including the Sunday Edition $12

The DAILY TIMES, per annum, exclusive of the Sunday Edition 10

The Sunday Edition, per annum 2

The SEMI-WEEKLY, per annum 3

Two copies, one year 5

Ten copies, one year 25

And an extra copy to getter-up of club.

The WEEKLY TIMES, per annum 2

Five copies, one year 8

Ten copies, one year 15

And an extra copy to getter-up of club.

Twenty copies, one year 25

And an extra copy to getter-up of club.

Fifty copies, one year 50

And an extra copy to getter-up of club.

The European Edition, per annum, postage extra 3

Subscriptions to either of our editions received for a less length of time than one year at the yearly rate.

Additions may be made to clubs at club rates.

These prices are invariable. Remit in drafts on New-York or Post-office Money Orders if possible and where neither of these can be procured send the money in a registered letter.

Address NEW-YORK TIMES.

Advertising Rates of the New-York Times.

Ordinary classified advertisements, 10 cents per line each insertion.

Business Notices, fifth page, before Marriages and Deaths, 50 cents per line each insertion.

Special Notices, fifth page, after Marriages and Deaths, 25 cents per line each insertion.

Advertisements on eighth page, 25 cents per line each insertion.

City Items with word "advertisement" prefixed 50 cents per line each insertion.

Deaths or Marriage Notices, $1 each insertion.

The above have been the fixed advertising rates of the NEW-YORK TIMES for the past eight years, and will not be changed, although our circulation has largely increased during that time.

To Advertisers.

Advertisers in the TIMES are requested to bring in their notices at as early an hour in the day as possible. If received after 5 o'clock, it will be impossible to classify them under their proper heads.

For the accommodation of up-town residents, advertisements for insertion in the TIMES will be received at No. 54 West 23d-st., junction of Broadway and 6th-av.; also at No. 9 Astor-place, at same rates as at the principal office.

Messrs. DREXEL, HARJES & CO., Bankers, No. 1 Rue Scribe, Paris, are the accredited agents for the NEW-YORK TIMES in that city.

Notice.

We cannot notice anonymous communications. In all cases we require the writer's address, not for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

We cannot under any circumstances return rejected communications, nor can we undertake to preserve manuscripts.

☞ We are prepared to send the NEW-YORK TIMES by mail, for any length of time, to subscribers in the country or abroad. Application to be made direct to the office.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

The result of the supplementary elections in France is estimated to be the return of 120 Republicans, eight Legitimists and twelve Bonapartists. The highest vote in Paris was cast for M. WOLOWSKI, who received 122,000. It is said the unexpected strength of the Republicans in the Departments discourages the Monarchists. It is feared the Assembly will be more divided than ever, and that it will be impossible to obtain a working majority. The French Government has demanded the early evacuation of those Departments occupied by the Germans, but Prince BISMARCK declines to give a positive promise of compliance. A Commission is appointed to take testimony in England and France as to the working of the Commercial treaties. A difference has arisen with the Government of Egypt in consequence of the illegal arrest of a French citizen at Cairo. The King of Italy reviewed the regulars and National Guard in Rome on Monday.... The Crown Prince of Germany will be present at the triumphal entry of the Bavarian troops into Munich.... Disbanded French soldiers, according to a Berlin telegram, are seeking to enter the Austrian service.... The Emperor and Empress of Brazil visited Queen VICTORIA at Windsor yesterday.

GENERAL.

Nearly 15,000 people were on the Long Branch Course yesterday. The day was fine and clear, but the track was heavy. In the betting, Oystermen, Jr., was selling 3 to 1 against the field in the steeple-chase. The horses started even, taking the first three hurdles. Julius bolted and threw his rider, after going splendidly for one mile and a half. The rider of Tammany was thrown off, and the race was then between Duffy and Oysterman. As Duffy was taking the last hurdle, the horse struck a fence, and turned completely out in the field. The horse, in falling, fell on a fence-pole, and died to death. His rider was thrown in a ditch, but escaped injury. Great excitement ensued, and the people rushed to the scene. Oysterman won the race, beating Vesuvius ten lengths. But for the accident Duffy would have won. The second race was won by Susan Anne. Time, 1:52¼. This was a very fine and exciting race. The third race was won by Hasty Bassett. Time, 2:52¼.

The Massachusetts Woman's Suffrage Association held a mass-meeting, yesterday, at Boston, when speeches were made by several ladies in support of the movement. The speakers attacked the recent opinion of the Supreme Court touching the legality of Gov. CLAFLIN's appointments of ladies as Justices of the Peace, and stirring resolutions were passed condemning the Judges.

A passenger train on the Nashville and North-western Railroad composed of two coaches and a sleeping-car, met with a deplorable accident on Monday, at Harpeth River, about eighteen miles from Nashville. After the locomotive and baggage-car had crossed the bridge over the river, the bridge gave way, and the remainder of the train fell with it into the stream. Fifteen persons, so far as known at present, were killed, and twenty-three wounded.

The pardon of C. C. BOWEN was anxiously awaited by him, all day yesterday, in company with his wife, in the prison at Washington, but none arrived, notwithstanding that Mrs. BOWEN had telegraphed from Long Branch a day or two before that he had been pardoned, as she had the President's promise to that effect.

Wheeling, West Va., was visited on Monday by a fierce storm, which unroofed houses, blew down chimneys and seriously damaged the crops in Marshall County. A tow-boat was blown from her mooring across the river.

Over 200 Mormon emigrants from Europe were landed from the steamer Wyoming on Monday afternoon, and were forwarded, yesterday, westward. A case of small-pox appearing on a child before they landed, the steamer was detained in quarantine, and all their baggage, during which the Health Officer of the Port ordered upon the vessel some of the adults who had not been inspected by that functionary. The emigrants looked healthy and well, and are the first of a hundred soon thousands expected to join the Mormons in Utah.

Tweed and Gov. Hoffman on the Situation.

Mr. TWEED is undoubtedly an able man. We have the word of the World for it that he is great, even as a "swindler." But he is not strong in oratory. On the dizzy height of the Tammany platform he stumbles, and talks like a man who has lost his head. Mr. TWEED may be a useful adjunct in the Democratic attempt to seize the National Government by fraud. He is certainly not likely to help his party to attain it by argument. He may tell a sympathetic audience that "he proposes to carry on a strict Government," and "to recognize the right of those who elect persons to high official station to call them to account for the way in which they have conducted themselves and performed their duties." But the people will demand that he begin at home. Let him tell them what has been done with the forty millions added to the City debt within the last twenty-eight months. Let him produce the Auditor's reports that have not been made in more than two years. Let him call himself, or command Mayor HALL to call DICK CONNOLLY to accountability for the way in which he has conducted himself and performed his official duties. Let him, in short, be virtuous before pleading his virtue as a ground of additional chance to plunder. In the meantime, let him order the politico-economical editor of the World to explain to an unenlightened public the precise significance of this passage of his speech:

"From the formation of our Government, except for a brief period, the Democratic Party has been in the ascendency, and while in the ascendency what was the result? Commerce thrived; ship-yards were filled with working men; our ships, built by Americans, commanded by American Captains, manned by American sailors, covered the ocean, and our iron mines and all our great manufacturing interests were protected."

It is generally supposed that the Democrats are trying hard to make political capital out of the fact that certain great manufacturing interests are at present overmuch protected. In assuming that protection is just what we want, the "Boss" may possibly be inaugurating another "new departure."

Mr. TWEED'S speech, however, poor as it was, compares favorably enough with Gov. HOFFMAN'S letter, which was a barren amplification of his speech at the laying of the corner-stone of the new Capitol. We would suggest, with the utmost deference to Gov. HOFFMAN, that "the centralizing tendencies of the Republican Party" is a subject that cannot possibly carry him through the Presidential campaign, and that it is really high time he was on the look out for something fresher and more definite. We may remark with reference to the allusion to JEFFERSON, that when occasion required it, as in the Louisiana purchase and the rejection of the Monroe-Pinckney treaty with England, he did not hesitate to use an extreme measure of Executive authority, such as was wholly unprecedented in his time. Mr. HOFFMAN, during his training for the Presidency, can devote a few hours of leisure, with profit, to finding what Mr. JEFFERSON did, as well as what he said in this matter of Executive authority. We are glad, since Mr. HOFFMAN'S letter is arid enough in most respects, to glean one happy thought from it. He says:

"The acceptance or non-acceptance of certain amendments which have recently been made a part of the Constitution of the United States is not a practical question."

This is a severe blow to the New Departure. It exactly coincides with the Republican view of it. We had no doubt that whether the Democrats accepted or rejected, the people would disregard equally their promises and their threats, and that in this light their action was not a practical question. But it must be discouraging to the self-denying patriots who have been laboring from Ohio to the Atlantic, to persuade the Democracy that it was a very practical question, and that on their action upon it hung the sole hope of office.

Murder and Marriage.

To "improve the occasion" becomes every preacher, whether he stands in the pulpit or sits in the chair of the journalist. But it also becomes him well to see that the occasion will stand good as text for the homily he preaches, or he will harm either his audience or himself—perhaps both. This truth was made manifest in the columns of one of our contemporaries yesterday morning. The Tribune then contained, like the TIMES and most other newspapers, an account of the Newark murder; but it also published exclusively a letter from Mrs. PAULINA WRIGHT DAVIS, on the subject of marriage. Fired by these two concurrent publications in its own columns, (which had about as much connection as the appearance of What I Know of Farming with the squash crop of the season,) the Tribune delivers itself of a tirade upon the Anarchy of Free Love; and from BOTTS' murder of HALSTED, Mrs. SHERMAN'S alleged poisoning of three husbands and an indefinite number of children, and last, not least, FOSTER'S killing of Mr. PUTNAM, it points a fearful moral by adorning a wonderful tale, and concludes that "it is impossible to shut our eyes to the fact that these events are fraught with a profound significance which beats directly upon one point of our social system. The institution of marriage is undergoing a searching trial, and it is idle to say there is not a weighty lesson taught in the spilt blood of Newark and Seventh-avenue, and the hell-broth of that pale Connecticut matron."

In the name of logic and common sense, what have these murders to do with the institution of marriage? Just as much as BULLOFF'S robbings and killings had to do with the study of philology. BULLOFF was an assiduous student of languages. BULLOFF robbed and murdered to support himself while he studied languages. Therefore it is at least doubtful whether philology is not perilous to society. We are told that as to Mrs. SHERMAN'S case, only of late years were both married men, as in the Newark tragedy. Why, this is Tristram's old comparison. "The situations look von, it pock alike. There is a river in Macedon, and there is also moreover, a river at Monmouth; and there is salmons in both." What had the fact that BOTTS and his victim were both married to do with the murder? That was the result not of their relations to their wives, but of their connection with another woman. Had they both been bachelors, the result of the affair would have been just the same; or, at least, it could not have been affected by the fact of their celibacy; and had they not both become enamored of the same woman, they might have been faithful or unfaithful husbands to the end of their natural lives, and never known of each other's existence. As to Mrs. SHERMAN, the only supposable motive in her case is, that love of money, which, if it is not the root of all evil, is at the bottom of a greater part of it. It was left for the Tribune to suggest that poisoning of two husbands with property, and the children of one of them by a former marriage, who might have divided the inheritance, had any bearings upon the institution of marriage, or, for that matter, on the question of free love. If Mrs. SHERMAN poisoned these people, she plainly did so because they stood between her and the property of her last two husbands, just as the German ZIEGENMEYER put his friend and fellow-immigrant, GUMBLETON, out of the way to get at his money in his name; and the institution of marriage was involved as much in one case as in the other. The connection of FOSTER'S case with the institution of marriage is too absurd to merit serious notice. For the question of sexual relation of any kind between the parties was not presented there in any way. The reason given for bringing this case forward—that both the men were married—is unworthy of a thinking creature.

Our contemporary's extraordinary treatment of the murder-topic, which is at present so very living, is worthy of this notice, from its peculiar position on the marriage question. It is safe to say, that during the last fifteen or twenty years the Tribune has wrought more confusion in the public mind on the marriage question than any other journal or periodical in the country. We do not accuse it of advocating free love. On the contrary, it stands at the corners of the streets and vociferates very loudly, indeed with suspicious loudness, one wife to one husband, for better for worse, forever and ever! But this declaration of faith has been preceded by such teachings on the same subject, and is accompanied by such prophesyings on the subject of woman's relations to man, and to the world in general, that the result is, as we have said, confusion.

As to Mrs. PAULINA WRIGHT DAVIS, and those for whom she speaks, there is no misunderstanding them. We all know what they want. And better their attacks on marriage, than such defenses of it as the Tribune's. Just as, if a finger-post points steadily the wrong way, we can be sure that if we go directly the other way we shall be right. But if it points sometimes the right way and sometimes the wrong, it is worse than useless. And if it revolve like a weather-cock, what then? Therefore it is worth while to insist that the two institutions of marriage and murder (for murder seems to be rising to the dignity of an institution) shall not be muddled together after this marvelous Tribune fashion. For, to speak in an elementary fashion, and to furnish meat for babes—there is really not any necessary connection between the two; nor is any such connection shown by the fact that a woman has poisoned her two husbands and her step-children, or, to put it in *Tribune*ese, she has "rigorously restricted her fatal attentions to those over whom the law and the Church had given her a certain claim." If Mrs. DAVIS or the Tribune can show that women are in the habit of poisoning their husbands because the marriage relation has become intolerable to them, and through that way only they can get relief, then they may reason from marriage to murder, or from murder to marriage, and may at least with consistency and a semblance of logic, insist, the one upon no marriage, the other upon marriage indissoluble. But otherwise, not without affronting the common sense of all intelligent men and women.

Murders are the fruit of greed and of revenge. Leaving out the monomania of murder, they very surely have other causes; and the fact that either murderers or murdered are husbands and wives has no more to do with the institution of marriage, than the fact that they were Roman Catholics would have to do with the dogma of Papal infallibility. Marriage has stood for thousands of years rooted in love and justice; and it can have no essential relations whatever with a crime that springs from greed and hatred.

The Oppressiveness and Inequality of Local Taxation.

This being the season when municipal taxation is in this State generally determined and announced, and the assessment rolls opened for correction, a suggestion is timely as to the crying evils of the system of tax and assessment in New-York. These evils were very clearly set forth in the report of the Commission, of which Mr. D. A. WELLS is Chairman, made last Winter to the Legislature. The men who controlled that body were, however, indifferent to the subject, and perhaps, while taxes remain so productive as they still are, this is not to be wondered at. But taxes will not long remain so, and, let us hope, the Legislature will not long remain in the control of those who care more for their party and personal enrichment than for the burdens of the people. To compel the Legislature to attend to this subject, a strong public sentiment is necessary, and the present moment is a propitious one for awakening that sentiment. The tax bills are being presented, and every man's share in their payment is being decided. Are these bills presented equitably to all, and do all contribute justly to their payment?

To this the answer is emphatically, No. The proportion paid by each property-owner is fixed by the assessors of the county in which he resides. These assessors are bound by no uniform rules. They notoriously vary in their valuations, which range anywhere from forty to seventy per centum of the market value of property. Their decision is substantially final; for although there is a semblance of revision gone through with for the purpose of equalising State taxation, it is utterly inadequate to restore order and equality where confusion and arbitrariness reign with ignorance and corruption to defeat those ends. Sixty or more different Boards, scattered from the Adirondacks to the Metropolis, under the direction of no central authority, and without guidance from any established principle, cannot have their action reduced to harmony under the hasty supervision of a State Board, whose powers are limited, and the opportunity to exercise them still more so.

In the next place, taxation falls unequally, because, while it is nominally directed to both real and personal property, it substantially reaches only the former. No provision being made to adjust this inequality, which arises from the tangible nature of real estate, and the possibility of concealing personal property, a gross injustice is done in the name of the law, and it will be conceded by every one, that the worst form of injustice is one thus inflicted. And finally, the burden of taxation rests heavier on the shoulders of some than on those of others, because the provision for subjecting to its proper share the property of corporations is not only insufficient, but is curiously confused and unequal in its operation. Without going into the details of the causes of this state of things—part of which causes lie in the statute and part in the position allotted to such property under various conditions by the Courts—it is sufficient to say that, in county after county in this State, the banking capital and deposits in savings banks exceed, often are double, and in some cases are triple the amount given as the assessed value of all the personal property in those counties.

We assume that no one will question, in the light of these facts, that taxation is unequal in the State of New-York. When the question arises, What is the remedy for this inequality? the first suggestion in answer is that every civilized nation has abandoned the task of taxing personal property directly, and has resorted to graduating taxes by some index of the amount of property, which in most cases has been the rent or rental value of the real estate occupied. The Tax Commission urge the adoption of this system on the Legislature of this State. It proposed to tax, first one-half the market value of the lands, then one-half the assessed value of the buildings, and then the other half the market value of buildings, the latter to be in lieu of all taxation on personal property. This proposition, it was argued, would reach the owners of personal property pretty nearly in proportion to the amount of that property, since, in the great majority of cases, men spend on their dwellings as much as upon any other single element of their expenses. In addition to these taxes, Mr. WELLS and his fellow Commissioners proposed that the State make the assessment of and levy the State tax directly upon the property of corporations in the nature of monopolies, of which gas companies and railroad companies are the representatives. These measures, it was argued, would produce an equal revenue to the State, with less cost of collection, with far greater equality of burden, and without nearly the present amount of interference with business in any of its departments.

New Modes of Murder.

Fashions in crime appear to be as imperious and arbitrary as fashions in dress. Especially is this the case with murder, the manner of which regularly changes, holds brief sway and then yields to some fascinating or more novel style of butchery. Not only in the classes of people who periodically indulge in homicide, but in the means of its perpetration, there is evident this strict adherence to an established pattern. Just now there is in this City a mania for murdering wives. That of itself would be nothing remarkable, and has been indeed unhappily too common at all times. Every now and then, to be sure, some enterprising wife like the Connecticut Brinvilliers makes an energetic attempt to equalize matters by poisoning a number of successive husbands. But the balance of marital murder still remains clearly in favor of the husbands. The curious part of the present outbreak is that these irregular divorces are all attempted with the same and a most unlikely weapon, a common pocket-knife. Three or four such attacks—they have fortunately, we believe, amounted to nothing more—have been reported within as many days.

Of these, the most desperate was the murderous assault of JAMES POWELL or Farrell, an Irish laborer, on his wife, early on Friday morning. Crazy with liquor, POWELL attacked the hapless woman and stabbed her thirteen times about the head and throat. Then flourishing his bloody knife he rushed into the streets, ran to the river, plunged in, and is supposed to have been drowned. The woman, despite her very severe injuries, is said to be recovering. On Saturday HENRY GENT, a German, imitated this exploit, less the suicide, with a like ineffectual result, and on Sunday, JOHN S. OSTRANDER, a tailor, indulged in a similar freak, with a still more unsatisfactory conclusion. OSTRANDER being much older than his wife, and jealous of her, sought to express his disapproval of her conduct by cutting her in the arm with his pocket-knife. His wife, assisted by a male friend, however, disarmed him, and then beat him severely—a retort, which if imitated, may possibly have the effect of discouraging these connubial liberties.

Another favorite method of manslaughter just now in vogue is by throwing out of a window. Half a dozen cases of this have recently occurred. In one instance a husband took this mode of punishing his wife for the offensive. In another, a religious difference was thus summarily decided. In a third, a noisy tenant was in this way effectually quieted by her landlady. This process, indeed, has hitherto proved far more efficacious than the pocket-knife, death, we believe, having resulted from it in almost every case. Indeed, if the window be only high enough, and the ground beneath hard enough, this is about as sure and easy a manner of murder as could well be devised.

Is this repetition the result of some subtle magnetic wave connecting criminal intelligences, or is it simply the natural effect of the mimetic instinct of crime? The question has often been asked before, as often as the phenomenon has been noted. We do not know that it has ever been satisfactorily answered. Undoubtedly the irritative faculty intensified in morbid natures must be credited with a large share of the result. And in that case it might be a curious question for casuists, to settle the exact measure of responsibility incurred by the public Press in fostering this murderous invitation by making known novel and attractive forms of crime.

Reform in the Docks.

It is, unfortunately, true in public as well as in private life, that a man is often judged from the company he keeps. For Gen. MCCLELLAN, since his refusal to let his name appear in support of national repudiation, and since his substantial withdrawal from Democratic politics, we, in common with other Republicans, have had a feeling of sincere respect. If not a great man or a successful General, he has seemed to us a patriotic citizen and a respectable gentleman. His report on the docks, however, owing to the absurd rule of the Department to advertise only in partisan papers, and from the general character of his associates in the City Government, has fallen singularly dead on the intelligent and scientific community, for whose verdict he most cares. And yet, it is a singularly able, clear and judicious report, wise both in what it recommends and what it does not recommend, and, if its suggestions be carried out, it is destined to produce a vast change in an important portion of our City.

The problem before Gen. MCCLELLAN—who is certainly an able engineer—was to remedy the hideous state of things which exists now on all the water-front of New-York, where old, rotten docks, narrow piers, shallow slips and mean, close streets produce a crowding, confusion, and inconvenience to the public and to commerce, such as no civilized city ever endured so long and so patiently. Add to this that there is hardly a dock in the Metropolis from which the railroads entering the City can discharge their freight; that the sewers empty at the foot of each slip, and thus make the spaces between the piers pestiferous pools, breeding, as is shown in the recent report of the Board of Health, incessant fevers and zymotic diseases; and that, besides, merchants find it almost impossible to obtain wharf accommodation for transient vessels—and we shall all admit that there existed a condition of affairs in our commercial quarters which called for immediate reform. Here was the greatest commercial City of this continent, entering each year nearly 5,000 steam and sailing vessels, as well as some 2,100 coasting vessels, containing the enormous tonnage of 4,613,000 tons—or nearly the same with that of Liverpool—and yet on its present wharf-front of twenty miles not having a decent dock or a roomy, convenient place to discharge freight. Liverpool, on the other hand, with no greater commerce, boasts her twenty miles of inclosed stone docks, with gates, costing some fifty million dollars, (gold,) the pride of the city and the admiration of all strangers.

It would have been very natural in a less experienced engineer to have at once recommended an imitation by New-York of these magnificent and convenient structures. Gen. MCCLELLAN shows much more common sense. He saw at once that nature has given New-York precisely the favorable conditions, the want of which made inclosed wet-docks necessary in the English port. Our tides only rise and fall four and three-tenths feet; we have thirteen and a half square miles of safe anchorage in the two rivers, and fourteen square miles in the Upper Bay, both protected from winds and waves, and an available water-front of twenty-four and three-quarters miles. We do not need inclosed docks with gates. We can even as yet do without stone if that be too expensive. Gen. MCCLELLAN accordingly recommends, as the indispensable reforms now, simply a continuous, permanent river-wall, so located as to widen the river street. This street he would make 250 feet wide along the North River, 200 feet wide on the East River from the Battery to Thirty-first-street, and 175 feet wide above. Then he would build ample pier projections from it, leaving an unobstructed passage to the water, and yet so constructed as to be capable of protection from weather, fire and thieves. These piers, however, are not to be so far projected as to affect appreciably the tidal current. Each sewer is to discharge at the end of the pier, so that the currents and tides may carry off the sewage. Wherever it is necessary, the new piers are to be covered with substantial sheds. A few will be built of stone and iron, but the majority of preserved wood; so that gradually, as the City increases and feels itself richer, the more expensive kind of piers can be added or substituted. Under this plan certain docks will be left open for transient vessels. A broad street will surround our water-front, giving ample space for carting and discharging freight, on which a belt steam railroad can be built. A wharf line of 20.43-100 miles will be afforded to the commerce of the City, far surpassing in convenience and capacity the present line of docks. The estimated expense is $20,000,000, or $963,371 per mile of wharf line. Gen. MCCLELLAN also suggests, very sensibly, that this reform merely be applied as the necessities of commerce require, so as to distribute the expenditure over a longer period of time.

Only one feature of this judicious plan strikes us as doubtful. That is, the entire waste of all the valuable sewage of this great Metropolis. When one recalls the miserable character of the soil of large tracts near the City, and how immensely important manure is to them, and what successful experiments are being made in England to "utilize sewage," it is impossible not to wish that our engineers had contrived some way by which in the future this great fertilizer might have been preserved and used. Taking the proportion of sewage to population in London, we are casting into the sea every year sixty million tons of the richest fertilizer, worth, according to the English estimate, two million dollars per annum, or enough to more than pay the interest on the new "dock bonds."

MINOR TOPICS.

M. THIERS and his friends claim that the elections of Sunday have resulted in a large accession of strength to the Republic. An inspection of the names thus far given, reveals the fact that so far as they are known to have at all, the candidates claimed as Republicans are simply personal adherents of M. THIERS—in some cases, Orleanists of long standing. There is, therefore, a strong presumption that the Republic will be strengthened, just in proportion as M. THIERS is a loyal adherent of republican forms, and in proportion also to his ability to control that balance of parties by which alone a Republic can exist in France. As we have frequently pointed out, M. THIERS' ideal of a Republic is simply Imperialism under democratic formulas. All his party affiliations will naturally lead him toward monarchy, and away from an extension of popular liberties on a truly republican basis. Witness as a proof of this, his determined opposition to that most defensible of all the demands of the Communes—the right to popularly-elected Mayors. What France has gained, therefore, is merely a better prospect of the administration of M. THIERS being provisionally continued, and a consequent truce of all parties to await the formation of a more decided public opinion.

It was rather unkind in Hon. JOHN QUINCY ADAMS to refuse the invitation to attend the Tammany celebration, considering that the Sachems took special pains to insert in their printed circular a first-class puff of all the ADAMSES. Still more unkind was it for him to criticise the partisan character which the Sachems proposed to give their celebration of the national birthday anniversary. "I cannot," says he, in his letter to the Sachems, "celebrate that day as a Democrat, nor invoke the memory of the fathers as a partisan. On that day, I am a citizen of the United States, and during that day I will not permit myself so think that any heir of the heritage devised by the Declaration can barter his birthright for political pottage." Not content with thus rebuking his Tammany friends for trying to make a little political capital by trafficking in patriotism, Mr. ADAMS has the audacity to remind the Sachems, at the close of his letter, that it would be well for them to cherish above all "local self-government." Such advice as this to a set of men who have reduced the Government of New-York to a "rule of four," must have been looked upon as the acme of Yankee impertinence. We are afraid the ADAMSES will never get any more puffs from Tammany Hall.

President GRANT, after a full examination of the charges recently preferred against the Utah Judges, coincides with the decision of the Attorney-General that there are no grounds for their removal. The charges, strips of all the verbiage of partisan accusation, resolved itself into the simple fact of Judge MCKEAN'S name having been inscribed on the localities of a new discovery. The rebuttal shows that the Judge had no knowledge of the fact till some time after the occurrence, and his name had been placed there by a young friend who held him in personal esteem. Recently, a difficulty occurred about the boundary of the mine, and the case was heard before Judge HAWLEY. Senator SUMNER, of Nevada, being interested in the suit pending on the Emma mine, and Judge MCKEAN'S rulings last year being adverse to the Senator's party, the charges to which the Attorney-General's attention was directed were made with the view of effecting the Judge's removal. The entire Gentile Bar joined in a petition for the retention of Judge MCKEAN. The Mormon lawyers and leaders joined with Senator SUMNER, and made common cause, but both have been defeated.

It is highly probable that the conflict anticipated yesterday between the Utah militia and United States troops stationed in the neighborhood of Salt Lake City did not occur. A Press dispatch received yesterday morning suggested the possibility of a serious disturbance, since the Mormon General gave no signs of withdrawing his order for the militia to appear on the celebration of yesterday, and the acting Governor was reported to be as resolute that they should not so appear. Recent advices from Salt Lake City lead us to suppose that the avoidance of trouble yesterday would probably be the work of the acting Governor rather than that of the Mormon General. With so much to hope for now in the great changes being effected through the new element rushing into Utah, it would be very regrettable that any imprudence on the part of Federal officers should render it necessary to employ force in disputes which will gradually settle themselves. There must not, however, be any hope left for BRIGHAM YOUNG that he can trample upon the authority of the nation—in the person of any of its representatives—with impunity. Should he, or any of his counselor-apostle-prophet generals, make that mistake and furnish the argument for putting an end to the anomalous condition of things in Utah, President GRANT, backed as he would be by the entire nation, would make short work of such a rebellion.

Gen. MCCLELLAN'S letter to the Tammany Sachems, declining the invitation to their Fourth of July powwow, indicates a more rapid progress toward republican principles than was to be expected from so slow a General. From a man who used to put Union soldiers on guard over negro slaves, while their masters were fighting the battles of the rebellion, it is encouraging to hear that "slavery is dead—dead let it remain forever." The General adds that, "The negro has a right to vote—let him keep it; but strive to educate him to fitness for the high privilege conferred on him. Show him who his real friends are, and we will eventually turn in our own favor the weapon so carefully forged for our destruction." This, we take it, means that the negro must be taught that the Democratic Party are "his real friends"—a rather laborious task to impose on the Democracy. The negro will prove himself so be even more stupid than the Democracy ever believed him to be, when he consents to imbue his [illegible]

More than a year ago, the suggestion was made in these columns that ornamental telegraph poles of iron should be substituted for the unsightly and perishable wooden ones which at present disfigure our streets. The idea has now been carried out in Prussia, where iron telegraph poles, as late advices acquire us, are being erected throughout the country. It is thence that other Continental nations will follow this example, since the iron pole, though more costly in the first instance than the wooden one, is both more durable and more ornamental. Perhaps we might do well to take a lesson in this respect from Prussia also.

The Cincinnati organ of the Western Democracy intimates that the Tammany Ring are simply public plunderers, who count to be elected—politically. The Savannah organ of the Southern Democracy intimates that the triumph of the party under such miserable ward politicians, if they should unfortunately be entrusted to take the lead, would be nothing short, nothing less than enlarging the field of plunder to such people as FISK, Jr., and his confederates of the Ring. This being the light in which these men are held by their own party South and West, there is a stronger probability than ever that they will not be able to debauch the politics, and to blunt, as they have already shocked, the moral sense of the whole country. It is for our own Republican capitalists, and the men of wealth and standing among what was known a few years ago as the high-toned War Democracy to determine how far they compromise, not their personal honor, for that is a matter in their own keeping, but the future of the plundered City, by association with the Boss of the Ring, and his three colleagues—HALL, SWEENY and CONNOLLY—even in so plausible a work as the Viaduct Road. We call it plausible, not profitable, save to the Executive four, (and the myrmidons who do their voting,) who will practically direct the expenditure, and plan and profit by the route. They will do this because the City, which is virtually theirs, will have to furnish nine-tenths of the money, at one cost or another, to build the road. Mr. MATTHEWS understood this, when he endeavored to have the road come below Chambers-street, in common justice to the heavy tax-payers in and around Wall-street. The men of money outside the recipient Board of Directors, or Commissioners, understand it, and their subscriptions are being measured accordingly.

WASHINGTON.

Becoming Patriotism Rampant—Excursions on the 'Potomac—Mr. and Mrs. Bowen's Fourth—Waiting for the Pardon.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—Although Washington has had no formal organization for the celebration of today, she can vie with any city in the land in a general expression of loyalty and patriotism if the volume of noise is a criterion. This evening rockets are going up all over the city, and the explosion of fire-crackers and other noise-making inventions keep up a continual din. There was a good deal of talk made a few days ago by the Police authorities of enforcing the regulations concerning the sale and use of fire-works, but of course nothing of the sort could be done. Thousands of people have made a sensible holiday by excursions on the river, to the country, and in similar ways. By good fortune a very heavy shower of rain has put the city in a condition in which danger from the burning powder is entirely removed.

As noon there was a national salute, but no public celebration. A party from Washington went to Manassas where Gen. O. O. HOWARD delivered an oration. The Oldest Inhabitants' Association passed the day at Mount Vernon.

THE BOWEN PARDON.

Mr. and Mrs. BOWEN spent the greater part of the day in the jail-yard, surrounded by a few friends, and in view of the guards. They were waiting with much anxiety the arrival of the President's pardon of BOWEN, which, however, had not been received at 7 o'clock this evening. They now expect it to-morrow. Mrs. BOWEN telegraphed from Long Branch Saturday to Mr. BOWEN that he was pardoned, having, as she said, received a favorable answer from President GRANT. She then hastened to Washington, arriving here Sunday morning, since which period she has spent most of her time with Mr. BOWEN.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE.

Mass-Meeting in Boston—The State Supreme Court Opinion Condemned.

BOSTON, July 4.—The Massachusetts Woman's Suffrage Association held a mass-meeting at Framingham Grove today, which was well attended. Speeches were made by Mrs. Lucy Stone, Mrs. Livermore, Mrs. Dr. M. R. Jackson, Abby Kelly Foster, Rev. Jenny H. Jones, William S. Robinson, S. S. Foster, and others. The burden of the remarks was in regard to the recent opinion of the Supreme Court of the State that women can not be Justices of the Peace, which was severely criticised and condemned. Mrs. LIVERMORE was also very severe upon the editors of the New-York Tribune, Independent, Nation and Every Saturday. Resolutions were passed in relation to the Supreme Court and to the memory of the late SAMUEL J. MAY. One of the ladies congratulated herself that the reporters could not say that nothing new was said upon the occasion, the censure of the Supreme Court being the new subject.

Commencement at the Virginia Military Institute.

LEXINGTON, Va., July 4.—The Commencement exercises of the Virginia Military Institute took place today, and were largely attended. The oration was delivered by M. L. SOUTHWOOD, of Richmond, Va., the valedictory by J. F. ARTHUR, of Columbia, S. C., the address before the Alumni Society by Col. JOHN M. PATTON, of Albemarle, Va., and the address to the Graduating Class by Hon. EDMUND PENDLETON, of Virginia. There were forty-six graduates in the Academy, and seven in the special school. In the afternoon a banquet was given to the Alumni Society. Many prominent Southerners were present. There was a brilliant display of fire-works on the grounds at 9 P. M. The exercises wound up with a grand ball given by the cadets in the mess hall of the Institute. There was quite a galaxy of Southern beauties and distinguished Southern military and civic gentlemen.

Steam at Wheeling—House Unroofed.

WHEELING, West Va., July 4.—About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon a terrible storm of wind and rain, accompanied by thunder and lightning, passed over the lower portion of our city. Houses were unroofed, and chimneys, trees and fences blown down. Great damage was done to the wheat and corn crops in Marshall County. The tow-boat Star was blown from her moorings across the river, but escaped injury.

Drowned While Bathing.

HUDSON, N. Y., July 4.—ISAAC VAN ALSTYNE, aged twenty-five years, a partner in the cotton-mill of P. EDWARD VAN ALSTYNE & Co., at Stuyvesant Falls, was drowned this morning while bathing in Kinderhook Creek. His body was recovered.

City Meteorological Report.

The following observations show the temperature, &c., yesterday, at the Central Park Mineral Springs:

Temperature	6 A.M.	9 A.M.	12 M.	3 P.M.	6 P.M.
Degrees Fahrenheit.	67	70	77	78
Stand of bar. in inch.	30.00	"	30.00	"	29.9

Wet-bulb hygrometer, at noon, degrees Fahrenheit, 7

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH.

(Continued from Fifth Page.)

C. C. Smith, Pastor of the Pacific Church, followed by an eloquent and interesting oration by Hon. ERASTUS BROOKS. In the evening a pyrotechnical display elicited much admiration, after which the firemen had a ball in the tent.

THE TAMMANY SOCIETY.

Celebration by the "Braves"—Reading of the Declaration of Independence—Speeches by Gen. Theodore Runyon, William M. Tweed, Clarkson N. Potter and J. J. Freedman.

The Tammany Society assembled in their hall at 10½ o'clock yesterday morning for the purpose of celebrating the day "in their time-honored custom." The hall was well filled, and among the audience were six women, who were given seats in the gallery, though the front row of seats on the main floor had been reserved for them. In the gallery was stationed a portion of the Seventh Regiment Band, which discoursed excellent music during the proceedings. The audience was very enthusiastic, and "applauded in the proper places." On the stage were seated a large number of the members of the Society, and among the invited guests were Gen. RUNYON, of New Jersey, and Hon. M. C. KERR, of Indiana. After music by the band, Grand Sachem TWEED came forward and delivered an address of welcome, which we give verbatim and without correction:

ADDRESS BY WM. M. TWEED.

FRIENDS AND BRETHREN: In accordance with time-honored custom, the Tammany Society have assembled here today for the purpose of keeping alive the patriotic fires which caused the organization of the institution. We are gratified to find that the interest the Tammany Society have striven to protect, the interest they have striven to care for, the interest they have striven to advance and striven to organize, meets the approbation and approval of so many of our fellow-citizens. In certain perilous times, standpoints must be taken. The Tammany Society propose to be governed by those rules which have made all countries powerful which have followed them. We propose that the interests of one shall be the interests of all. We propose to carry on a strict Government. We propose to recognize the rights of those who elect persons to high official stations, and to call them to permanent account for the manner in which they have conducted themselves and performed their duties. We propose to wrest, if possible, the Government from the hands of those who now, in our opinion, are betraying it; from those who are trying to crush out all principles of equality, liberty and toleration. [Applause.] We propose to recognize the rights of the minority, to choose who shall be their governors. We propose to let the issue of the past die; to strike forward into a bright and noble career. [Applause.] To once more place the Government in the hands of those who have always conducted the General Government in a manner necessary to the country. From the formation of the Government, except for a brief time, the Democratic Party have been in the ascendancy; what was the result? Commerce thrived, ship-yards were filled with working men; our ships, built by Americans, commanded by American Captains and manned by American sailors, covered the ocean. Our manufacturing interests, our iron works, our iron mines, and all the great manufacturing interests were protected. It is not necessary to occupy your attention longer, further than to say that the present condition of those interests is the result of the action of those who were governing the Government. Commerce is nearly driven from the ocean, was studded with ships of American build, sailed by American Captains, and owned by American owners, what now does the register show? No increase—none whatever; a falling off, a great diminution. We propose to take the Government from the hands of those who never had it in, and to go forward as we did before, steadily advancing, steadily promoting, steadily increasing the welfare and prosperity of all. [Applause.] I would be pleased and happy to talk all day to you, but I am to be followed by speakers who have much better powers of oratory, and you gentlemen would be much better pleased to hear them than me. That being the case, in the name of the Tammany Society I again thank you for this manifestation of your approval of the determination which the Society have endeavored to carry out, the principles they have always announced, and we will now go on with the programme drawn up by the Committee of Arrangements.

After more music, the Declaration of Independence was read, with emphasis, by JEROME BUCK, Esq. Then followed a song, "The Flag of Welcome," by ARTHUR MATTHEW. Grand Sachem TWEED then announced the orator of the day, Gen. THEODORE RUNYON, of New-Jersey, as a gentleman who had once been Mayor of a Democratic city in New-Jersey, and one who would carry the Democratic Party to victory in that State, as he had led the troops under his command to victory during "the late unpleasantness." Gen. RUNYON was received with cheers, and delivered the oration substantially as follows:

ORATION BY GEN. RUNYON.

Gen. RUNYON spoke as follows: Two of the oldest and most characteristic of our American institutions are "Yankee Doodle" and the Fourth of July! And they are so inseparably connected in the minds of some of us by long association that the one invariably suggests the other. Our national air, although to a severe and critical ear is correct tune it is hardly fitted for the purpose which it has served now for almost a century—to give expression to the nation's self-assertion—although it may be subject to the criticism of one of our own poets:

"When Gallia's flag her triple-fold displays
Her tarnished legions peal the Marseillaise;
Then round the car of Liberty's dread form
Far through the shadowy floats its battle hymn;
When crowned with the camps of England rise—
A thousand voices shout God save the King!
When victory follows with our eagle's glance
Our country 'dances' to a country 'dance.'"

Yet whenever that air is heard it fills our hearts with exaltation and pride of country. Its inspiring strains call up to our memory the glorious battle-fields and historic scenes of the Revolution, and present to our mental vision a picture of grand old patriots fighting in a rustic, but very businesslike and effective fashion, with the Red-coated hosts of the tyrant of Britain, or statuesquely standing in Independence Hall pledging to the great declaration "their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor." In foreign lands, today, such associations will suggest themselves to the American tourist or perhaps sojourner, and "The Day we Celebrate" will be honored with exalting laudations of the great Republic by many a fellow-citizen of ours, who, though he has gone out from under the American sky has not left behind him its American heart. In accordance with time-honored custom, I propose to read the principal political writings, the Declaration of Independence, and by songs and speeches, and the other appropriate concomitants of this celebration, to stir up our minds to remembrance. They in whose honor we have come together attested by their sacrifices their estimation of the great rights which they by their privileges which they secured. They have passed in the memory of their posterity beyond the region of eulogium to the place of canonization, and the humblest of them is ennobled by his participation in their great work. It is a good pedigree to be descended from a soldier of the Revolution, whether he bore the musket or wielded the sword. It may be said of them as was said of one whose life, though unsuccessful, was nevertheless heroic: "Upon such lives have orders of nobility been founded, and when such altogether fail there will fail, not orders of nobility only, but nobler orders of things."

There was a time in our history, not very long ago, when it seemed to the people that such provision for extraordinary contingencies was quite superfluous; that no evil day could come upon us; that no political heresy could ever gain strength enough to disturb the peace, much less to threaten seriously the stability, of our institutions; that our revolutions must of necessity all be bloodless, and our rebellions all be settled at the ballot-box. But time has dispelled the illusion, and we have at length learned in the hard school of experience the lesson that it becomes us to guard well against political false doctrine, and to watch narrowly the very beginning of political error. The last ten years have been years of national tribulation. They have been full of political experience and of warning also. During all that period the same political party has practically had complete control, as it has still, of the Government, in all its branches. It has been and still is distinguished by a disposition to retain its ascendancy at all hazards; if necessary, by acts subversive of the principles on which our system is based. In the time of our evil day such acts, and they were numerous, were sufficiently alarming, though they then were accompanied by the questionable apology derived from the assumed necessity of the occasion. But now, that that excuse (an indifferent one at the best) is no longer available.

It seemed to them unlikely that the people would consent to bear the burden of the debt when they could avoid it by so cheap and easy a method as casting a paper ballot. But the result has been otherwise, and these queries have been set at rest by the action of the people upon this subject since by the close of the war. As it is the Democratic policy to discourage and oppose consolidation and all centralization of power not absolutely provided for by the Constitution as necessarily flowing from its provisions; so on the other hand it is the policy of our adversaries to consolidate as much as possible all power in the General Government. As we would govern the State of New-York at Albany, and Massachusetts at Boston, they would govern both, (but perhaps rather New-York than Massachusetts,) from Washington. As we would accord to the States all their rights, confining the General Government within the just limits of its power under the Constitution, they (as of contrary would seem by their course) in their overstrained zeal for the Union have considered themselves and performed their duties. We propose to wrest, if possible, the Government from the hands of those who now, in our opinion, are betraying it; from those who are trying to crush out all principles of equality, liberty and toleration. [Applause.] We propose to recognize the rights of the minority, to choose who shall be their governors. We propose to let the issue of the past die; to strike forward into a bright and noble career. [Applause.] To once more place the Government in the hands of those who have always conducted the General Government in a manner necessary to the country.

THE INDIAN TERRITORY.

Are the Indians to be Encouraged—Fears of the Red Man—Eloquence of the Bronze Against Oppression—Some Interesting Facts Regarding the Condition of the Tribes.

From Our Special Correspondent.

OCMULGEE, Indian Territory, } Friday, June 23, 1871. }

Lingering here for a few days after the adjournment of the General Council to look into Indian habits and customs more intimately, and see the resources of the surrounding country, I am frequently addressed by some of the more intelligent residents of the place on the subject of popular opinion in the United States with regard to the faithful fulfillment by the Government of treaty obligations with the Indians in this Territory. They are conscious that a strong feeling exists in the minds of the majority of the Western people that they stand in the way of the progress and spread of the white man's civilization. They feel their helplessness in the hands of the United States Government, and place their trust for the permanency of their homes more in the justice and forbearance of the great nation that encompasses them, than in any defensive powers of their own to resist aggression. The treaties negotiated between the various Indian nations and the United States have been based upon the policy of preserving their territory as free as possible from intrusion by white settlers. It has been demonstrated that the Indian race, when brought into contact with the white population, has uniformly suffered in morals and social condition, and their only hope of security and permanent progression seems to rest upon the faithful performance by the Government of its obligation to keep them by themselves.

They are now slowly recovering from the desolating effects of the late war. The ravages of the soldiers of the two contending armies were committed through the whole extent of their territory, and when peace returned they found their homes destroyed, their farms desolated and their magnificent herds of cattle and ponies entirely gone. They are now engaged in repairing the waste of that period, and find the energies of their people somewhat paralyzed by their want of confidence in the permanency of their political institutions. The demand of the white race that they shall put their country to the same agricultural use which our instincts lead us to adopt, they complain of as an injustice. They say they are not an agricultural or a commercial people, but prefer to follow pastoral pursuits for a living. The incessant labor which the acquisitiveness of the Anglo-Saxon race leads them to perform in foreign to the Indian's nature. They occupy a rich, sparsely-settled country, with a mild, favorable climate; the raising of cattle and horses, and swine, and sheep, can be carried on without much labor, and under the favorable conditions with which they are surrounded, is found a source of larger profit than the more laborious pursuits of agriculture. All they want is to be let alone. Gen. SHERMAN, in his address to the General Council, after dwelling upon the great national advantages possessed by the Indian population, deprecated all discontent and dissatisfaction on their part, and urged them to go diligently to work, and show by their useful labors that they had a good retenu d'arre by the side of the white race. But a delegate from the Cherokee nation (Col. W. P. Ross) corrected the General in this argument. He asserted that the Indians were perfectly contented with their country, and only asked to be let alone in the enjoyment of it. The discontent and dissatisfaction existed in the minds of the white people. They were continually casting covetous glances upon their Territory, and demanding to be allowed to enter, on the ground that its present occupants were not expending sufficient labor upon it to justify their continued possession. He thought it no more than justice that they should be allowed to elect their own way as their inalienable right, to the pursuit of happiness. A Muskokee delegate named PERRYMAN also gave expression to some rather dolorous views. He said he was filled with grave apprehensions when he contemplated the aggressive and indomitable character of the people that was pledging them in on all sides. Though tinctured with white blood himself, his sympathies were all with the Indian, and he could justly say he was proud to call himself an Indian. If their enemies, for so he feared he must regard the white race, had been a weak and decaying people, the red man might reasonably hope to hold his own against them, notwithstanding the vast disparity of numbers. But he beheld them constantly increasing in number and in power, confident in a superior civilization, and driving his own people before them as though the two races could not coexist. The Council was earnestly debating measures to bring in the wild tribes from the Plains, and reclaim them from their precarious and predatory mode of life. No one was more desirous than himself to see this successfully accomplished. But they had no wise and prudent men whom they could spare for this undertaking. The few educated men among them were insufficient to teach in their schools, to fill their pulpits, and run their little form of government. If his voice could reach the authorities in Washington, he would appeal to them in behalf of the whole Indian race, to send them teachers and preachers instead of armed soldiers. The sentiments avowed by the representatives of several tribes, generally regarded as hostile and warlike, who had spoken before this General Council, were all strongly in favor of peace and improvement. WAR-LOO-PI, a Chief of the Caddoes; LITTLE BLACK KETTLE, a noted leader of the Cheyennes, and BIG MOUTH, the hero and chief of the Arapahoes, had all testified their willingness to win their people over to habits of industry, and build homes and settle down as useful members of the human race. But his brother delegates well knew, if these Chiefs did not, the immense difficulty of the task they were so willing to impose upon themselves. It was true he was highly gratified to hear these sentiments expressed. The painful picture they drew of the sufferings those tribes had undergone in their losing strife with the white race; and the fearful massacres inflicted upon them at Sand Creek and the Wichita Mountains had thrilled the hearts of all their hearers. And when these Chiefs contrasted the secure and prosperous condition of the nations whom they were now among, with the mode of life they had inherited from their fathers, it was no wonder they were filled with the desire to acquire the habits of civilization, and exchange their present fugitive existence for the secure and peaceful life offered them within the Territory. But his brother delegates had all observed how melancholy, and even tragic, was the experience of the majority of the tribes who had sought to adopt the habits of civilization. His friend Mr. GREYEYES, the delegate from the Wyandottes, had feelingly related to them how, during the transforming process, the Wyandottes, the Senecas, the Shawnees, the Pottawattomies, and the Miamies, had become almost extinct. The opinion prevalent among the people of the United States, that the Indian race cannot assimilate with a civilized life is a false one, as was clearly shown by the prosperous condition of the five great nations residing within the Territory. But that the change from a life of wild nature to the conventional habits of civilization was a painful and trying one, was sufficiently proved by the decay and depopulation which had befallen so many Indian tribes who had attempted it.

The speaker concluded a very lugubrious argument by asking that the agitation in and out of Congress of the question of the inviolability of the Indian Territory be discontinued, and that they (the Indians) be allowed to work out their salvation without molestation from the white population.

SECTIONIZING THE LAND.

The speech above given is important, as showing the political difficulty in which the national councils of this people are placed. The more intelligent of their legislators clearly perceive that the Indian population are not making sufficient progress. Their fine country, unsurpassed in fertility, and blessed with the most favorable climate—a country which Gen. SHERMAN tells them might be made capable of supporting six millions inhabitants, barely yields food enough to sustain its population of sixty thousand. The traveller in passing along its rough and difficult roads casts his eyes over a prospect extending for miles in all directions, with not a habitation in sight and not an acre of land cultivated. Occasionally a scattered line of dwellings may be seen skirting the edge of a piece of timber, but these are log houses of the rudest description, and the signs of improvement surrounding are lamentably deficient. They have no mills, no public means of travel, no newspapers, (with one exception—the weekly Cherokee Advocate, published at Tahlequah,) no healthy progressive public sentiment. Their lands being held in common, the occupant's industry and acquisitiveness are not aroused. He fences in a few acres, perhaps, in which he plants his corn patch, and in here and there a case, a few vegetables are cultivated. But there are no thrifty fruit-bearing orchards, no grape-arbors, no pleasant flower-beds, nothing to indicate thrifty industry in a country that would seem designed for an earthly paradise. In the Chickasaw nation the Legislative Council have attempted to remedy this state of things by ordering a survey, with a view to sectionize their land. The object of this is to apportion to each occupant the amount of land allotted him by Government, 160 acres to each individual member, and hold their surplus lands in readiness for sale to Government for bestowal upon any tribe that wishes to enter the Territory. But this action is severely criticised by the other nations, who regard it as the first step toward the introduction of the white man. Whether the experiment will be successful in encouraging the Indian to increased industry remains to be seen. They all declare that it is unwise to attempt to force him into agricultural activity; that the raising of grain in excess of their own wants would be a profitless application of labor, and further, that sectionising their land will destroy their magnificent pastures, and thus create a certain evil to accomplish a very doubtful good.

A SUMMARY EJECTMENT.

I mentioned before that there was no healthful public opinion here. Let me give your readers an instance. In the Cherokee nation, a member of that tribe named FREDERIC CARR held and occupied a piece of property near Fort Gibson, the title to which was in dispute. During the slow process of the Courts in determining the rightful ownership, ARCHIBALD SCRAPER, the acting Chief of the nation, (in the absence of his superiors,) thought proper to take the adjudication of the case into his own hands. So, procuring a warrant of dispossession, he sent the Sheriff and his posse to forcibly eject the occupant, which act was very summarily performed. The astonished litigant, despairing of any civil redress, applied at once to Gen. HAZEN, at Fort Gibson, for protection. This officer, having no authority to interfere with the domestic affairs of a sovereign power, as the Indians really are, merely lent him a few tents to shelter his family until he could find some other place to put them. Thus provided, Mr. CARR erected his tents in the yard, and instantly set to work to seek the annullment of this arbitrary proceeding. But Chief SCRAPER, feeling perfectly secure in his violation of the fundamental law that governs all forms of civilized society, again sent the Sheriff to carry this little encampment clear off the property, and the victim of his despotic rule finds himself at large without hopes of redress, and without any public opinion to thunder in the ears of authority that such gross injustice cannot be perpetrated.

THE INDIAN SITUATION.

Before I close this series of letters on the proceedings of the General Council of the Indian Territory, I would like to briefly sum up the relations of the Indian race to the United States, and the duties we owe to them as a dependent people. They claim an absolute right to be let alone. They have abandoned this entire continent to the occupation of the white race, and in return for this concession have had the Territory they now live in ceded to them by solemn treaty with the United States forever. And in order that their occupation of this land may form no bar to a direct intercourse between the Mississippi and the cattle-growing State of Texas and the rich mineral lands of New-Mexico, they cede the right of way for two railroads to run through their country, one going north and south, and the other east and west. That this is the distinct meaning of the treaties negotiated with the various nations, granting the right of way, is shown by a remark of Senator POMEROY, in the Senate of the United States, in a debate on the Kansas and Neosho bill. "The grant beyond the southern border of Kansas," says that gentleman, "is simply the right of way with the consent of the Indians. It is not a grant of land, but of the right of way with the consent of the Indian tribes, and all the tribes have made treaties consenting to it except one." There is no condition inserted in these stipulations that they shall adopt any particular mode of life. They are placed there upon guarantees of the exclusion of the whites, because, to use the words of Secretary COX, "the only hope of their complete civilization seems, by common consent, to rest upon our ability to keep them by themselves, under stringent laws with regard to the introduction of intoxicating liquors, and in circumstances where immoral intercourse with the whites shall be prevented as thoroughly as possible." And that this policy is resulting beneficially to the interests of both races is beyond the possibility of a doubt. The adoption by the five principal nations of the habits of civilization is exercising a powerful influence over all the wild tribes. I have shown how Chiefs from several hostile and warlike nations—the Comanches, the Arapahoes, the Cheyennes—have been attracted hither "by the smoke of their great council fires," and expressed their firm determination to go back to their people and win them over to habits of useful industry.

And the excellent effects of this last General Council will be yet more distinctly seen. It has succeeded in making propagandists of some of the most influential warlike Chiefs, who are so powerfully impressed with the advance made by their civilized red brethren, that they declare their intention of going out as voluntary missionaries to the wild tribes of the North-west, and bringing in their Chiefs to be present at the next General Council. BIG MOUTH, a leading Chief of the Arapahoes, was prompted to make the following humane offer to the Council:

SPEECH OF AN INDIAN MISSIONARY.

Brothers, I will try to make a good road now. I will go to the wild tribes on the Plains and fetch them in. I do not want to be paid for it. There are a good many Sioux who have trouble with the whites, and wild Arapahoes, and Comanches, and Cheyennes, out on the staked Plains. I will go to them and make a good road for them. I am telling, my brothers, the truth. BIG MOUTH'S tongue is not forked. I will go home to the Washita and rest my horses, and then I will go and fetch these wild Indians in. I can walk about here at night safe, and I want my brothers also to be in safety. I will bring them in to the next Council. Then looking at your reporter, who was taking down his speech as rendered by the interpreter, he said: These words I am saying will go to Washington and be read by the Great Father.

Father JOSEPH ROAC, of the Supervising Committee, who was present and knew the above address, declared that the feeling which BIG MOUTH had expressed was quite prevalent among the tribes at the Washita Agency.

JUSTICE TO THE INDIAN RACE.

Then here is the choice presented to the United States Government. Either to enforce its present humane policy of dealing justly with the tribes occupying the Indian Territory, and firmly resisting all appeals from railroad corporations and Western business men to be allowed to introduce a superior civilization into the Territory, and thus defeat all attempts of the Indians to solve the perplexing and difficult question of peaceably removing the wandering tribes from the path of the settler; or to surrender the right of opening their Territory to white occupation, and thus renew the scenes of collision and turmoil which in past ages have characterised our dealings with this weaker race. That their land might be made incalculably more productive, and the business interests of St. Louis largely benefited by the change, is beyond dispute. But the policy of even-handed justice to a dependent people cannot be safely disregarded, and the expense and bloodshed and troubles that would be entailed upon the country by such an act of perfidy would far outweigh all the commercial gains that would be derived from an extended commerce with a white population inhabiting the Indian Territory. The Indian policy pursued by the present Administration may be regarded as constituting one of its many claims to the support and admiration of the American people, and every person who holds justice as entitled to more regard than commercial profit or expediency, will favor the inviolability of the nation's engagements with the Indians.

Official Report of the Fight Between the United States Troops and the Apaches —Circumstances Attending the Death of Lieut. Cushing.

The following is the official report of Sergt. JOHN MOTT, of Company F, Third United States Cavalry, who was in company with Lieut. H. B. CUSHING, of that command, when he was killed by the Indians:

CAMP TROOP F, THIRD CAVALRY, } IN THE FIELD, NEAR TUCSON, A. T., } May 30, 1871.

Capt. Alexander Moore, Third United States Cavalry, Commanding Troop F:

CAPTAIN: In accordance with Special Orders No. 5, dated Head-quarters Troop F, Third Cavalry, in the Field, near Tucson, Arizona Territory, April 26, 1871, Lieut. H. B. CUSHING left this place, April 27, 1871, with one (1) Sergeant, (myself,) one (1) citizen, PACKER, and sixteen (16) privates, for the purpose of scouting the Sonoita and Santa Cruz Valleys, and that portion of the country bordering on the Sonoita lines. Marching in a south-east direction, he arrived at Cienega Ranch, Arizona Territory, at 5 P. M. the same day; on the morning of April 28 left camp at Cienega Ranch, and, marching due south, arrived at Camp Crittenden, Arizona Territory, at 4 P. M.

April 29, laid over to recruit the animals, having marched sixty-five miles in the two preceding days.

April 30, left Camp Crittenden, Arizona Territory, and, marching south-east, arrived at Portero, Arizona Territory.

May 1, left camp at 5 A. M. Mr. KITCHEN (proprietor of Kitchen's Ranch, Portero,) volunteered to guide the party through that range of mountains lying between the Sonoitas and Santa Cruz Valleys. At 3 P. M., Mr. KITCHEN, having concluded to remain home, parted with Lieut. CUSHING. About an hour after Mr. KITCHEN had left, Lieut. CUSHING and myself noticed the grass was being set on fire, and concluded it was done by Indians as a signal to their fellows in the mountains; but I have since learned that when about two miles from the command Mr. STROUSE saw some thirty or more Indians on a trail, and burned the grass to warn us; continuing our line of march along the Sonorita, and rounding the south-west point of Santa Cruz Mountains, camped at Santa Cruz, Mexico, arriving there at 11 P. M. Lieut. CUSHING, learning from the commandant at Santa Cruz that there were Indians on the Guachuca Mountains, determined to go there.

May 2, left camp, marching north-east; camped at the Cienega Guachuca Mountains at 8 P. M.

May 3, left camp at Cienega, marching due north, and, at 3 P. M., camped in a cañon on the east side of Guachuca Mountains, and discovered fresh moccasin tracks, clearly indicating the presence of Indians.

May 4, left camp, marching over a broken and rocky country; camped in Cañon Alisos; grass very scarce, owing to the country around having been burning for several days.

May 55, left camp at 7 A. M., marching north-west; arrived at Wald Camp Wallen, A. T., at which place Lieut. CUSHING intended to camp, but finding the grass all burned off and still burning, concluded to march to Bear Springs, Whetstone Mountains; about two miles north of Wallen struck a trail (one squaw and pony track) going toward the spring; the Lieutenant directed me to take three men and follow the track, while he followed the main trail with the detachment.

I followed the track about three-fourths of a mile, until it entered a cañon, which was simply a deep arroya; seeing that the squaw, in walking along the sand, had taken great pains to make a clear print of her foot at each step, and that she even avoided all stones and rocks in order to do this more effectually, I became convinced that we were being led into a trap, and determined to leave the cañon. Scarcely had I reached the top of the left wall, when I found my suspicions had been correct, as a party of Indians, about fifteen in number, were hid in a side cañon joining the one I had just left, and would have intercepted my retreat had I continued following the track. Being at the time well posted, I thought I could, with two men, hold them in check while the third man went off to signal Lieut. CUSHING back; as we dismounted to be ready for them, I saw a second and much larger party on my left running to cut off our rear; I then deemed it expedient to fall back; and while in the act of mounting, the Indians fired a volley, disabling the horse of Private GREEN and severely wounding Private PIERCE; these men started on foot for the rear, closely followed by the enemy, who ran so close on GREEN as to snatch his hat from his head. The third man, who had signalled Lieut. CUSHING, looking back, saw how matters stood, and fired into the Indians, who, no doubt, thought that the main body had come up, as they paused, giving us time to escape.

The front line of the Apaches (they advanced in two lines) having fired off their rifles, did not stop to reload, but kept following us thinking to capture us alive; they could easily have killed us, being armed with Spencer breech-loaders and revolvers. Some of the Indians in the second line kept up a brisk but a harmless fire.

Lieut. CUSHING now coming up, having with him Mr. SIMPSON (a citizen friend) and Private CHAPMAN, I stated to the Lieutenant that I thought the Indians would capture GREEN if we did not go to his assistance, but he—CUSHING—replied by himself. Moving up at once, we attacked them, the rest of the men coming up now, (we had about eleven men in line,) when a brisk fight ensued, in which we succeeded in driving the Indians to the hills, they leaving at this point five dead in our hands. We had three horses killed. Sending back three men to the pack-train, Lieut. CUSHING gave the command "forward." I seeing the disadvantage as we stood, advancing over open ground to attack an enemy under cover, outnumbering us fifteen to one, said to the Lieutenant, "Lieutenant, do you think it prudent to go further?" Mr. SIMPSON, a gentleman of much experience, also counseled him to return; but the Lieutenant seemed to think that the Indians were completely routed. Counting our party, he said, "Eight—that ought to be enough;" that was the Lieutenant, Mr. SIMPSON, myself and five privates. We advanced about twenty yards, when the Indians opened fire, striking Mr. SIMPSON in the face, the ball passing out back of the head. The Lieutenant sent one man to help him out, thus reducing our number to six. The Indians, seeing our party so small, rushed down from all sides. It seemed as if every rock and bush became an Indian. I was at the time about five yards in advance of Lieut. CUSHING, and hearing the words, "Sergeant, Sergeant, take me out, take me out," turned and saw Lieut. CUSHING, face toward the horses, clasp his hands across his breast and fall to the ground. Calling to FICHTER to assist me, I seized the Lieutenant by the right arm. FICHTER taking the left, and started for the rear, followed by GREEN, who, I noticed, was very lame. The other two men started to get out the horses.

We carried the Lieutenant about ten or twelve paces, when he was again shot through the head and fell dead in our arms; we continued to drag the body until we caught up with YOUNT and Mr. SIMPSON, when the latter was again shot through the body, killing him instantly. Looking behind me I saw the enemy within thirty or forty yards of me, firing as he advanced. Dropping the body of Lieut. CUSHING, FICHTER and myself turned to sell our lives as dearly as possible, causing the Indians to pause, thus enabling Privates GREEN and YOUNT to mount. Acting Corp. KILMARTIN now opened fire with his party, thus enabling FICHTER and myself to mount; but scarcely had we done so when both horses were shot, two balls striking FICHTER'S horse in the flank, a third mine in the fore leg, and a fourth killing Private GREEN. Immediately mounting Lieut. CUSHING'S horse, I detached part of my command (now reduced to fourteen effective men) to move over with the packs on it, keeping the remainder with me to cover the retreat; then commenced a running fight for about a mile until, finding I had drawn the enemy from under cover, I halted to offer him battle, (hoping I could thus) to recover the bodies.) The Indians halted also, but declined the game, evidently having had enough of that kind of fighting, preferring to cut off and ambush me on the trail to Crittenden, which passed the foot-hills within one and one-half mile of his position. I having to go around the mountains, could strike it in about four miles. Seeing through their design, I crossed the Rio Barbacoma, four miles above old Camp Wallen, and continued my retreat over the mesas, thus placing the swampy head of the Barbacoma and a half mile of ground between me and the place of ambush and the trail. I had scarcely arrived opposite this place when the Indians uttered yells of savage rage and disappointment, but were powerless to molest me. It was becoming dark, or about 7 P. M., I continued my route to Camp Crittenden, at which place I arrived about 1 A. M. on the 4th of May. Four of the pack-mules being very weak and poor, owing to the scarcity of grass, (the country along our route having been burned off by Indians,) I had to abandon in my retreat. I succeeded, however, in carrying off Lieut. CUSHING'S pistols and Mr. SIMPSON'S Henry rifle.

The Indians were well handled by their Chief, a thick, heavy-set man, who never dismounted from a small brown horse during the fight. They were not noisy or boisterous, as Indians generally are, but paid great attention to their Chief, whose designs I could guess at as he delivered his instructions by gestures.

I believe I am stating the truth when I set down the number of the enemy killed at thirteen; it may be more, but that number was seen to fall.

Our casualties were Lieut. CUSHING, Mr. SIMPSON and Private GREEN killed, and Private PIERCE wounded.

I had four horses killed and two wounded. The men all behaved well, and especially Privates KILMARTIN, FICHTER, YOUNT and MILLER.

Distance marched on scout, 240 miles.

Having submitted the foregoing report for your consideration, I am, Captain, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

JOHN MOTT, (Signed,) Sergeant Troop F, Third Cavalry.

CITY REAL ESTATE.

FOR SALE, ON 87TH-AV., NEAR 42D-ST.—The fine property lately occupied by the Rutgers Female College, and known as Nos. 49, 49½ 51 and 53 87th-st.; the buildings have a rear entrance, and are suitable for a private hotel, club-house or institution; price, $140,000; on easy terms. Apply to ROMEIN MORGAN, No. 8 Pine-st.

FOR SALE—CENTRAL PARK LOTS.—A very desirable lot, 82x106, on 8th-av., fronting one of the principal entrances to the Park; free from stone, and just right to build on without expense of blasting or excavating. Apply to

FOR SALE CHEAP.—A FIRST-CLASS four-story BROWN-STONE house on West 58th-st., between 6th and 7th avs.; price, $24,000. For particulars apply to JOHN MCILVAINE, No. 44 Pine-st.

COUNTRY REAL ESTATE.

A BARGAIN.—SUBURBAN COTTAGE FOR sale or to let, combining advantages of City and country residence, forty minutes from Liberty or Cortlandt streets; fifty trains each way by favorite lines of travel; situated near depot, in most attractive and promising part of Elizabeth; house is tasteful, spacious and modern fitted; extra large lot, well-stocked garden, fruit and shade trees, flower beds, stable, &c., admirably adapted to wants of a New-York business man, and sure to advance in value. Will be rented to responsible parties or sold at a sacrifice; title perfect; payments made satisfactory. For particulars and photographs, address E. D., Post-office Box No. 586, New-York.

FOR SALE OR TO LET.—NINE BEAUtiful cottages, houses and lots, pleasantly located on Avenue A, at Bayonne, Hudson County, N. J.; one of the most desirable locations for the city, near the station, and only twenty minutes from the City, by Central Railroad of New-Jersey; possession immediately. For terms apply to

A. D. MELLICK, No. 110 Broadway.

ORANGE, N. J.—COUNTRY HOUSES, cottages and villas, for sale; a great variety, beautifully situated, 45 minutes to 1 hour from N. Y. Also, furnished and unfurnished houses to let for season or year, by BLACKWELL & SMITH, 263 Broadway, 9 to 11; or Orange, corner Main and Cone sts.

STORES, &C., TO LET.

OFFICES TO LET IN THE TIMES BUILDING.

SPLENDID OFFICES TO LET IN THE FIRE PROOF TIMES BUILDING.

Apply at TIMES COUNTING-ROOM.

DWELLINGS TO LET.

TO RENT FURNISHED—IN ONE OF the pleasantest houses on Murray Hill, the whole of the third floor, with bath-room and every convenience; the family is strictly private, and the house first-class in every respect. This is a fine opportunity for one or two gentlemen seeking a cool and pleasant home during the summer months; breakfast if desired; references exchanged. Address M. H., advertiser, Box No. 132 Times Office.

A WELL-FURNISHED HOUSE TO rent three months at Montclair, N. J.; one hour from New-York; ten minutes from station; bath, range, well, stable, cow; rather extensive grounds. Terms moderate. Address Box No. 43 Montclair, N. J.

TO LET—FOR JULY AND AUGUST, A FURnished cottage on the Hudson; thirteen rooms; beautiful view; rent $130 per month. Apply to L. H., Box No. 119 Station D, Bible House.

THREE PRETTY COTTAGES TO let at Rutherford Park, N. J., the most beautiful suburb of New-York. Apply to owner, THOMAS R. AGNEW, No. 320 Greenwich-st.

REAL ESTATE AT AUCTION.

J. JOHNSON, JR., Auctioneer.

UNPARALLELED ATTRACTION.

Crème de la Crème of

FLUSHING PROPERTY,

To be sold at auction by JOHNSON & MILLER, TUESDAY, JULY 11, SPLENDID COLLATION. FREE EXCURSION TRAIN. GRAFULLA'S SEVENTH REGIMENT BAND.

500 VILLAGE (NOT FARM) LOTS on graded streets, situated on

JAMAICA-AVENUE,

the court end of the accessible, quietly, aristocratic and essential VILLAGE OF FLUSHING.

THREE RAILROAD DEPOTS will positively be sold at 3 o'clock P. M., Tuesday, July 11, 1871, on terms so easy that all may purchase in this delightful suburb, and BUILD HOMES OF THEIR OWN, NINE MILES FROM NEW-YORK CITY HALL, and be in communication with the Metropolis by FORTY-FOUR DAILY TRAINS, running from 5½ A. M. TILL MIDNIGHT, at rates of commutation less than daily fares on City horse-cars.

FLUSHING LAWN.

The property to be sold, being part of the estate of Wm. Lawrence, deceased, now for the first time offered at public sale, has long been regarded as the garden de la reine of Flushing property, and, as such, has for years been eagerly sought by speculators, but the owners, fully able to hold it, preferred to hide their time, and for the welfare of the lovely village deed it directly with the public, and we now offer 500 Lots, in plots to suit, with entire confidence that this is THE VERY FINEST SUBURBAN PROPERTY, so near the business centre of New-York, that has ever been sold.

SPECIAL EXCURSION TRAIN WILL LEAVE, VIA JAMES-SLIP AND 34TH-ST. FERRIES, AT 12 O'CLOCK NOON.

Terms easy. Maps and particulars at office of JOHNSON & MILLER, No. 25 Nassau-st., New-York.

DRY GOODS.

SPECIAL NOTICE!!

In order to give our clerks a little recreation during the Summer months, we propose closing our store, BROADWAY AND 26TH-ST., at 2 O'CLOCK on the SATURDAYS of JULY and AUGUST, and respectfully ask the public to do their shopping before that time.

LORD & TAYLOR

RICHARDSON'S IRISH LINENS, DAMASKS, LINEN CAMBRIC HANDKERCHIEFS, &c.

We feel ourselves called on again to CAUTION CONSUMERS against the indiscriminate use of Irish fabrics made up to imitate our goods in fold, trade mark and general appearance, and to warn them that their only safeguard is to see that the authentic seal of our firm,

J. N. RICHARDSON, SONS & OWDEN,

is stamped on each article.

Determined to confine ourselves, as heretofore, to the use of yarns spun from the choicest and strongest flax, by the best machinery obtainable, uniform in weight and elasticity, manufactured and bleached under our own superintendence, the consumer will be the same durability and satisfaction in the wear which the genuine goods have always afforded.

GUARANTEED BY OUR SEAL

J. N. RICHARDSON, SONS & OWDEN.

BELFAST, Ireland, 5 Mo. 15, 1871.

MRS. A. BURDETTE SMITH'S FAT-TERN BAZAAR, No. 914 Broadway, near 20th-st.—New arrival of Summer styles from Berlin and Brussels. This nearly completes the season. Grand-est display ever seen in New-York. Patterns fitted to the form, and warranted perfect. Cloth model with each pattern.

PLAIN PINE-APPLE AND CANTON crapes; black, colored and white, striped and plaid, wash silks. Every variety of goods in our line, also American Indian articles. Catalogues sent per mail. FOUNTAIN'S INDIA STORE, Nos. 537 and 539 Broadway, corner 13th-st., up-stairs.

MUSICAL.

A GREAT OFFER!!

HORACE WATERS, 481 BROADWAY, N. Y., will dispose of ONE HUNDRED PIANOS, MELODEONS and ORGANS of six first-class makers, including Waters's, at EXTREMELY LOW PRICES FOR CASH DURING THIS MONTH, or will take from $4 to $20 monthly until paid; to rent, and rent applied if purchased. A new kind of PARLOR ORGAN, the most beautiful style and perfect tone ever made, now on exhibition at 481 Broadway.

PIANOS.—SECOND-HAND PIANOS, OF VArious makers, comprising squares, uprights and grands, for sale at low prices by CHICKERING & SONS, No. 11 East 14th-st., between Broadway and 5th-av. Pianos to rent.

SURROGATE NOTICES.

IN PURSUANCE OF AN ORDER OF Robert C. Hutchings, Esq., Surrogate of the County of New-York, notice is hereby given to all persons having claims against CHRISTOPHER BALMFORTH, late of the City of New-York, deceased, to present the same, with vouchers thereof, to the subscriber, at her place of business, at the office of Underhill & Ulshoeffer, No. 54 Wall-st., in the City of New-York, on or before the 25th day of July next.—Dated New-York, the 14th day of January, 1871.

ELIZABETH BALMFORTH, Executrix of Christopher Balmforth, deceased. ja17-lawsSW*

STATIONERY.

FRANCIS & LOUTREL, NO. 45 Maiden-lane, solicit orders for blank books, stationery and printing. Prices low.

DIVIDENDS.

COMMERCE FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY, } OF NEW-YORK, OFFICE NO. 27 WALL-ST., } NEW-YORK, July 1, 1871. }

DIVIDEND.

A Semi-annual Dividend of Five per Cent. (free from Government tax) has this day been declared, payable on and after MONDAY, the 10th inst.

WM. E. HOXIE, Secretary.

ROOM NO. 77, TRINITY BUILDING, } No. 111 BROADWAY, NEW-YORK, June 30, 1871. }

THE COPARTNERSHIP HERETOFORE existing between PHILIP W. VERPLANCK and JOHN W. ATWOOD, doing business under the firm name of VERPLANCK & ATWOOD, is this day dissolved by mutual consent.

Either party will sign in liquidation.

PHILIP W. VERPLANCK. JOHN W. ATWOOD.

ROOM NO. 77, TRINITY BUILDING, } No. 111 BROADWAY, NEW-YORK, July 1, 1871. }

The undersigned have this day formed a copartnership for the purpose of carrying on a wholesale coal business, under the firm name of VERPLANCK, ATWOOD & IRWIN.

PHILIP W. VERPLANCK. JOHN W. ATWOOD. JAMES B. IRWIN.

TREASURER'S OFFICE, } MACON AND WESTERN RAILROAD COMPANY, } MACON, Ga., June 28, 1871. }

THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS HAVE declared a Dividend of Five per Cent., free from tax, out of the earnings of the last six months, payable to the stockholders registered in the New-York Agency, at the National Bank of the Republic, New-York, on the 20th inst., until which date the transfer-books are closed.

MILO S. FREEMAN, Treasurer.

THE COUPONS OF THE NEW-YORK AND OSWEGO MIDLAND RAILROAD First Mortgage Seven Per Cent. Gold Bonds, due July 1, 1871, will be paid on and after that date, free of Government tax, at the office of the Union Trust Company of New-York.

The transfer-books will be closed on the 20th day of June inst., and remain closed until further notice.

JAMES H. BANKER, Treasurer.

OFFICE OF THE NEW-YORK, PROVIDENCE AND } BOSTON R. R. CO., (STONINGTON RAILROAD,) } NEW-YORK, June 29, 1871. }

A DIVIDEND OF FOUR PER CENT. out of the earnings of the last six months will be paid, free of Government tax, at the office of Messrs. M. Morgan's Sons, No. 39 William-st., on the 5th day of July. Transfer-books will be closed until that date.

F. B. HOYES, Secretary.

PHENIX NATIONAL BANK, } NEW-YORK, June 23, 1871. }

THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF this Bank have this day declared a Dividend of Three and One-Half (3½) per Cent., free from tax, payable on and after July 1, 1871.

The transfer-books will be closed from this date until July 5, 1871.

JOHN PARKER, Cashier.

THE COUPONS OF THE CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY OF IOWA, First Mortgage Seven per Cent. Gold Bonds, due July 1st, 1871, will be paid on and after that date, free of United States Government tax, on presentation at the office of A. L. Hatch, No. 31 Pine-st., New-York.

HORACE ABBOTT, Treasurer.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 29, 1871.

MERCHANTS' NATIONAL BANK, } NEW-YORK, June 23, 1871. }

THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF this bank have this day declared a Semi-annual Dividend of FOUR (4) PER CENT., free of tax, payable on and after July 1st proximo, until which date the transfer-books will be closed.

R. MCCARTEE, Cashier.

No. 6 CHAR.-ST., NEW-YORK, June 29, 1871.

THE COUPONS OF THE FIRST Mortgage Bonds of the Cedar Falls and Minnesota Railroad Company, due July 1, 1871, will be paid on and after that date by the Third National Bank, No. 49 Wall-st.

JOHN S. KENNEDY, President.

THE CENTRAL NATIONAL BANK OF THE CITY OF NEW-YORK, NEW-YORK, June 24, 1871.

THE DIRECTORS OF THIS BANK have this day declared a semi-annual Dividend of Four per Cent. out of the earnings of the past six months, payable, free of tax, on and after July 1, 1871. The transfer-books will be closed from this date until the morning of July 5. C. F. COLES, Cashier.

FOURTH NATIONAL BANK, } OF THE CITY OF NEW-YORK, } NEW-YORK, June 28, 1871. }

A SEMI-ANNUAL DIVIDEND OF FOUR (4) PER CENT., free of all taxes, has been this day declared, payable 1st July. The transfer-books will be closed till that date.

ANTHONY LANE, Cashier.

ATLANTIC NATIONAL BANK, NO. 17 NASSAU-ST., } NEW-YORK, June 23, 1871. }

DIVIDEND.—THE DIRECTORS OF THE Atlantic National Bank have this day declared a Semi-annual Dividend of Four per Cent. out of all tax, payable on SATURDAY, the 1st of July next. The transfer-books will be closed from June 24 until July 3.

F. L. TAINTOR, Cashier.

OFFICE EMPIRE CITY FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY, } NEW-YORK, June 29, 1871. }

THIRTY-NINTH DIVIDEND.—THE Directors have this day declared a Semi-annual Dividend of Five per Cent., free of Government tax, payable on and after July 1, 1871.

LINDLEY MURRAY, Jr., Assistant Secretary.

OFFICE OF THE CITIZENS' INSURANCE COMPANY, } No. 156 BROADWAY, NEW-YORK, } July 1, 1871. }

A SEMI-ANNUAL INTEREST DIVIdend of Three and One-half per Cent. on capital stock and reserved fund (free of Government tax) is payable on demand.

EDWARD A WALTON, Secretary.

OFFICE OF THE INTERNATIONAL INSURANCE COMPANY, No. 118 BROADWAY, } NEW-YORK, July 1, 1871. }

THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF this Company have this day declared a Semi-annual Dividend of Four per Cent. (free from Government tax) payable on demand.

WILLIAM J. HUGHES, Secretary.

OFFICE OF DUNCAN, SHERMAN & CO., BANKERS, } No. 11 NASSAU-ST. }

THE INTEREST DUE JULY 1, 1871, on the Bonds of the State of Alabama will be paid on and after that date at our office, No. 11 Nassau-st.

DUNCAN, SHERMAN & CO., Financial Agents of the State of Alabama.

MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE NATIONAL BANK } OF THE CITY OF NEW-YORK, June 21, 1871. }

THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS HAVE this day declared a Dividend of Three per Cent., free of tax, payable on and after the 1st day of July next. The transfer-books will remain closed until July 8, 1871.

A. S. APGAR, Cashier.

NATIONAL BANK OF THE COMMONWEALTH, } NEW-YORK, June 27, 1871. }

A DIVIDEND OF THREE PER CENT. out of the earnings of the past six months will be paid to the shareholders, free of taxes, on SATURDAY, the 1st of July next, by order of the Board of Directors.

E. J. HUESTIS, Cashier.

STATE OF KANSAS, TREASURER'S OFFICE, } TOPEKA, June 2, 1871. }

THE INTEREST MATURING JULY 1, 1871, upon the Bonds of the State of Kansas will be paid on and after that date upon presentation at the Banking-house of Gilman, Son & Co., No. 47 Exchange-place, New-York.

J. E. HAYES, State Treasurer.

PEOPLE'S FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY, } No. 26 Canal-st. }

THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS HAVE this day declared a Semi-annual Dividend of SIX PER CENT., free of tax, payable on and after the 1st day of July.

FRED. V. PRICE, Secretary. NEW-YORK, June 28, 1871.

OFFICE OF THE HOPE FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY, } NO. 92 BROADWAY, June 28, 1871. }

THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS HAVE this day declared a Semi-annual Dividend of FIVE PER CENT., free of Government tax, payable on and after 1st July, 1871.

JAMES R

SHIPPING.

CUNARD LINE.

THE BRITISH AND NORTH AMERICAN ROYAL MAIL STEAMSHIPS

BETWEEN NEW-YORK AND LIVERPOOL, CALLING AT CORK HARBOR.

China, Wednesday, July 5 Algeria, Saturday, July 15
Scotia, Wednesday, July 12 Russia, Saturday, July 22
Java, Wednesday, July 19 Columbia, Saturday, July 29
Russia, Wednesday, July 26 Erin, Saturday, Aug. 5
Cuba, Wednesday, Aug. 2 China, Saturday, Aug. 12

By the Wednesday steamers, not carrying Steerage Passengers.

First Cabin to Paris ..... $140 gold. Second Cabin, $80 gold.
First Cabin to Paris ..... $100 gold. Second Cabin, $60 gold.
Return Tickets on favorable terms.

By the Tuesday and Saturday steamers:

First Cabin, $80 gold. Steerage, $30, currency.
Return Tickets, good for One Month, $140 gold.
Steerage tickets from Liverpool and Queenstown and all parts of Europe at lowest rates.
Through Bills of Lading given for Bristol, Glasgow, Havre, Antwerp and other ports on the Continent, and for Mediterranean ports.
For freight and cabin passage apply at the Company's Office, No. 4 Bowling-green.
For steerage passage apply at No. 111 Broadway, Trinity Building.
CHAS. G. FRANCKLYN, Agent.

PASSENGERS FOR THE STEAM-SHIP CHINA leave Pier No. 44 North River, foot of Grand-st., Jersey City, at 9:30 A. M. on WEDNESDAY, 5th inst.
CHAS. J. FRANCKLYN,
No. 4 Bowling-green, New-York.

ONLY DIRECT LINE TO FRANCE.

THE GENERAL TRANSATLANTIC COMPANY'S MAIL STEAM-SHIPS BETWEEN NEW-YORK AND HAVRE, CALLING AT BREST.

The splendid vessels on this favorite route for the Continent will sail from Pier No. 50 North River, as follows:

LAFAYETTE ..... SOMMAT ..... Saturday, July 15
ST. LAURENT ..... LEMAIRE ..... Saturday, July 29
VILLE DE PARIS ..... SURMONT ..... Saturday, Aug. 12
PEREIRE ..... DUBOURDIEU ..... Saturday, Aug. 26

PRICE OF PASSAGE IN GOLD (including wine) TO HAVRE OR BREST:

First Cabin ..... $140 | Second Cabin $80
TO PARIS:
First Cabin ..... $160 | Second Cabin $100

Including railway tickets, furnished on board.
First Cabin ..... $145 | Second Cabin $90
Children under 12 years of age, half price.
Medical attendance free. No cattle or sheep carried.
American travelers going to or returning from the Continent of Europe, by taking the steamers of this line, avoid both transit by English railways and the discomfort of crossing the Channel, besides saving time, trouble and expense.
GEORGE MACKENZIE, Agent,
No. 58 Broadway.

ANCHOR LINE.

Steamers sail every WEDNESDAY and SATURDAY, to and from

NEW-YORK AND GLASGOW,

Calling at Londonderry to land Mails and Passengers.

Passengers booked and forwarded to and from all railway stations in Great Britain, Ireland, Germany, Norway, Sweden or Denmark and America on safest, speediest, economical and direct route by any other route or line.

"EXPRESS" STEAMERS. | "EXTRA" STEAMERS.
Anchoria ..... Sat. July 8 | Victoria ..... Wed. July 5
Castalia ..... Sat. July 15 | Caledonia ..... Wed. July 19
Europa ..... Sat. July 22 | Iowa ..... Wed. July 19
India ..... Sat. July 29 | Canada ..... Wed. July 26
And every WEDNESDAY and SATURDAY thereafter.

Rates of passage by these steamers, which are the largest and most commodious that sail from this port, can be learned here by applying at the office of the Company.

Steerage tickets at lowest rates, can be bought here by persons wishing to send for their friends.

For freight or passage apply at the Company's office, No. 7 Bowling-green.

HENDERSON BROTHERS.

NEW-YORK, CORK AND LIVERPOOL.

NEW AND FULL-POWERED STEAM-SHIPS.

THE RMS. LARNE, 3,000 tons burden—
ARKLOW, 3,000 tons burden—
3,000 horse-power each.

Sailing from New-York on SATURDAYS, from Liverpool on THURSDAYS, calling at Cork Harbor both ways.

OCEANIC, Capt. THOMSON, on Saturday, July 8, at 10 A. M. ATLANTIC, Capt. MURRAY, Saturday, Aug. 5, at 2 P. M. From the White Star Dock, Pier No. 48 North River, foot of Perry-st., Jersey City.

Rates—Cabin, $80 currency. Steerage, $30 currency.

Steamer Oceanic will succeed Republic in Saturday's sailing.

SAFETY, SPEED AND COMFORT.

Saloons, staterooms, smoking-room and bath-rooms in midship section, where least motion is felt. Superior cuisine and attendance. Experienced surgeon carried.

RAILWAY TICKETS TO ALL POINTS IN THE WEST.

Those wishing to send for friends from the Old Country can now obtain steerage prepaid certificates, viz., currency.

Passengers booked to or from all parts of America, Paris, Hamburg, Norway, Sweden, Trieste, Australia, China, &c.

Excursion tickets granted at lowest rates.

Drafts from $1 upward.

For passage or general and other information, apply at the Company's offices, No. 19 Broadway, New-York.

J. H. SPARKS, Agent.

ERMAN LINE FOR QUEENSTOWN AND LIVERPOOL.

Royal Mail Steamers are appointed to sail as follows:

CITY OF LIMERICK ..... Thursday, July 6, 2 P. M.
CITY OF BRUSSELS ..... Saturday, July 8, 10 A. M.
CITY OF NEW-YORK ..... Thursday, July 13, 2 P. M.
CITY OF LONDON ..... Saturday, July 15, 2 P. M.

And each succeeding SATURDAY and THURSDAY, from Pier No. 45 North River.

RATES OF PASSAGE.

Payable in Gold.		Payable in Currency.
First Cabin	$75	Steerage	$30
To London	80	To London	35
To Paris	90	To Paris	40

Passengers also forwarded to Havre, Hamburg, Sweden, Norway and Denmark, at reduced rates.

Tickets can be bought hereat moderate rates by persons wishing to send for their friends.

For further information apply at the Company's Office.
JOHN G. DALE, Agent,
No. 15 Broadway, New-York.

FOR LIVERPOOL,
(VIA QUEENSTOWN),
CARRYING THE UNITED STATES MAILS,

THE LIVERPOOL AND GREAT WESTERN STEAM COMPANY will dispatch one of their first-class clipper steamers every Saturday from PIER NO. 46 NORTH RIVER, EVERY WEDNESDAY as follows:

CITY OF LIMERICK, Capt. GREEN ..... July 5, at 3 P. M.
WYOMING, Capt. WHITEHEAD ..... July 12, at 2 P. M.
MINNESOTA, Capt. T. W. FREEMAN, July 19, at 3 P. M.
IDAHO, Capt. PRICE ..... July 26, at 12 M.
COLORADO, Capt. J. D. LEA ..... Aug. 2, at 3 P. M.
WISCONSIN, Capt. WILLIAMS ..... Aug. 9, at 12 M.

Cabin passage, $80, gold.
Steerage passage, (Office No. 19 Broadway,) $30, currency.
For freight or cabin passage apply to WILLIAMS & GUION, No. 29 Wall-st.

NATIONAL LINE.

STEAM TO LIVERPOOL AND QUEENSTOWN, From Pier No. 47 North River.

HELEN QUEEN, THOMAS, Saturday, July 8, at 9½ A. M.
ITALY, OSGOOD, Saturday, July 15, at 2 P. M.
From Pier No. 47 North River, foot of Perry-st., Jersey City.
Rates—Cabin, $75 to $100, according to location of stateroom, currency; steerage, $30 currency.
Prepaid steerage tickets from Liverpool, Queenstown, Londonderry and Glasgow, $30 currency.
For further particulars apply at the Company's offices, No. 69 Broadway.
T. W. J. HURST, Manager.

BALTIC LLOYD.

For STETTIN direct, touching at CHRISTIANSAND and COPENHAGEN to land passengers and mails.

The first-class iron steamship
HUMBOLDT, Capt. P. BARANDON, will sail on SATURDAY, July 22, at 2 P. M., from Pier No. 13, North River. To be followed by steamship FRANKLIN, Capt. P. DREYER, on THURSDAY, Aug. —.

Cabin passage, gold, $80; steerage, gold, $25.

Freight for ST. PETERSBURG and other important points of the Baltic received and through bills of lading issued to Riga or places nearer. For freight apply to WENDT & RAMMELSBERG, Agents,
Office, No. 40 Broadway.

PACIFIC MAIL STEAM-SHIP COMPANY'S LINE TO CALIFORNIA, JAPAN AND CHINA, VIA PANAMA.
CARRYING MAILS, PASSENGERS AND FREIGHT TO KINGSTON, JAMAICA; SANTA MARSHA AND GREYTOWN, AND PACIFIC COAST OF MEXICO, CENTRAL AMERICA, PERU, AND CHILI.

Steamers leave 24th and 9th each month, except when those dates fall on Sunday, then the day previous.

July 15—Steamer OCEAN QUEEN, Capt. A. G. GRAY, will leave Pier No. 42 North River, at 12 o'clock, noon, for Aspinwall via Kingston, connecting at Panama with steamer SACRAMENTO, Capt. LAFLIN, touching at Acapulco, Manzanillo and Mazatlan, and also connecting for all Central American and South Pacific ports. Freight for last-named ports received until 2 P. M. of July 13.

Steamer AMERICA will leave San Francisco, Aug. 1, for Japan and China. For rates of passage, freight and all further information, apply at Company's office on the pier, foot of Canal-st.

F. R. BABY, Agent.

FOR ST. THOMAS AND BRAZIL.

UNITED STATES AND BRAZIL STEAM-SHIP COMPANY.

REGULAR MAIL STEAMERS calling on the 23d of every month.

MERRIMACK, Capt. WISE ..... July 23
SOUTH AMERICA, Capt. L. TINKHAM ..... Aug. 23
NORTH AMERICA, Capt. C. H. SWAN ..... Sept. 23

These splendid steamers sail on schedule time, and call at St. Thomas, Para, Pernambuco, Bahia and Rio de Janeiro, going and returning. For engagements of freight or passage, apply to
WM. R. GARRISON, Agent,
No. 4 Bowling-green, New-York.

FOR NASSAU, N. P.,
CARRYING THE ROYAL MAILS.

Atlantic Mail Steam-Ship Company's steamer BERMUDIAN, Capt. A. BLANCHARD, will sail July 22, at 3 P. M., from Pier No. 9 North River. For freight or passage apply to
A. W. DIMOCK, President,
No. 4 Bowling-green.

HAVANA DIRECT AND FREE DUTY.

Steamer CITY OF MERIDA, Capt. ——, Friday, July 7
CITY OF MEXICO, Timmerman, Thursday, July 27
For freight or passage apply to
F. ALEXANDRE & SONS, No. 29 Broadway.

NOTICE TO TRAVELLERS.

Fleetline of sanitary steamers to leave on the Government of Europe, who can afford the expense of a courier, should never leave Paris without one. Their services are invaluable in relieving the traveler from the multiplicity of cares and troubles attending passports, examination and conveyance of luggage, in securing the best accommodations, in exacting the traveler from imposition and an infinity of annoyances, to which they are exposed in their tour of the Continent. Competent and trustworthy couriers and traveling servants may always be obtained by applying to the COURRIER SOCIETY, No. 3 Rue d'Alger, near the Tuileries Garden, Paris.

SHIPPING.

FOR SAVANNAH, GA.

THE FLORIDA PORTS,
AND TEN SOUTH AND SOUTH-WEST.

GREAT SOUTHERN FREIGHT AND PASSENGER LINE.

CENTRAL RAILROAD OF GEORGIA AND ATLANTIC AND GULF RAILROAD.

FOUR STEAMERS A WEEK.

TUESDAYS, THURSDAYS AND SATURDAYS.

THE STEAM-SHIPS

CLEOPATRA, Capt. FERRIER, TUESDAY, July 4, from Pier No. 13 East River, at 3 P. M.
MURRAY, FERRIS & CO., Agents,
No. 6 and 8 Coenties-sl.

GENERAL BARNES, Capt. MALLORY, THURSDAY, July 6, from Pier No. 9 North River, at 3 P. M.
LIVINGSTON, FOX & CO., Agents,
No. 157 West-st.

SAN SALVADOR, Capt. NEMERSON, SATURDAY, July 8, from Pier No. 1 North River, at 3 P. M.
WM. R. GARRISON, Agent,
No. 4 Bowling-green.

HUNTSVILLE, Capt. CROWELL, SATURDAY, July 8, from Pier No. 13 North River, at 3 P. M.
R. LOWDEN, Agent,
No. 20 West-st.

Insurance by this line ONE-HALF PER CENT. Superior accommodations for passengers.
Through rates and bills of lading in connection with the Central Railroad of Georgia, to all points.
Through rates and bills of lading in connection with Central Railroad of Georgia, to all points.
O. D. OWENS, Agent C. R. R.,
No. 320 Broadway.
GEORGE YONGE, Agent C. R. R.,
No. 420 Broadway.

U. S. MAIL TO HAVANA.

ATLANTIC MAIL STEAM-SHIP COMPANY.

Steamer MORRO CASTLE, Capt. ——, THURSDAY, July 6, at 3 o'clock P. M., from Pier No. 42 North River.
COLUMBIA, Capt. E. VAN SICKLEN, ... July 8
MORRO CASTLE, Capt. ——, ... July 13
HABANA, Capt. ——, ... July 15
HISCOUEL, Capt. J. E. EDWARDS, ... July 20
For freight or passage apply to
A. W. DIMOCK, President,
No. 4 Bowling-green.

DELAWARE AND NEW-YORK S. S. CO.

Pier No. 40 North River, foot of Morton-st., adjoining wharf of the LAGTREN OUTER, for Lewes, every MONDAY and THURSDAY, at 3 P. M., connecting with Junction and Breakwater Railroad for Dover, Baltimore, Washington, &c., and WEDNESDAY and SATURDAY, at 4 P. M., or on arrival of the trains. For passage and freight apply at office on the pier. J. C. GIBBS, Agt.

FINANCIAL.

VERMILYE & CO.
BANKERS,
16 and 18 Nassau-st., New-York.

DEALERS IN ALL ISSUES OF GOVERNMENT SECURITIES.
BUY AND SELL ON COMMISSION
RAILWAY STOCKS, BONDS AND GOLD.
MAKE LIBERAL ADVANCES.
ALLOW INTEREST ON DEPOSITS.

RONDOUT AND OSWEGO
Railroad Company.
First Mortgage Gold Bonds.

Principal and Interest Payable in Gold.
Seven per Cent. per Annum, Payable Semi-Annually.

Issue of Bonds limited to $60,000 per mile of completed road. Bonds secured by a first mortgage to the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, of New-York, as trustee, and covering every description of property the Company now own, or whatever they may acquire hereafter.

The Road is now being rapidly pushed forward to completion by able contractors, and it is expected the whole route to Oswego will be completed in 1872 fall year.

The Bonds are for $1,000 each in Coupons or Registered form to suit. Price 95 in currency and accrued interest. For sale by

EDWARD HAIGHT & CO.,
No. 9 Wall-st., New-York.

FIRST-CLASS
CITY AND COUNTY BONDS, PAYING FROM 10 TO 12 PER CENT.,
FREE OF ALL TAXES.
INTEREST COUPONS PROMPTLY PAID SEMI-ANNUALLY IN NEW-YORK.
CHOICE SECURITIES OF UNDOUBTED CHARACTER BELOW PAR.
CASH VALUATION OF PROPERTY $45,719,317
WHOLE INDEBTEDNESS, (LIMITED) 22,000,000

ALSO, AN EXTENSIVE VARIETY OF OTHER SECURITIES FOR SAFE AND PROFITABLE INVESTMENTS AT LOW RATES. FOR SALE BY

ALBERT H. NICOLAY,
BANKER, STOCK-BROKER AND AUCTIONEER,
No. 42 PINE-ST.

N. B.—FIRST-CLASS INVESTMENT SECURITIES, YIELDING LARGE RATES OF INTEREST, A SPECIALTY WITH THIS HOUSE FOR MANY YEARS.

COLLECTIONS.

Howes & Macy, Bankers,
(The same as an Incorporated Bank.)
No. 30 WALL-ST., NEW-YORK.

Have unusual facilities for making Collections on any part of the Union or Canada, with immediate Returns, at the very lowest Current Rates.

4 PER CENT. ALLOWED ON DEPOSITS.

JOHN J. CISCO & SON,
BANKERS,
No. 59 Wall-st., New-York,

RECEIVE DEPOSITS subject to check at sight, on which INTEREST is allowed at the rate of FOUR PER CENT. per annum.

Checks drawn on us are received on deposit by all the City Banks.

CERTIFICATES OF DEPOSIT issued, payable on demand.

GOVERNMENTS, GOLD, STOCKS and BONDS bought and sold on commission.

BIDS

For $200,000 Ten per cent., twenty years, St. Joseph, Mo., City Bonds, coupons payable semi-annually in New-York, will be received by the undersigned until the 15th of July next.

The bids will be received, either for the whole or for any less amount, to be delivered monthly.

The interest accrued in bonds will be delivered July 15 and the balance in cash as money is wanted for the construction of the bridge, not to exceed $75,000 per month.

I reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

Treasurer St. Joseph Bridge Building Company, St. Joseph, Mo.

J. G. KAPPNER.

CHOICE SECURITIES.

Illinois Registered 10-per Cent. Bonds.
Missouri County 10 per Cent. Bonds.
Missouri School 10 per Cent. Bonds.
Kansas School 10 per Cent. Bonds.
And other safe and reliable investments, payable in this City. For sale (below par) by PITCH & ELLIS, Bankers, No. 11 Pine-st.

NOTICE. NOTICE. NOTICE.

To the holders of Virginia State Securities. The undersigned respectfully announce that they will attend to the funding of the above named securities for an eighth per cent commission. J. M. WEITH & ARENTS, Dealers in Southern Securities, No. 9 New-st., New-York. JULY 1, 1871.

JOHN MUNROE & CO.,
NO. 8 WALL-ST., NEW-YORK,
Issue Circular Letters of Credit for Travelers, and Draw Bills on MUNROE & CO., No. 7 Rue Scribe, Paris,
Payable in GOLD or equivalent.

BROWN BROTHERS & CO.

NO. 59 WALL-ST.,
Issue COMMERCIAL and TRAVELLERS' CREDITS AVAILABLE in all PARTS of the WORLD.

LAKE SHORE AND MICHIGAN SOUTHERN RAILWAY,
CLEVELAND, O., June 6, 1871.

TO THE STOCKHOLDERS OF THE LAKE SHORE AND MICHIGAN SOUTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY:

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of this Company held on the 5th day of June, 1871, it was

Resolved, That it be recommended to the stockholders of this Company to authorize the issue of the Fifteen Millions of Dollars of the Capital Stock of this Company for the purposes mentioned; and that a meeting of the stockholders be called, to be holden at the office of the Company in the City of Cleveland, Ohio, on THURSDAY, the 27th day of July next, at 11 o'clock A. M., to vote upon the question of such authorization.

For the purpose of ascertaining the parties entitled to vote upon the question the stock transfer-books will be closed on the 30th day of June inst., and remain closed until further notice.

GEO. B. ELY, Secretary.

OFFICE OF THE CONSOLIDATION COAL COMPANY, OF MARYLAND, No. 71 Broadway, Room 26, NEW-YORK, July 3, 1871.

TO THE HOLDERS OF THE FIRST Mortgage Bonds of the Cumberland Coal and Iron Company: The undersigned will receive proposals until 12 o'clock of the 15th inst., at the office of the Consolidation Coal Company, No. 71 Broadway, for the sale to them of the whole or any part of the $60,000 of said Bonds, for the purpose of the Sinking Fund.

JAMES BROWN,
JOHN E. WILLIAMS, } Trustees.
LOWELL HOLBROOK,

ADVANCES MADE ON ALL KINDS of staple Merchandise and Produce at lowest rates, and storage accommodations may be had on most liberal terms. Apply at Nos. 9 and 11 New-st.

FINANCIAL.

FIRST MORTGAGE
GOLD BONDS,
OF
TWO RAILROAD COMPANIES
COMBINED, HAVING A PAID-UP CAPITAL OF EIGHT MILLIONS,
WITH 250 MILES OF ROAD IN OPERATION, CONNECTING
New-York City with the Great Lakes
BY THE
MOST DIRECT ROUTE POSSIBLE.

THE BONDS SECURED BY A FIRST MORTGAGE ON THE FIRST FORTY MILES WEST FROM NEW-YORK CITY AT THE RATE OF $30,000 PER MILE.

$30,000 PER MILE ALREADY EXPENDED ON THAT PORTION OF THE ROAD.

A MAP AND CIRCULAR RELATING TO THE BONDS OF THE

Montclair Railway
OF
NEW-JERSHY,

ENDORSED BY THE N. Y. & O. MIDLAND CO.,
MAY BE HAD BY APPLICATION TO LEONARD, SHELDON & FOSTER,
10. 10 WALL-ST.,
AND THE MONTCLAIR RAILWAY CO.,
NO. 25 NASSAU-ST.

TURNER BROTHERS,
M. C. Turner,
T. C. Turner,
H. Turner,
BANKERS,
A. Turner,
G. M. Turner,
J. S. Decker,
No. 14 Nassau-st., N. Y.,
(Corner Pine-st., opposite United States Treasury.)

Interest allowed on daily balances. Certificates of Deposit issued available at all business centres.

Collections made with prompt returns. Stocks, Bonds, Gold, &c., bought and sold on commission. Advances made on approved securities.

Sight Drafts and Telegraphic Transfers on San Francisco.

Desirable investment securities for sale.

MOBILE AND MONTGOMERY
EIGHT PER CENT. GOLD BONDS,
INDORSED BY STATE OF ALABAMA.
(Loan $7,500,000 already negotiated.)

We are prepared to buy the above bonds at current rates and to furnish them in limited amounts to investors.

SOUTTER & CO.,
NO. 52 WILLIAM-ST.

DOUBLE EAGLES ($20 GOLD PIECES)
WANTED AT
3-8 PER CENT. PREMIUM.
EAGLES ($10 GOLD PIECES)
AT 1-16 PER CENT. PREMIUM.
ANY PART OF
$1,000,000 New Funded 5 Per Cent. Government Loan
FOR SALE AT 112 GOLD, By HENRY A. MEISER'S SONS,
Bankers and Dealers in Government Securities,
NO. 11 BROAD-ST.

THOMAS DENNY & CO.,
BANKERS, BROKERS, NO. 39 WALL-ST.,
OFFER FOR SALE
BELLEVILLE AND SOUTHERN ILLINOIS 8 PER CENT. BONDS.
ST. LOUIS, ALTON AND TERRE HAUTE 10 PER CENT. BONDS.
INDIANAPOLIS, BLOOMINGTON AND WESTERN 7 PER CENT. BONDS.
INDIANAPOLIS, BLOOMINGTON AND WESTERN 8 PER CENT. BONDS.
LONG DOCK MORTGAGE 7 PER CENT. BONDS.

TUCKER, ANDREWS & CO.,
NO. 52 WALL-ST.,
announce that they are now ready to draw bills and issue credits on
JAS. W. TUCKER & CO.,
NOS. 3 AND 5 RUE SCRIBE, PARIS,
AND BARTHOLOMEW HOUSE BANK, LONDON.

WINSLOW, LANIER & CO.,
NO. 27 PINE-ST.,
will pay the coupons and interest due 1st July, 1871, on the following securities, viz.:
Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railway First and Second Mortgage Bonds.
Dayton and Michigan Railroad First Mortgage Bonds.
Cincinnati, Richmond and Chicago Railroad Mortgage Bonds.
Alleghany Valley Railroad 7 3-10 Mortgage Bonds.
Grand Rapids and Indiana Railroad Mortgage Bonds.
Connecticut Western Railroad Mortgage Bonds.
Poughkeepsie and Eastern Railroad Mortgage Bonds.
Cleveland and Massillon Railroad Mortgage Bonds.
Cleveland, Zanesville and Cincinnati Railroad Mortgage Bonds.
City of Wheeling, Va., 3 and 6 per cent. Bonds.
Indianapolis Water-works, 8 per cent. Bonds.
Washington County, Ohio, 7 per cent. Bonds.
Ross County, Ohio, (principal and interest,) Bonds.
City of Allegheny, Penn., Bonds.
City of Richmond, Ind., Bonds.
City of Terre Haute, Ind., Bonds.
Town of Marietta, Ohio, Bonds.
State of Michigan Bonds.
2 scotia Falls Township, Kansas, Bonds.
Louisiana National Bank, Dividend 6 per cent., payable 8th July.
Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railway, Dividend payable 5th July.

IOWA COUNTY AND CITY BONDS of the old issues bought at best rates.
HOWARD DARLINGTON,
No. 107 South 4th-st., Philadelphia, Penn.

MEMPHIS AND LITTLE ROCK RAILROAD FUNDING NOTICE.—The Memphis and Little Rock Railroad Company now ready to fund the coupons from their first Mortgage Bonds, that matured November 1870, May 1871, November 1871, and May 1872, in accordance with the terms of their agreement with the bondholders. The certificates are now ready to be exchanged and are deposited with the National Bank of Commerce in New-York, where holders are respectfully asked to call and surrender their coupons and receive certificates. The coupons will be deposited in said bank and held by them in trust for the holders of said certificates.

JAMES PATE, President.
Memphis and Little Rock Railroad Company.

BOARD OF FINANCE AND TAXATION,
JERSEY CITY, June 24, 1871.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT all improvement certificates and bonds of Jersey City due on or before Sept. 1, 1871, will be paid on presentation, with accrued interest, at the Comptroller's office, Jersey City. ROBERT HUTTON, Clerk.

ATLANTIC MUTUAL INSURANCE Scrip or all issues wanted by WM. C. GILMAN, No. 27 Pine-st., corner William-st.

FINANCIAL.

THE
NATIONAL TRUST COMPANY,
OF THE CITY OF NEW-YORK.
Nos. 261 AND 263 BROADWAY, CORNER OF WARREN-ST.

Capital, - - - - - $1,000,000.

Pays Four per Cent. Interest per Annum on Deposits, Subject to Check at Sight.
Pays Five Per Cent. Interest Per Annum on Special Deposits Remaining Six Months or Longer.
Empowered to Act as Financial Agent for States, Corporations, and Individuals.
To Act as Agents of Corporations in Issuing Registering, or Countersigning Certificates.
To Act as Trustee of Mortgages of Railroads and Other Corporations.
To Act as Trustee for Married Women, and May Take Charge of and Manage Their Separate Property.
The Company is a Legal Depository for Moneys Paid into Court.

D. R. MANGAM, President.
JAMES MERRELL, Secretary.

DESIRABLE HOME SECURITIES.

OFFICE OF MEAD & CLARK,
BANKERS, No. 141 BROADWAY.

The attention of capitalists and investors generally is invited to the

First Mortgage
7 Per Cent. Gold Bonds
OF THE WALKILL VALLEY RAILWAY CO.,

which we offer for sale at par and accrued interest, in currency. The Railway is on the west side of the Hudson River, and is now running for twenty miles to New-Paltz, and is under contract to be in working order to Kingston next Fall. The bonds are of the denomination of $1,000, and the payments of interest, principal and dividends, are made free from any investigation of them. The principal and interest are PAYABLE IN GOLD. The coupons are paid semi-annually in this City, on the first days of April and October; the Government tax, and the issue of bonds is limited to $20,000 per mile of completed road. Any information concerning them will be given at our office.

ERASTUS P. MEAD and THOMAS CLARK, Jr.,
FINANCIAL AGENTS.

Eight Per Cent. Bonds
OF
WESTERN R. R. CO. OF ALABAMA.
Guaranteed by the
CENTRAL RAILROAD AND BANKING COMPANY OF GEORGIA, and by the
GEORGIA RAILROAD AND BANKING COMPANY.
Above bonds bought and sold by
SOUTTER & CO.,
NO. 52 WILLIAM-ST.

BANKING HOUSE OF
Geo. Opdyke & Co.
56 Maiden Lane,
CORNER OF CEDAR-ST.

FOUR PER CENT. interest allowed on current accounts subject to check at sight.

CERTAIN INVESTMENTS, for trust and other funds always on hand.

INVESTMENT ORDERS promptly executed for Gold, Stocks, Bonds and Government Securities.

COLLECTIONS WANTED ON CHICAGO, KEOKUK, DES MOINES, IOWA CITY, ST. JOSEPH, and other points in the Western States.

EXCHANGE FIRE INSURANCE CO.,
NO. 170 BROADWAY, NEW-YORK, June 29, 1871.

At an election held on the 22d inst. the following named gentlemen were duly elected directors of the Exchange Fire Insurance Company for the ensuing year:

JAMES VAN NORDEN, WM. P. COLLEDGE,
WILLIAM K. THORN, WM. T. LONGWORTH,
JOHN T. B. MAXWELL, RICHARD C. COMBES,
JOHN BROOKS, EDWARD F. DEAN,
JOHN W. AMERMAN, J. G. GOTTSBERGER,
EDMUND FURRY, SAMUEL RAYNOR,
DANIEL PIERSON, GEORGE H. PECK,
CHARLES BUTTS, JAMES BUCHAN,
CHARLES A. PECK.

And at a subsequent meeting of the Board, held June 29, 1871, JAMES VAN NORDEN, Esq., was unanimously re-elected President.

RICHARD C. COMBES, Secretary.

CLINTON FIRE INSURANCE CO.,
OFFICE, NO. 156 BROADWAY.
NEW-YORK, June 8, 1871.

At the Annual election held this day the following-named gentlemen were elected Directors:

EFFING. TOWNSEND, ISRAEL CORSE,
CHARLES EDWARDS, JOHN WAGENEN,
HENRY KNIGHT, JOHN R. WILLIS,
AMOS R. ENO, PRESTON H. HODGES,
JOHN WATSON, WALTER BARNES,
SAMUEL WILLETS, HENRY COFFIN,
JON. LAWRENCE, JOSEPH B. GRIFFEN,
URIAH J. SMITH, CHARLES H. ISHAM,
SYLV. H. WARD, WILLIAM PATEN,
JOHN SCOTT BOYD, JAMES E. AMES.

ROBERT A. CRUDEN,
At a subsequent meeting of the Board, JAMES B. AMES was unanimously reelected President.

JOHN HARRY, Secretary.

OFFICE OF THE IOWA VALLEY CONSTRUCTION COMPANY, NO. 32 PINE-ST.,
NEW-YORK, June 27, 1871.

THE ANNUAL ELECTION FOR DIRECTORS of this Company will be held at Eldora, Iowa, the FIRST TUESDAY in August, 1871.

The transfer-books of the Company will be closed July 1, and remain closed until Aug. 1, 1871.

J. H. TAYLOR, Secretary.

OFFICE OF CONTINENTAL INSURANCE COMPANY,
No. 102 BROADWAY, NEW-YORK, June 15, 1871.

CUSTOMERS OF THIS COMPANY are entitled to certificates of profits for the year 1870 are requested to obtain and call for the same, immediately, in order to avoid their forfeiture.

CYRUS PECK, Secretary.

TRANSFER OFFICE OF THE CENTRAL RAILROAD CO. OF IOWA,
NO. 52 PINE-ST., NEW-YORK,

THE TRANSFER-BOOKS OF THE Central Railroad Company of Iowa, will be closed July 1, and remain closed until Aug. 14, 1871, for annual election.

A. L. HATCH,
NEW-YORK, June 29, 1871. Transfer Agent.

RAILROADS.

NEW-YORK CENTRAL AND HUDSON RIVER RAILROAD.

Trains leave 30th-st., as follows:

9:30 A. M., Chicago and Montreal express.
9:00 A. M., Saratoga special express.
10:30 A. M., Special Chicago express, fast train, with drawing-room cars to Buffalo and Niagara Falls.
11:00 A. M., Northern and Western express.
3:45 P. M., Saratoga special express.
4:00 P. M., Montreal express. Sleeping-cars from New-York to St. Albans.
8:00 P. M., First Pacific express, with sleeping-cars for Watertown, Syracuse, Oswego and Canandaigua.
8:00 P. M., Second Pacific Express, with sleeping-cars for Rochester, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, also for Chicago via both L. S. and M. C. Railroads, for St. Louis via Toledo, and Louisville via Indianapolis. This train will leave on Sundays at 6 P. M.
11:00 P. M., Utica and Troy Express, with through sleeping-cars.

2:00 P. M., Hudson Special train.
7:00 A. M. and 5 P. M., Poughkeepsie trains.
9:45 A. M., 12:30, 4:15, and 6:15 P. M., Peekskill trains.
8:30 and 7:00 P. M., Sing Sing trains.
8:30, 7:10, 9:05, and 10:00 A. M., 1:30, 3:30, 4:25, 5:10, 6:10, and 11:30 P. M., Yonkers trains.

Sunday Way Trains.—8:30 A. M., and 4:00 P. M., Yonkers Special; 9:00 A. M., Poughkeepsie Special, makes no stop south of Yonkers.

C. H. KENDRICK, General Passenger Agent.
NEW-YORK, June 26, 1871.

SOUTH-SIDE RAILROAD OF LONG ISLAND.

The only double track Railroad on Long Island.

SUMMER ARRANGEMENT.

Commencing MONDAY, May 29, 1871, from Roosevelt and Grand-sts. Ferries.

8:00 A. M. Mail for Patchogue, connection at Babylon, for Fire Island, and at Patchogue by stage for Bellport and Fire Place.
9:00 A. M. Rockaway Excursion.
10:00 A. M. Accommodation for Babylon.
3:30 P. M. Express for Patchogue, connecting at Babylon for Fire Island, and from Patchogue by stage for Bellport and Fire Place.
4:30 P. M. Patchogue Accommodation.
5:30 P. M. Babylon Accommodation.
6:30 P. M. Merrick Accommodation.
The 8:00 and 10:00 A. M., and 3:30, 4:30 and 5:30 P. M. trains connect at Valley Stream for Hempstead and Rockaway.

G. W. DCUGLAS, Superintendent.

For further particulars see time table.

This train will commence running July 1, 1871.

LONG ISLAND RAILROAD COMPANY,
SUMMER ARRANGEMENT.

On and after WEDNESDAY, May 24, 1871, trains will leave Jamaica up as follows:

6:00 A. M.—Accommodation for Hempstead and Long Harbor.
8:00 A. M.—Northport and Glen Cove.
10:30 A. M.—Hicksville Way Train.
3:30 P. M.—Greenport and Long Harbor Express.
4:00 P. M.—Northport and Glen Cove Express.
4:30 P. M.—Riverhead Express.
6:30 P. M.—Northport Way Train.

All trains connect at Hicksville with Homer and Sunday Excursion Trains for Roslyn, Glen Cove, Locust Valley, Hicksville, Huntington and Northport. Long Hunter's Point at 8 A. M. and 5 P. M.

HORSES AND CARRIAGES.

A FOR SALE.—A CHESTNUT STALLION, 15¾ hands high; perfectly sound and kind; seven years old; will work in three minutes. Also, a top wagon, made by Stevens and Brewer, nearly new. Reason for selling, but little need. A splendid harness will be sold cheap, the owner having no further use for it. Apply at the Knickerbocker Stables, Troy, or send by mail to Box 1,000, Troy, N. Y. Also, a fine pair bay carriage horses, 16 hands high.

TO COUNTRY GENTLEMEN.—THE only trotting stallion for sale—Duke 4, son of Queen Mab 2d, by Clement 3d; black points; bore St. Peters, Jersey Morgan dam (see Jersey Herd Book). Also, one extra fine Jersey bull and heifer. Address JOHN MOFFETT, Highland, Dutchess County, New-York.

TO CARTMEN.—FIVE LOT OF FRESH work horses for sale cheap; horses to let at $2 per day; also trucks and teams.
DEANE & CO., No. 424 West 126th-st.

FOR SALE.—A SECOND-HAND PONY PHAETON, in good order; carriage back finish, without top; will be sold cheap. Can be seen at No. 15 Tilton-st., Brooklyn.

AN ELEGANT THREE-FOURTH COUPE, built by Brewster, for sale cheap, worth $2,000, will be sold for $1,000, at CORBETT & CO.'S, Nos. 128, 124 and 126 West 24th-st.

BOARDING AND LODGING.

NO. 29 WEST 12TH-ST., NEAR 5TH-AV., with board. Handsomely furnished rooms en suite or single, also single rooms; house and table first-class; reference given and required.

NO. 49 WEST 32D-ST., NEAR BROADway.—Handsomely furnished rooms, with board; superior board for families and gentlemen; Summer prices; references exchanged.

HOBOKEN.—A PRIVATE FAMILY HAVE a handsomely-furnished parlor and bedroom to let, with or without board; references required. Address No. 114 River-terrace.

A HANDSOMELY FURNISHED PARLOR, will accommodate two gentlemen, with privilege of front parlor; terms reasonable. No. 29 East 20th-st., between 1st and 2d ave.

SUMMER RESORTS.

THE CATSKILL MOUNTAIN HOUSE.

THIS FAVORITE SUMMER RESORT, commanding a view of the valley of the Hudson unsurpassed by any in the world, and so justly celebrated for its delightful temperature, will be open from June 15 to Oct. 1.

Stages connect at Catskill with the trains of the Hudson River Railroad, and the day boats from Albany and New-York. Also, with the steam-boats Thomas Powell and Sunnyside, leaving Pier No. 43, foot of Canal-st., New-York, for Catskill daily, at 5 P. M., Saturday at 1 P. M.

CHAS. L. BEACH, Proprietor.

GRANVILLE HOUSE,
MIDDLE GRANVILLE, N. Y.
C. H. BULL, Proprietor.
IRA M. ELLIS, Manager.

This house, having been thoroughly repaired and enlarged, can furnish good accommodations for City guests. Terms, $2 per day and $10 to $12 per week. A good livery connected with the house. References exchanged.

TH

OUT-DOOR SPORTS.

A Brilliant Display of Racing at Long Branch.

Unavoidable Postponement of the Cape May Regatta.

The Elastic Yacht Racer Yesterday—Fine Boat Racer at Boston—The Prospect Park Races.

LONG BRANCH RACES.

Brilliant Opening Day at Monmouth Park—Exciting Steeple-Chase Won by Statesman—Horses and Riders Engaged—Purses Won by Horses and Owners.

Down at Long Branch the glorious Fourth was commemorated in a manner which utterly astounded the stout Jerseymen. The demonstration took that venerable and respectable appendage, commonly known as "the oldest inhabitant," by surprise. He came down to Monmouth Park, and when his spectacles took in the landscape, above with at least as one human being, he rolled his quid from the left to the right side of his mouth, and, slapping his son JOHN on the shoulder, exclaimed, "Lordy massy, did yer ever see sich things afore?" JOHN looked around with an expression half wonder and half confusion in his eye, and, punching the old man under the ribs, said, "Pap, it beats anything I ever seen all my born days."

It was the opening day of the July Meeting. Many of the best horses had been entered for the prizes, and the contest promised much in the way of excitement and sensational episode. Long before the first race came off, the Grand Stand was literally crowded. There was no dust in acknowledgement of which fact, each visitor presented and adopted in his heart a sincere vote of thanks, and most complacently took his seat, and waited for the appearance of the horses, which, when they did appear, were certainly "things of beauty," even if it were not possible for them to be "joys forever." At the time when the inaugural race began the scene presented was one of almost unexampled imposingness. The sky above was one of the brightest that had ever folded Long Branch in its azure embrace. Up from the sea came a fresh but not aggressive breeze laden, with the aroma of seaweed and ocean redre, and the multitudinous assemblage in and about the park inhaled the pleasant offering, and tendered thanks to the kind-hearted clerk of Jersey for making the day so exceptionally enjoyable.

Statisticians, of the first class, would have bothered their mathematical brains in their endeavors to show, by the simplest rules of arithmetic, how so many people from New-York succeed in reaching the Park. There were three trains which came rolling down on the Southern Railroad of New-Jersey. Each of these locomotive-drawn processions of cars was crammed almost to satisfaction, and the passengers were exceedingly rejoiced when they found themselves leaping from the vehicles, and entering the borders of Monmouth Park. Once in the inclosure they considered themselves "all right," safe from the unpleasant possibilities of having their pockets picked on the cars, and secure against any further delay in reaching the scene of the day's enjoyment.

Among those present were many who have grown gray in the pursuit of the sports of the turf. One of these, who is a veteran of long standing and a veterinary professor of high repute, said to the writer, "It is splendid! I don't remember ever seeing anything to surpass it." At this point he was interrupted, but in a moment he drew his cigar from his lips and said, "Time takes the shine off of anything I ever saw in this country. Just look at the people! was there ever anything like it?"

While this experienced professor was engaged in giving expression to his views on the exhilarating subject under consideration, the races began, and from that moment until the close of the Jersey Derby, which concluded the day's display, the excitement was decidedly invigorating. Mingling with the pleasures of the opening were several incidents which were tragic in their nature. Several jockeys who figured in the steeple-chase were thrown, and the horse Duffy, which had come all the way from Canada, was seriously injured by colliding with a fence which the animal attempted to scale.

After the races were over there was a general rush for the cars. The vehicles were soon filled and the return to the steam-boat landing at once began. If the cars on their trip to the Park were crowded they were now literally jammed. To the surprise of almost everybody a number of pickpockets had gained access to the train, and they began their work without delay. They succeeded in "lifting" a number of watches, and threatened to put "roofs" on the heads of several gentlemen who detected them in the business. Beyond this, however, the occasion was in every way enjoyable, and the opening day of Monmouth Park was generally voted a success.

THE RACING.

The day's sport was in the main satisfactory. The steeple-chase which opened the racing was very exciting, three riders being thrown and barely escaping with their lives. Oysterman of course won, his usual good luck following him, but Duffy did the best leaping and running, and Mr. BANNATYNE, until the fall of his horse at the last hurdle, was looked upon as a sure winner.

The Trial Purse brought out fifteen starters, and the sight was a stirring and beautiful one as the horses assembled in front of the stand. Orvietan was a decided favorite, but H. P. MCGRATH'S bay filly Susan Ann took the lead at the start and won the purse in gallant style. The time—1:52½—was due to the bad condition of the track. The Jersey Derby, the last race, lost much of its interest from the fact that Stockwood did not start; Monarchist and Wanderer ranked next in the betting, but in the race the favorite had it all his own way. Monarchist got near him at the head of the stretch, but only succeeded in winning a creditable position. The time—2:37½—was poor, but the track must be blamed for it.

THE STEEPLE-CHASE.

The first event of the day was the grand national steeple-chase, for all ages; about three miles, over a fair hunting course; weight for horse $1,000; first horse, $700; second horse, $200; third horse, $100. Eight jumpers were entered, but General Tweed and Alma did not appear, the starters being as follows: D. MCDANIEL'S b. h. Oysterman, Jr., GAFFNEY & TUILLY'S b. g. Yesterday, Jos. DONOHUE'S ch. h. Tammany, A. TAYLOR'S br. h. R. E. Connolly, D. MCDANIEL'S b. h. Julius, and DUGALD J. BAMATTYNE'S Canadian horse Duffy. BANNATYNE'S other horse, Alma, broke his leg on Monday, which was regretted by all turfmen, now present, as a very welcome on our race-courses. The start was at the top of the farm, and the horses slowly got away, running in the field to the south. The first leap was over a mud wall at the extreme south end of the field, and it was cleared handsomely by Oysterman and Alma, and Duffy second. Yesterday stumbled, and Tammany, Julius, and Connolly bunched up the rear. At a rail-fence near the quarter-pole there was no change, all the horses taking the leap well, but the pace was so slow that every one was disappointed. Near the stables, Yesterday showed more speed, and got to the front, while Duffy passed the favorite and took second place. Dashing down the hill, they were soon out of sight, and on coming into view Yesterday was still leading by a length, with Tammany in second place and Duffy third. Out of sight once more they flew, and as they reappeared one more Duffy was again second, and Tammany third. A fence here was nicely taken by all except Julius, who threw his rider and galloped off alone. The two rivals were in the north field when next handsomely taken, the contest being close between Yesterday, Duffy, and Tammany, in the order named. All then came up at a fair rate of speed for the water-leap, Yesterday taking it handsomely in the lead. Duffy and Tammany got well over, too, but Oysterman lost his balance, went on his nose, nearly, and spread himself badly. The second mile was begun in the same order, and the wall and fence in the fourth field were well taken by every horse. Oysterman, on the backstretch, began closing up, and as they went out of sight was but a length away from Yesterday. At the second jump past the stables, the rider on Yesterday pitched headlong from the horse, and the favorite took up the lead, running at an increased pace. Coming into view at the half-mile pole and rumbling around the north and east of the field, Oysterman was leading, but Duffy was after him like hot pace, two lengths away, while Connolly was third and Tammany fourth. At the second mud wall, Tammany struck the top with his foot, pitched forward and rolled on his rider. The fleet of the latter caught the stirrup, and the horse started off, dragging him on the ground. A cry of horror arose from the spectators, for there was danger that the man's head would be kicked off; but three or four jockeys and trainers who were in the field stood around the horse, caught him, and secured the unhappy jockey from his perilous position. The attention of all was then called to the racers again as they came to the water-leap for the second time. Duffy was now leading two lengths, and took the jump handsomely. Oysterman, in second place, made a better leap than before, while Connolly cleared the ditch handsomely, and showed himself still a dangerous competitor. Coming to the wall in the north field, they were all together, and they took the leap then, and over the fence beyond in grand style. On the backstretch and down the hill behind the stables, Duffy still maintained his lead, although the favorite was making decided inroads on those up. Around the quarter-turn on the back, and past the three-quarter pole, the pace was desperate, and the contest most exciting. As they came to the last leap Duffy was leading a good two lengths and had the race well in hand, but ALLOWAY rode too near the fence, and when his horse rose the last leap struck his shoulder again the fence, lost his balance and fell over into the field, breaking the fence down and severely wounding himself. It seemed a wonder how either horse or rider escaped with so few severe or fatal injuries, and shouts of "He's killed, ALLOWAY'S killed," were heard on all sides. The horse rider, however, was uninjured, and was on his feet in an instant. The horse, blood streaming from his breast, was brought on the track again, and soon taken to his stable. Oysterman, of course won the race, coming in twenty lengths ahead of Connolly, the latter running especially well, and BUTLER'S thought he could have beaten Oysterman with him had he not cut the tendons of one of his legs in jumping a fence in the last mile. Tammany recovered from his tumble, GAFFNEY jumped on him again, and amid cheers completed all the miles and came in the winner of third money. None of the jockeys were seriously hurt, and none of the horses, except Duffy. His breast is badly cut, and many predict that he will die from injuries received. The time was slow—8:00.

TRIAL PURSE.

The second race was the Trial Purse of $600, for all ages; dash of one mile; first horse $400, second horse $150, third horse $50. The entries were fifteen in number, and all started, as follows: JOHN COWEN'S ch. h. Judge Durell, D. MCCOOK'S b. m. Alberta, JOHN GRIFFIN'S ch. h. Aldebrand, H. W. CAMERON'S b. f. Mayonnaise, H. P. MCGRATH'S b. f. Susan Ann, GAFFNEY & TUILLY'S ar. h. Yesterday, Jos. MORRIS' br. m. Felicity, R. G. TENNANT'S b. f. Aurocela, CARROLL & COAN'S br. h. Orvietan, AUG. BELMONT'S ch. f. Nellie James, JOHN BOUGHRAN'S two Bulletin colts, D. J. CROUSE'S b. f. Romance, W. R. BABCOCK'S ch. h. The Doctor, and Gov. BOWIE'S b. f. Belle Meade. The start was a standing one, and an excellent one, at the Grim, Susan Ann was the first away, with Orvietan, Aurocela, Nellie James and Belle Meade all in a bunch on her flank. On the turn Susan drew away a length, while Nellie James came up into second place, and made excellent running, with Felicity lapping her. On the backstretch Susan was still cutting out the running, two lengths in the lead; BOUGHRAN'S chestnut was second, Felicity third, and Nellie James, finding the mud too heavy, had fallen back to fourth place. Orvietan, the favorite, was running indifferently well in the middle of the lot. There was no change to the half-mile pole, but on the turn the leaders showed signs of closing up, and CROUSE'S filly made a most determined rush for the front. Passing one after the other, she, at the head of the stretch, was leading all but Susan. The latter would not consent to any go-by, and coming down in front of the stand at a slashing pace, won the race by five lengths. Romance was second, a length ahead of Felicity, the latter leading BOUGHRAN'S chestnut by a neck. Orvietan was fifth, Judge Durell sixth, and Nellie James seventh. Felicity and Nellie both had speed enough to have won, had the track been in good order, but in the mud they stood but little chance. The time of the race was 1:53¾, showing conclusively the bad state of the track.

THE JERSEY DERBY.

The third race was the Jersey Derby Stakes, value $1,650, added to a sweepstakes of $50 each, play or pay, for three-year-old colts and fillies; the second to receive $200, and the third $100 out of the stakes; dash one and a half miles. Closed with 31 entries. Net value of stakes, $6,050.

D. MCDANIEL'S ch. c. Harry Bassett, by Lexington, dam Canary Bird, 110 pounds.....Brooks.....1
M. H. SANFORD'S b. c. Monarchist, by Lexington, dam Mildred, 110 pounds.....Hayward.....2
D. MCDANIEL'S b. c. Idaho, by Kentucky, dam Variana, 110 pounds.....Hennessy.....3
B. SWIGERT'S ch. c. Wanderer, by Lexington, dam Co.
R. P. WHITE'S s. c. Collodia, by imp. Australian, dam Charlotte Butler, 110 pounds.....0
D. C. CROUSE'S b. c. ——, by Revolver, dam Gentle Annie, 107 pounds.....Mike.....0
C. C. & R. H. PARKE'S b. c. Nathan Oaks, by Lexington, dam Bonnie Scotland, dam by Lexington, 110 pounds.....0
J. W. WELDON'S br. c. Astronomer, by Asteroid, dam by imp. Sovereign, 110 pounds.....0
J. O'DONNELL'S br. c. ——, by Asteroid, dam Lavender, 110 pounds.....0

Pools were sold on the various races at the following rates:

GRAND NATIONAL STEEPLE-CHASE.

Oysterman	$720	$1,075	$625	$600
Yesterday	200	250	110	100
Duffy	80	100	50	50
R. E. Connolly	55	75	20	50
Tammany	25	50	25	25

MILE DASH.

Orvietan	$425	$600	$210
Susan Ann	150	215	200
Tammany	100	190	250
Judge Durell	100	125	150
Nellie James	75	100	125
Field	125	125	250

JERSEY DERBY.

Wanderer	$625	$775	$600
Monarchist	310	300	140
Field	115	100	125

Trotting at Prospect Park—Harry Mason the Winner in the Great Match for $10,000.

At the track of the Prospect Park Fair Grounds Association, about 1,000 or 1,200 admirers of trotting assembled, yesterday, to witness the great $10,000 match between the bay gelding Harry Hartly, and the bay mare Mary Mason. Both were in fine condition, and as they had both trotted down in the twenties, a fast and exciting trot was expected. The managers of the affair provided a fine band of music to amuse their patrons previous to the trot and between the heats, while the pool-sellers were kept busy in selling pools, in which Harley was decidedly the favorite, selling at $100 to $60.

Soon after 3 o'clock the horses were rung up, and after taking their preliminary warming, both came down the track for the word, with the mare on the inside. After scoring two or three times, they got the word, with the mare a trifle in advance, which, however, did not benefit her much, for Harley passed her before getting to the quarter, which was done in 37 seconds; at the half Harley led her in two lengths in 1:14; at the three-quarters he still had the advantage in the lead. After a fine contest up the stretch, Harley made a skip, and the mare closed right up on him, but he quickly settled down, and took the heat by half a length, in 2:32.

In the second heat the geldings took the lead at the start, going to the quarter in 36½, the half in 1:15, the mare, who now had McLAUGHLIN to drive her, pushing him all the way round, but at no time was she able to pass him, Harley getting the heat by a length in 2:30. The third heat was a repetition of the second, only that the mare rapidly tired out in coming up the homestretch, so that Harley only walked under the string in 2:32, having made the first quarter in 37½, the half in 1:15¼. The following is the summary:

PROSPECT PARK FAIR GROUND ASSOCIATION'S COURSE, Brooklyn, Long Island, July 4, 1871. Match $10,000; mile heats; best three in five to harness; good day and track.

Budd Doble's b. g. Harry Harley.....1 1 1
M. Goodwin's b. m. Mary Mason.....2 2 2

TIME.	Quarter.	Half.	Mile.
First heat	37	1:14	2:32
Second heat	37½	1:15	2:30
Third heat	37½	1:15¼	2:32

THE CAPE MAY YACHT RACE.

Unavoidable Postponement of the Regatta—Thick Weather—The Ball at the Stockton House a Success.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

CAPE MAY, N. J., July 4.—The race has been postponed until to-morrow at 9 o'clock, on account of thick weather. The village is crowded with people, more than the hotels can hold. The regatta ball at the Stockton House was a decided success, and attended by nearly 1,000 people. Cape May is in a greater state of excitement than it ever was before. Some 20,000 people came down yesterday. The bay is full of shipping. Hotels so packed that 100 guests slept in the parlors of the Stockton House.

From the Associated Press.

CAPE ISLAND, July 4.—Much to the disappointment of the tens of thousands assembled here to witness the grand ocean yacht race between the finest specimens of nautical science the yatching world have seen, the race has been postponed until Wednesday, the 5th inst., owing to that frequent disturber of sea-side festivities, a fog, which overhung the waters and suggested to the experienced pilots the necessity of the race being deferred until it could take place with satisfaction to all.

The day broke pleasantly, but the breeze was from the eastward, and in the early morning the masses of vapor hung so low and rolled in such volumes from the ocean, that the outer breakers could not be seen from the shore. Yet not the least suspicion entered the minds of the landsmen but what the curtain would lift and present a favorable day for the occasion, as the arrangements for the event were systematically made. A hundred places of view were occupied by throngs of people. Appropriate costumes were counted by hundreds, and many ladies in coquettish attire encouraged by their presence these nautical sports. Excursionists poured into Cape May from every direction, in addition to the twenty car-loads of last night and forty this morning; Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington dividing the honors in the matter of numbers.

The steam-boats were laden with spectators, of both sexes long before the hour appointed for the yachts to start. The starting-point was alive with all sorts of steam and sailing craft, crowded with people. From this great concourse there arose the hum of expectation, while occasionally the burst of cheers mingled with the music that came rippling over the waters. The sun shone with great intensity, but the fog-bank continued, although lifting at times, just by way of teasing the uninitiated, and then would again roll in upon the fleet, and if philosophy is ever of any avail in an emergency, it must have been profitably brought out by every yachtsman and every spectator here this morning. The prospect of the grand regatta slipping away in a tranquility of calm and vapor seemed such a calamity that at an early hour the Regatta Committee were at the steam-boat landing, abreast of which the yachts were at anchor, and hurriedly departed to the flag yacht Dauntless, where earnest consultation was held with the old pilots of Cape Island, who had there been brought together at Chairman BULLITH'S request. The conference terminated at 10¾ o'clock, and a quarter of an hour afterward the fleet were notified by a signal from the Dauntless that the race was postponed until the 5th.

This decision was received with satisfaction by the majority, as each and all desired the regatta to be a triumph and not a fizzle. The Regatta Committee, as soon as the postponement had been decided upon, departed to their steamboat, the Pinta, which had made arrangements to honor the day and occasion with a national salute at noon. She steamed among the fleet of yachts, and firing a salute of twenty-one guns, struck up "Hail Columbia," amid the choruses of steam whistles and huzzas of jolly sea-dogs. The salute from the Pinta was at once repeated from on board the flag-yacht Dauntless, when the crowds on shore dispersed and sought their hotels. The arrangements of the Regatta Committee are very complete, and it looks as if the race would prove a magnificent and gigantic yachting triumph.

THE BOSTON REGATTA.

A Fog Prevents the City Point Race—Success of the Charles River Boat Races.

BOSTON, Mass., July 4.—Great interest was manifested here today in the sailing regatta from City Point. Seventy boats, of all classes, appeared, many of them of much note in Eastern waters. But the dense fog that prevailed all day prevented them from starting. The rowing regatta on the Charles River Course came off in a successful manner. The first race was for four-oared working boats, rowed on the gunwale; distance two miles; eight entries. The John W. Fraser won the first prize of $100 in 14 minutes 15 seconds; the Stranger was second. In the second race, for single scull wherries, first prize $100, second, $50, there were five entries; T. C. Butler came in first, in 15 minutes 54⅗ seconds, and Thomas Doyle, Jr., second in 15 minutes 57½ seconds. For the third race, two miles, first prize $100; second, $50; three entries. The P. S. Gilmore came in first, in 19:17, and the Two Georges second. For the fourth race, double scull, distance two miles, same prizes as in the other races; six entries, the M. T. Wall came in first, in 20:39, and George McDonald second. The fifth and last race, four-oared boats, with outriggers, distance three miles, was contested by three crews. The Charles R. Percelley won the first prize, $100, in 21:36½, and the Chanes the second, $50, in 22:07. A balloon ascent was made from the Common, by Prof. GEORGE A. ROCKWELL, accompanied by C. W. EVERSON, of the Boston Herald, F. W. WHITEMAN, of Cambridge, and EZRA ALLEN, of Providence. The balloon took a southwardly course, and was enveloped in fog in a minute after cutting the rope. A grand display of fire-orks on the Common closed the entertainments of the day. The weather was cool and fair, but cloudy.

The Atlantic Yacht Club Regatta.

Glen Cove, Long Island, presented an animated appearance yesterday, thousands having proceeded from New-York to witness the celebration of the Fourth of July by the Atlantic Yacht Club. A dozen yachts of the Atlantic Yacht Club had arrived there the previous evening, in compliance with the orders issued by Commodore PERT, among which were the schooners Mystic, owned by Mr. CHEEVER; the sloop Nassau, Commodore PERT; the sloop Peerless, Vice-Commodore MAXWELL; the sloop Olive, Mr. THAYER; the sloop Qui Vive, Mr. CHAPMAN; the Vixen, Mr. LUDLOW LEXINGTON; the Josephine, the Ida, and several other yachts. Among those belonging to other clubs present was the well-known schooner Restless, of the New-York Yacht Club, and the sloop Recreation, owned by Rev. Mr. KNAPP, of Greenport, Long Island. In consequence of the severity of the weather on Monday, the yachts did not reach Glen Cove until a late hour that evening, which prevented the display of fire-works from being so extensive as was contemplated. At 8 o'clock yesterday morning the yachts hoisted their colors, which were saluted by a discharge of thirty-seven guns from the miniature cannon on each yacht. A Committee on Reception was appointed, and at 10 o'clock A. M. the owners of each yacht reported aboard the Nassau. Entries were called for the race between the yachts of the third class, and the Vixen, the Ida and the Josephine were the only ones which were entered. The Committee immediately instructed the owners of the three yachts to get them into line, and gave directions to proceed to the buoy at Shippan Point, Conn., and from thence back to Glen Cove, passing two stake-boats anchored off the Hoyt-Dock, making a distance of twenty-eight miles there and back. At this point the steam-boat Arrowsmith arrived from New-York, loaded with excursionists among whom were a number of the friends of the Club, who were immediately conveyed on board of the yachts. At 11 o'clock the first gun for the contestants to get ready was fired, and in five minutes after the starting gun boomed out its orders to start. In a few seconds the yachts had their anchors up and started for the race, the Nassau leading. The wind being from the North-east, with the tide in the last of the flood, compelled the yachts to stand out well in the Sound before they commenced to beat up for Shippan Point. At the start all the yachts in the harbor, with the exception of the Westering, weighed anchor and stood out to accompany the contestants. About 1 o'clock the wind shifted to the south-east, making it almost a fair wind for the yachts to run over, and clearing off at once the heavy fog that was hanging over the Sound. With the change of the tide the wind fell considerably, and at P. M., when the steam-boat Arrowsmith left Glen Cove, the yachts had not returned, the only arms in sight being the schooner Mystic, closely followed by a yacht that looked very like the Peerless. The remainder were well out in the Sound. The winning yacht on its arrival was to be saluted by all the yachts accompanying. The Rear-Commodore had charge of the fleet during the regatta. Preparations were made for a magnificent display of fire-works from all the yachts. Several yachts from New-York and other places arrived at Glen Cove during the day—Mr. LORILLARD'S steam-yacht Emily was among the number. After laying for a short time, she weighed anchor and started back with great speed for her owner's residence below Fort Schuyler. The numerous excursionists who visited Glen Cove were well pleased with their visit, having enjoyed a pleasant day in boating, bathing and other amusements.

The Dundee Regatta.

The annual regatta of the Dundee Boat Club took place yesterday on the lake of the same name near Paterson. The spectators were numerous and enjoyed the sport with the utmost hilarity. The first race was a single scull over a course one mile and return. Four started: JACKSON, of the Arrowsmith Club, Bayonne; WILLMAN, of the Passaic, of Newark, and BECKWITH and LOW, of the Dundees, of Paterson. After an exciting contest, the race was won by Low in 11:31. The Dundee boys had no competitors for the other races, so that they had all the sport to themselves. The prize won by Low was a massive gold badge appropriately inscribed. In the evening, the members of the Dundee Club entertained their guests at the Franklin House.

Base-Ball—Mutual vs. Rokford.

One of the most remarkable games on record was that played yesterday between the famous Mutual nine and Rokfords, in which the would-be champions were defeated by a score of 7 to 0. That any runs were made in the game was due to the muffing of the Mutuals, who seem to have suddenly become the weakest among the weak. MILLS, their regular catcher, was compelled to go into the field during the first inning, in consequence of his hands being so sore that he could not catch, FERGUSON going behind the bat, where he did good service. The victory of the Rokfords is mainly due to the inability of the Mutuals to bat MARTIN'S pitching. The following is the score:

ROCKFORD.	R.	I.	P.	O.	A.	MUTUAL.	R.	I.	P.	O.	A.
Allison, 1st b.....	2	2	4	0		Pearce, s. s.....	0	0	1	0
Martin, p.....	1	3	1	0		Smith, 2d b.....	0	1	1	1
Nelson, 3d b.....	2	3	1	2		Start, 1st b.....	0	0	4	1
Gibney, l. f.....	1	2	1	0		Mills, c.....	0	0	1	3
Sywald, 2d b.....	0	0	4	2		Ferguson, c.....	0	0	10	2
Hicks, c.....	0	0	4	0		Mills, r. f.....	0	0	1	0
Chapman, r. f.....	0	0	3	0		Eggler, c. f.....	0	0	4	0
Holdsworth, s. s.	1	0	0	5		Oliver, l. f.....	0	0	0	0
Shelly, c. f.....	0	0	0	0		Higham, 3d b...	0	0	2	5
Total.....	10	10	27	4		Total.....	0	3	27	8

RUNS SCORED FOR EACH INNING.

	1st.	2d.	3d.	4th.	5th.	6th.	7th.	8th.	9th.
Rokford.....	5	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	1—7
Mutual.....	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0—0

Umpire—Mr. B. Lust, of the Union Club.
Time of Game—One hour and thirty minutes.

WEST POINT.

Celebration of the Fourth—A Treat to the Cadets—Exercises and Salutes.

From Our Own Correspondent.

WEST POINT, N.-Y., Tuesday, July 4, 1871.

The ninety-fifth anniversary of our national independence was observed here today with becoming ceremonies. At guard mounting this morning the Cadet Corps were notified of the day's programme. First was the venerable Federal salute, fired by the Second Class, from Battery Knox. Next, and perhaps the best appreciated, was an extra bill of fare at dinner, in the Mess Hall, which included choice poultry, with a dessert of fruit. I do not intend to hunt that the bell-button lads in gray do not receive fair treatment in the matter of their food. Although plain, it is always excellent, and the great holiday only suggested a little extraordinary addition of dishes. At 5 o'clock this afternoon there was a full-dress parade on the Plains, which included several new and beautiful evolutions of Gen. UPTON'S system. At sunset the same salute was fired from Battery Ringgold by the Third Class. The supper in the Mess Hall was also an unusually choice affair. Berries, flowers, &c., made an elegant spread, which the soldier lads knew well how to appreciate, because the flowers were, in part, supplied by the "fair Lillis's," in clouds of dimity and silk, some of whom hovered at the threshold, and added fuel to the flame of excitement by shy glances, as full of meaning as mischievous lasses can make. In the evening the regular hop took place, at which patriotism, flirtation, and the tender passions ruled the hour. At COZZENS' Hotel the guests had a feast of flowers all day, and the tables were all gaily decorated. This is a feature adopted on extra occasions by the steward, who evidently has not only the taste to please the palates, but to gratify the other senses of his guests. All the private and public carriages have been on the road today. The academy grounds, as usual, are the principal attraction. PEARL.

New-York State Society of the Cincinnati.

This distinguished society held its annual meeting yesterday in the Historical Society's building, No. 67 University-place. Owing to the illness of Hon. HAMILTON FISH, the President of the Society, the chair was taken by Mr. WILLIAM L. POPHAM. The Secretary, Mr. WM. IRVING GRAHAM, was also indisposed, and his place was filled by Rev. MARINUS WILLETT. Mr. ROBERT L. TILLOTSON was elected a member of the Society, as successor to his father, the late Dr. THOMAS TILLOTSON. The Treasurer read his report, from which it appeared that there was a balance of $2,000 in hand. Meetings were appointed for the 15th of November (Evacuation Day) and the 22d of February, (WASHINGTON'S birthday.)

A few happy and appropriate remarks were made by Gen. COCHRANE in favor of these meetings. The following gentlemen were then elected officers for the ensuing year:

President, Hon. Hamilton Fish, LL.D.; Vice-President, William S. Popham; Secretary, Wm. Irving Graham; Treasurer, Henry H. Ward; Assistant Treasurer, John Torrey, M. D., LL.D.; Chaplain, Rev. Manetus S. Hatton, D. D.; Physician, Alexander Clinton, M. D. Standing Committee—Pierre Van Cortlandt, William Stuart, Wickham Hoffman, Wm. H. Crosby, S. C. Ellis, M. D.; Rev. Marinus Willett, John W. Groston, Alex. Hamilton, Jr. Delegates to the General Society—Hon. Hamilton Fish, LL. D.; Wm. S. Popham, Wm. Irving Graham, Henry H. Ward, Rev. Marinus Willett.

The members present then adjourned to Delmonico's and partook of luncheon, when appropriate toasts were drank and responded to.

Another Probable Homicide.

At an early hour Monday morning an affray occurred at No. 50 Grand-street, during which MICHAEL C. SHAY and WM. QUINN kicked and beat JOHN C. MCFADDEN so severely that he was taken to his home, No. 372 Munroe-street, in a critical condition. Subsequently the two assailants were arrested, and, being arraigned before Justice SCOTT, at the Essex Market Police Court, were committed, to await the result of the injuries. Yesterday a letter was received at the office of the Coroner from Capt. JOSEPH H. PETTIT, Thirteenth Precinct, stating that DR. PEASE, was attended MCFADDEN, had reported him to be in a very dangerous condition, and had advised that his ante-mortem examination be taken immediately. Coroner HERMANN was assigned to the case, and the statement of the injured man was taken.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

A Bridge Gives Way on Harpeth River, Tennessee—Fifteen Persons Killed and Twenty-three Wounded—Distressing Scenes.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 4.—A passenger-train on the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, which left here at 4:30 P. M., yesterday, composed of two coaches and a sleeping-car, met with a deplorable accident at Harpeth River, about eighteen miles from Nashville. After the locomotive and baggage-car had crossed the bridge over the river, the bridge gave way, and the remainder of the train fell with it into the stream. Fifteen persons, so far as KNOWN at present, were killed, and twenty-three wounded. The killed are JOHN MARSHALL, of Nashville, Judge Hornbeager, of Clarksville; Charles Campbell, wife and child, of Edgefield, opposite Nashville; three men unknown; Mrs. Wm. S. Zeiman and Mrs. Thomas Dunn, of Kingston Springs; Mr. Pendergrast and Mr. Wright, of White Bluff; J. C. Bracket and brother, Wm. and Wiley Howard, of Marshall County. The wounded are: W. W. Gee, brakeman; V. Hale, Point Isabel, Ind.; Mrs. Heard, Trenton, Tenn.; J. W. Sayes, Mr. Willhits, Miss Clem. Leake and John Campbell, Nashville; J. W. Thompson, Amherst Court-house, Va.; Alex. Wright, White Bluff; W. Walker, Union City; W. E. Yeatman, Memphis; Thomas R. Yeatman, Kingston Springs; Mrs. Brown, Johnsonville; John Pegram and brother, Conductor Landis, S. S. Brown, Nashville; Robert Daniel, Bedford County, and Thos. Dunn, Kingston Springs. None of the wounded are mortally hurt. The dead and wounded were brought to Nashville and presented a sickening spectacle at the depot. The bodies of the dead strangers are left at the undertaker's for burial. The accident was the result of the weakness of the bridge. The train was running slowly.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

NEW-YORK.

The United States store-ship Supply, which left this port some three months ago, loaded with provisions for the sufferers by the war in France, reached this port yesterday, from Lisbon. The following is a list of her officers: Lieut.-Commander Geo. Dewey, commanding; Lieut.-Commander A. G. Kellogg, Executive Officer; Lieut. C. S. Sperry, Navigator; Masters, B. S. Richards, Richard Rush; W. L. Field; Wm. H. Beehler; Assistant Pay-master, H. T. Harris; Assistant Surgeon, P. S. Bowman; Midshipmen, H. C. Nye, E. M. Hughes, W. Kilburn, J. D. Keeler; Captain's Clerk, G. J. Marbury; Pay-master's Clerk, Henry Thomson.

Coroner HERMAN was notified, yesterday, to hold an inquest in the case of JAMES HENRY, aged eight years, who lived at No. 415 Ninth-street, who had died at Bellevue Hospital. On the 9th of June the deceased was riding on the front platform of a Second-avenue car, and when near Seventeenth-street, in First-avenue, either fell or was pushed from the car, one of the wheels of which passed over his left leg. He was removed to Bellevue Hospital, where the leg was amputated, and death resulted yesterday. The case will be fully investigated today.

It is curious how ready some people are to declare the Fourth of July a nuisance. Some celebrators on Union-square, yesterday afternoon, with new whistles never out of a penny trumpet-maker on the horse cars with a wad from their cannon, knocking the head-coverings into the gutter. The proprietor, after picking it up and wiping the mud off, at once declared that our national day was a nuisance, and even seemed to mislead the glorious occasion in an intemperate manner.

Yesterday the Staten Island Railroad Ferry Company ran four boats, making half-hour trips during the day, all loaded with people visiting the different places around the island. Nearly 30,000 people passed over the ferry, as the trains which ran hourly to and from Tottenville, being loaded each way. It is said that more people rode over the road yesterday than on any other day since it has been in operation.

The east side made a great show of flags yesterday. The Germans laid in a large stock of them for their peace celebrations, &c., and the crowded German tenements from Second to Eighth streets break out at the slightest provocation with a profusion of banners of all sizes. Even the Government like excitement. Some patriotic horse-car conductors also had their vehicles covered with flags yesterday.

Mr. CORNELIUS N. PAYN, the "ex-champion long distance pedestrian of America," who accepted the challenge to beat WESTON'S time—115 miles in 23 hours and 44 minutes—failed signally yesterday. He became sick at the stomach, and was compelled to give it up at 5¾ P. M., having walked forty-five miles up to that time.

It is remarked that at the foot of East Fifth-street, where the free bath is established, daily the number of those outside is about double the number of those inside. Very desirable, too, for the accommodations of the bath are so meagre that any one can appreciate the preference.

An eccentric tailor, named FOX, rode along Broadway yesterday, in a four-horse barouche, with a flag and streamer flying from a tall staff, and a stuffed fox on the front seat of the vehicle. He occupied his usual seat, with his knees and cooked hat and leather. He was the observed of all observers.

Fears of a disturbance on July 12 seem to be entertained by the Police in connection with the Orange procession, for on that day the entire force has been ordered out, to prevent any such occurrences as disgraced our City on the occasion of the Orange picnic last year.

Yesterday morning the docket at the Tombs Police Court was very light, the regular old drunken faces being up again, but Judge SCOTT, who sat nearly till 10 o'clock, tempered justice with mercy, as far as he could, in honor of the glorious Fourth.

Nothing occurred yesterday in the Tombs by which the Fourth of July was recognized, and the regular prison discipline was preserved in all its details. FOSTER received a long visit from his wife, and is still hopeful that he may have a reprieve.

Lager is becoming a national drink in America, and in this City its popularity is far greater at present than whisky, which several years ago stood above all competition. Lager-beer sellers state that the disposal of about four times the amount that they did six years ago.

FRANKLIN J. KRAMER died, yesterday, at the Park Hospital from injuries received on the 1st inst. by falling through the hatchway at No. 38 Maiden-lane, as previously published. Coroner HERMAN held an inquest, and a verdict of accidental death was rendered.

Elastic conical faces form the chief source of subsistence of a number of venders on Broadway. They are made of a composition of gum and flour, moulded into the shape of a face, which, when squeezed, presents a variety of contortions and hideous expressions.

HENRY BOYD, yesterday, conveyed a man weighing 130 pounds in a wheelbarrow, from No. 29 Sixth-avenue to Central Park, in forty-one minutes. It was done for a wager of $150. A great crowd accompanied him. The scene was a very amusing one.

At Essex Market Police Court, yesterday morning, before Judge SCOTT, PETER CAMPBELL was held to answer on a charge of breaking into the residence of JOHN JONES, No. 113 Avenue D, and stealing a watch worth 17.

Bets are being freely offered, with very questionable taste, in up-town sporting houses, that BOYTE, the Newark murderer, will be hung. The odds are 100 to 85, and they find very few takers.

RICHARD BOLDOCK, aged twelve months, yesterday afternoon, fell from the roof of No. 102 James-street to that of the adjoining house, and thence to the sidewalk, receiving fatal injuries.

CHARLES MORGAN, a canal boatman, yesterday, fell from a street car of the Belt-Line and was severely injured. He was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

It was remarked, yesterday,